SPAB Dashes Hope for Oil Pipeline East Before 1943

Board Refuses Priority for 700,000 Tons of Steel Plate Needed for Project

Shortages Forecast

CRITICAL SHORTAGES in transportation facilities forecast for this fall and winter. Page 5.

Defense Pinches

Bolstering of the East's gasoline supply next spring by construction of a giant pipeline costing 80 million dollars was dashed yesterday when priority was denied the 700,000 tons of steel plates which would be required.

Adverse action taken by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board means abandonment of plans to have the line, linking Texas with New York, in operation next year.

The pipeline project was supported by 11 major oil companies.

Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum coordinator, yesterday told the Maloney Senate Committee investigating the gasoline shortage that construction of such a line was as vital to national defense as the building of warships.

Failure by SPAB to release the plate steel needed for the proposed 1500-mile fuel carrier did not rule out the possibility that seamless tubes may yet be allocated for construction. In this event, however, the pipeline could not be completed before 1943, it was said.

Fears for Ship Program

Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission last week advised the Maloney committee that allocation of such a vast amount of steel plates as the pipeline requires would jeopardize the emergency shipbuilding program.

When the decision of the Priorities Board was announced, following a fully attended meeting presided over by Vice President Wallace and which lasted until nightfall, a spokesman made it clear that the action does not preclude eventual construction of the pipeline.

Such an outright rejection was withheld because Harold L. Ickes, petroleum coordinator and who originally laid the matter before SPAB, was not present at the meeting.

Defense Pipelines, Inc., composed of 11 major oil companies, is the financial sponsor of the proposed pipelines.

Warns of Havoc

In an encore appearance yesterday before the Maloney Senate committee, Davies urged construction of a huge pipeline to serve the Atlantic seaboard and warned of "the havoc and catastrophe which will overwhelm us if we go wrong on oil."

He implied that more than 50 American tankers have been di-

Nation's Capital Its Hottest Spot; More Heat Today

Washington was officially the hottest city in the Nation yesterday when the mercury climbed to a high of 95. Unofficially, the city was probably the most humid, too, with a maximum of 87 per cent. All in all the Capital was the most uncomfortable spot in the country.

More discomfort is the prospect for today, for the temperature is expected to soar again, and the high humidity will stay around.

There is hope of showers late today or tonight. More thundershowers are due tomorrow, to be followed by clearing and cooler weather.

Charges that a small group of foreign-born film executives, motivated by personal bias and a heavy financial stake in British victory, are spreading war propaganda through the motion pictures were laid before a Senate subcommittee yesterday by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota.

With isolationists in full control of a major Congressional hearing for the first time since the war began, Nye held the stand for four hours to denounce a score of movies which, he said, "have served to drive some Americans under their very beds for fear of Hitler and his minions."

The North Dakotan was the first witness to appear before a subcommittee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in its hearings on a resolution calling for Congressional investigation of charges that the movies are being used to push the United States into war.

His testimony was promptly condemned by Wendell Willkie, counsel for the motion-picture industry, as an attempt "to divide the American people into discordant racial and religious groups" and to force the industry "to stop producing accurate and factual pictures on Nazism."

The inquiry got under way with many of the trimmings of a Hollywood "first night," a battery of cameramen at work, autograph-

Truck Strikers And Companies To Meet Today

2 More Railroads Clamp Embargo on Freight to Capital

A further effort to end the trucking strike which has tied up delivery of virtually all railroad-shipped miscellaneous goods into the District will be made at 10 a. m. today when representatives of striking drivers and trucking companies meet at the Washington Hotel with Labor Conciliator Frank J. Sheehan.

An attempt at negotiating a settlement also is planned today by Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee.

He said yesterday he was seeking the cooperation of Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate District Committee, in bringing the disputants together.

Delivery of rail shipments to the Federal and District Governments has not been affected by the railroads' embargo of miscellaneous goods, freight officials stated. Government trucks are handling their own orders from the freight yards, they said.

3 Roads Order Embargo

Three railroads, the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, yesterday placed an embargo on "less" carloads—cars carrying miscellaneous freight—into Washington. The Baltimore & Ohio ordered stoppage on the same type of shipment Monday. The Southern Railroad is expected to follow the four other lines in the embargo move if a strike settlement is not reached today.

Railroad officials emphasized that there has been no stoppage of full carload shipments of goods ordered by concerns in the District. Since most of Washington's foodstuffs are lacing strong emphasis on expanding defense activities here and the urgent need for greater public protection, the Police and Fire Departments have requested a combined sum of $6,754,510 for operating expenses during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, the Commissioners reported yesterday.

The Police Department estimate was $4,111,830—an increase of $393,297 or about 16 per cent more than the current appropriation.

The Fire Department asked for $2,642,680—an increase of $272,635 or approximately 11 per cent.

To provide the "security to which the public is entitled," the Police Department requested that 250 additional privates at $1900 a year be added. Legislation already is pending to give the city 100 new officers.

Population Growth Cited

Citing the ever increasing population and automobile registration, the department's report stated it has become "next to impossible to handle the work of the department efficiently with the present force."

Simple Rites in Churchyard

Tears Fill President's Eyes At Burial of His Mother

By Amy Porter
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Sara Delano Roosevelt was buried today behind a little country church while her only son, the President of the United States, blinked away his tears.

Slanting rays of a late afternoon sun picked out the simple mahogany casket. The coffin head was laid to the west in keeping with the belief that on resurrection day the arising dead should face the rising sun.

While the Rev. Frank R. Wilson conducted simple Episcopal rites at the family burial plot in St. James' churchyard, . . . "O Lord, support us all the day long, until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes" . . .The President, tense, face immobile, looked downward.

He never looked toward the grave as the casket, brightened with a single spray of assorted flowers, was lowered, nor did he return an anxious glance cast his way by his wife.

The President and 11 other members of the Roosevelt family stood in a silent semicircle at the foot of the grave, while Mr. Wilson read the solemn words:

"Unto Almighty God we commend the soul of our sister departed, and we commit her body to the ground, earth to earth, ashes

100,000 Nazis Put to Rout, Russians Say

Greatest Victory Of War Is Claimed On Central Front; Air Battles Furious

All Their Might

GERMANS say Leningrad, surrounded, is being attacked with every military means and should fall "in a reasonable space of time." Page 2.

Biggest Victory

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), Sept. 10.—The Red army's biggest victory of the war, on the central front where shattered remnants of a 100,000-man Nazi force are reported in disordered retreat, drew from an official Soviet spokesman today the declaration that "the impending rout of all the German armies can already be discerned."

In confident and expansive mood, S. A. Lozovsky, assistant foreign commissar who serves as liaison with the foreign press, said this vast operation, plus the unending counterattacks by the Russians before Odessa and the determined stand of Leningrad's defenders were "signs of growing Red army resistance."

Air War Furious

"Our confidence in final victory is growing," he added.

[Soviet observers intimated the Russians may recapture Smolensk, if the Germans don't receive sufficient assistance quickly, the United Press reported.]

The Soviet information bureau, reporting on yesterday's fighting, fell back on its usual brief statement that stubborn battles still raged along the entire front.

It emphasized the fury of the air war with the announcement that on Sunday 71 German planes were destroyed in combat and on the ground against 24 Russian losses.

[Moscow had two air alarms last night and early today, but an official communique said that Soviet antiaircraft batteries and night fighters scattered the German raiders outside the city, shooting down one. It was the second successive night German raiders attempted to bomb the city, the United Press reported.]

The victorious Soviet forces on the central front, under the personal direction of Marshal Timoshenko, were declared in hot pursuit of survivors of the German forces. Here the Russians were reported officially to have reconquered 150 square miles of territory and 50 villages in two days.

Rain and cold which already have set in on the northern front, Lozovsky said, "is only a contributing factor" to the defeat of the Germans.

Blow to Whole Nazi Army

"The main thing is," he added, "that the might of the Red army, the unity of the Soviet people, reserves of manpower and industry are great potentialities not only for resistance but also for counter-blows."

The blow delivered against the Germans thrusting toward Moscow

U. S. Suspects All-Out Sub War; Churchill Asks More Navy Aid; American, Japan Accord Near

Cheerful Review Given to Commons; Britain's Position Declared Improved

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 9.—Winston Churchill expressed the wish today that American naval forces already endlessly patrolling the Atlantic approaches to the Western Hemisphere might be of even "greater help" to the British in the battle for that ocean of destiny.

At the same time, describing the Allied front as running now in a vast arc from Spitzbergen in the Arctic to Tobruk in the western desert of Africa, he promised without amplification that "adequate naval power will be at hand" to hold the Atlantic and Indian Ocean routes of supply against Axis attack.

The struggle for the Atlantic dominated the Prime Minister's comprehensive review before the House of Commons—a review that was essentially cheerful although he warned that Hitler might soon change tactics and engage the United States naval forces in those waters—but he ranged, too, from the Russian front to the now inactive theater in Libya.

As to Libya, he announced that powerful new British reinforcements had reached the Army of the Nile and now stood ready to defeat a German invasion of Egypt.

British Position Improves

As to Russia, he declared that its "magnificent resistance" already had cost the Germans more blood in three months than they lost in any year of the World War; that Hitler already was facing the necessity of having to maintain his forces from the Arctic to the Black Sea "with precarious lines of communication through all the severities of the Russian winter and the vigorous counter-strokes that may be expected of the Russian armies."

Still, he said, the Soviet's need for supplies was urgent since "a considerable part of the munitions industry and the iron and steel production of Russia has fallen into the hands of the enemy," and thus Britain herself must expect some reduction in the American aid upon which she had counted to permit its diversion to the Soviet.

End Not in Sight

"If the United States are to fulfill the task they are setting themselves," he remarked, "large installations will have to be set up or converted and there will have to be a further curtailment of civilian consumption over there."

Of the long and bitter combat in the Atlantic, Churchill reported an enormous improvement in the British position, saying that largely through the development of new tactics British and Allied shipping

Tokyo May Veer From Axis; Privy Council Approves Talks

Announcement Expected This Week On Tentative Plan

By the United Press

Shanghai (Wednesday), Sept. 10.—The Japanese Privy Council has approved recent negotiations with the United States and it is expected that Washington and Tokyo will announce this week conclusion of a preliminary agreement aimed at complete rapprochement, reliable diplomats heard here today.

They warned, however, that this was subject to a last-minute hitch arising from reported army pro-Axis opposition.

Diplomats anticipated that the Washington and Tokyo announcements would be most conservative, in view of the difficult nature of the problems involved.

These sources said, however, that the expected agreement, it was hoped, would make possible:

1. Eventual Japanese withdrawal from the Tripartite (Axis) pact.

2. Withdrawal of substantial American naval forces from the Pacific, permitting their use in the Atlantic.

3. The opening of the Vladivostok route to a flow of American war supplies to Russia.

These sources said the Japanese announcement that Tokyo soon would send a new ambassador to

The United States and Japan were reported last night to be nearing an agreement on general problems of the Pacific as the result of negotiations which have been carried on secretly during the past several weeks.

According to information obtained in usually reliable quarters here negotiations between the two governments which have been carried on both in Tokyo and here were understood to be nearing a breakdown at the end of last week but to have taken a new turn over the weekend and have given officials here the hope that a settlement may be reached.

The negotiations are understood to have taken place mainly between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese Ambassador, who are known to have met privately outside the State Department on several occasions. President Roosevelt has also taken an active part in the discussions which reached a climax two weeks ago when the Japanese envoy presented a personal message from Premier Fumimaro Konoye of Japan to President

Steps to War

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States faced last night what some high officials suspected were German orders to sink on sight any American vessel engaged in aid to Britain.

Although there was no official proof that Germany has opened unrestricted sea warfare, the State Department received word yesterday of the sinking en route to Iceland of an American-owned, American-operated freighter flying the flag of Panama. Disclosure of the torpedoing of this ship, the 1700-ton freighter Sessa, was the third announcement of an attack at sea affecting American interests within a week.

Southwest of Iceland

Twenty-four crew members, including one American, were presumed lost on the Sessa. The Navy rescued three survivors last Saturday, who said their ship had been sent to the bottom August 17.

The one missing American member of the Sessa crew was identified by the Maritime Commission as W. Mohammad, a radio operator, who lived here at 1210 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest until two months ago when he moved to New York City.

The torpedoing took place 300 miles southwest of Iceland, in the Nazi-defined blockade zone where Germany threatens to sink on sight ships of any nationality. It was in the same blockade zone, 150 miles west of Iceland, that a German U-boat last Thursday attacked the U. S. destroyer Greer. President Roosevelt does not recognize the existence of a German blockade in this area, which is not within the combat zone defined by him under the American Neutrality Act.

Tension Increases

The sinking of the Sessa appeared to be a fresh challenge to President Roosevelt's pledge to keep open the sea lanes to Iceland. Officials were confident that the President would answer the challenge in his world-wide radio address tomorrow night.

Word of the fate of the Sessa followed by less than a day disclosure that the Steel Seafarer, an American freighter flying this country's flag, had been sunk in the Red Sea on the

Expeditionary Force Formed By Army, Navy

Gen. Smith, of Marines, To Head Atlantic Amphibious Unit

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Naval officials yesterday disclosed the establishment of a new joint military command designated as the Atlantic Amphibious Force, to provide a strong unit instantly ready for expeditionary force duty anywhere in the Atlantic.

It consists of the First Marine division, First Marine aircraft wing, First base depot at Charleston, S. C., and assigned Army troops. All men in the unit have been particularly trained in landing force operations—dangerous tactics under which hostile shores are attacked by troops landed by small boats launched from warships and transports.

The new force is an outgrowth of the joint Army-Navy-Marine Corps maneuvers held last month on the coast of North Carolina. It was established as a regularly organized expeditionary unit as the result of the lessons learned in the temporary set-up employed during the exercises.

The First Army division took part in the maneuvers and similar exercises in the Caribbean earlier in the year. As one of the few Army units trained in landing force operations, presumably it would be the "assigned Army troops" constituting part of the Atlantic Amphi-

FBI Worked Gestapo Radio, Spy Trial Told

Nazis Outwitted For More Than Year by G-Men

By W. W. Chaplin
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 9.—The vaunted espionage agents of the Nazi Gestapo, it was testified in Federal court today, have been so outwitted by American G-men that for the past year and a half a radio station over which espionage messages were transmitted to and from Germany has been operated by an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Carefully "doctored" information concerning the American defense program, intentionally false and misleading, was fed to the Gestapo over this "secret" channel and in turn German spy chiefs sent back valuable information and instructions for German spies, all of which was placed in the FBI files.

The sensational story, highlight of the trial of 16 alleged German spies, was told by William G. Sebold, German-born naturalized American who was forced into the Gestapo service under threats of death, and who worked as a "German spy" with the knowledge and cooperation of the FBI.

Sebold's importance as star witness in the spy trial is indicated by the fact that not only does he carry a pistol for self-protection, but seven armed G-men keep him under guard night and day, no photographs or even sketches of him are

Navy to Challenge All Ships Entering Chesapeake Bay

The Navy announced yesterday that a control post had been established at Cape Henry, Va., to challenge all ships entering or leaving the Chasapeake Bay.

A "notice to mariners" disclosed the establishment of the ship sentinel and declared that "all vessels entering or leaving the entrance to Chesapeake Bay are required to answer signals from this station."

Officials said that such a guard has not been in force at the Capes since the World War.

Business Not as Usual

Britain Reaches Pact With U. S. To Cut Her Exports Drastically

By James B. Reston.
Copyright by New York Times

The United States and Great Britain have reached a comprehensive agreement under which the British government has agreed to drastic reductions in its export trade for the duration of the war. Details of the agreement are expected to be announced simultaneously in London and Washington today.

The object of the agreement, which has been the subject of conversations for more than two months, is to regulate competition between American and British companies in the export market, and to remove the suspicion that the British have been using materials obtained from this country under the Lease-Lend Act to compete unfairly against American exporters in the markets of the world.

By signing the agreement, the United States has accepted the principle that Great Britain must continue to be able to maintain about two-thirds of its normal export trade in order to bring in essential dollar exchange for purchase of materials that cannot be obtained in the United States.

Coincidentally, the British government under the terms of the new pact has undertaken to limit its exports to the very minimum necessary to enable that country to continue with its war effort.

British steel exports are expected to be cut to about 40 per cent of pre-war level under the terms of the agreement, but British exporters will still be able to maintain a limited trade in Latin America, for example, where most of the friction between American and British exports has arisen.

Britain's trade with Argentina serves as the best illustration of the Anglo-American export problem and of the new agreement.

To feed her army and her people in an island that is far from self-sufficient, the British government had to buy vast quantities of meat from Argentina. This meat was not available from the United States and had to be purchased with dollars, since Argentina is in the dollar exchange area.

Before the Lease-Lend Act was passed, however, Britain had spent more than one billion dollars of her dollar exchange in this country, and it was necessary for her to export her textile and whatever else she

Orders to Shoot Forecast

Roosevelt May Announce Broader Naval Patrol Policy

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt tomorrow is expected on Capitol Hill to announce a broader and tighter American naval patrol policy to safeguard United States shipping and keep open the sea route to Iceland.

Some usually well-informed legislators expressed belief that Mr. Roosevelt's reply to the torpedo attack on the U. S. destroyer Greer will be orders to shoot at the least menacing gesture from hostile craft in the North Atlantic.

A serious view of recurrent Axis interference with American and hemispheric ship traffic to Iceland and the Near East meanwhile was taken at the Capitol.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, ranking member and former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the Greer incident, followed by sinking enroute to Iceland of the freighter Sessa operated by an American company under Panama registry, and sinking of the American freighter Steel Seafarer in the Red Sea, "shifts interest back to the European front."

"A repetition of these incidents, if they indicate a change of policy by Germany to intercept American shipping to Iceland, will tend to bring us closer to a final declaration of policy," said George.

George said he did not care to comment beyond that until he was more fully advised of details on the

Leningrad Suffers Nazis' Worst Blows

War's Sidelights

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Sept. 9.—The first American to be missing as a result of British air raids on Berlin was reliably reported tonight. He is Sergt. W. R. Malkemus, 20, of Knoxville, Tenn. Malkemus, who was tall and dark and known particularly for his gaiety by the members of the R. A. F. bomber squadron to which he belonged, was listed as missing after last Sunday night's heavy British raid on the Nazi capital, in which the German defense accounted for 20 of the R. A. F. bombers.

It could not be confirmed tonight whether Malkemus was pilot of the bomber or simply a member of the crew.

Nazis Get 'Must' Order

London (Wednesday), Sept. 10 (INS).—The Soviet victory on the central front and Axis failure to make headway in the siege of Odessa were declared in a Daily Mail dispatch from Stockholm today to have impelled Adolf Hitler to issue the following order to his northern commander, Field Marshal August von Leeb:

"Leningrad must be taken quickly at all costs. The German armies you command are needed for other immediate tasks."

As a result, the dispatch said, "hundreds" of Luftwaffe dive bombers throughout Tuesday and all night "continuously attacked Leningrad and its defenses, completely disregarding losses in planes and personnel."

Losses May Stop R. A. F.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Royal Air Force may be forced to discontinue its daylight bombings of Germany and German-held territories because of the increasing losses in war planes and aviators, according to Vincent Sheean, author and correspondent, who arrived here today aboard the Yankee Clipper.

"I was told," Mr. Sheean said, "that England lost 293 bombers and fighters—mostly bombers—on the Western Front last month. Similar losses caused the Germans to curtail their own blitzkrieg over England."

Berlin Denies Sinking Order

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 9.—The Germans warned again tonight that all ships in Axis-declared war zones are subject to attack "regardless of nationality" and indicated that either an Italian or German plane sank the American freighter Steel Seafarer in the Red Sea Friday night.

A spokesman said, however, that "it is beyond discussion that there should be any general order to attack American ships."

Since the Red Sea has long been considered a war zone by the Axis, he said, no one should be surprised that the Steel Seafarer was sunk there. He pointed out the the 5719-ton vessel was lost while en route to Suez, presumably with lease-lend supplies for the British.

President Roosevelt's all clear signal April 11, lifting the ban on American vessels in the area, was described by the Germans as "premature." Some termed the Seafarer's appearance in the Red Sea a "provocation," like the incidents involving the U. S. destroyer Greer and the merchantmen Robin Moor and Zamzam.

"Incorrigible warmongers wanted the United States to wage a sea war without declaring war," said the Hamburger Fremdenblatt.

There was no immediate comment on a Washington announcement that a supply ship, the Sessa, en route to Iceland was sunk by Torpedo August 17.

Bombs and Artillery Pound Mercilessly At Heart of City

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 9.—The great city of Leningrad, surrounded and isolated from the rest of Russia, is being attacked by every military means at Germany's command and "should be taken within a reasonable space of time," authorized Nazi sources declared tonight.

Both the high comand and accounts of authoritative commentators told of bombs and shells from the massed might of German air and artillery forces pounding relentlessly into the heart of the city.

By all German accounts, the plight of the old capital of Peter the Great grew more desperate with each passing hour.

Its 3,200,000 people are unable even to keep their industrial facilities in operation because the plants are under "continuous fire," said Dienst aus Deutschland, authoritative German commentary service.

Regiment Crosses River

The high command told of the final encirclement, crediting it to "speed divisions of the German army, excellently supported by air force combat units." These troops reached the Neva River east of Leningrad on a broad front, Adolf Hitler's headquarters said, and then a single infantry regiment pushed across the river and captured Schluesselburg, on Lake Ladoga, 21 miles east of the main objective.

This cinched the encirclement, German commentators declared, pointing out that the name Schluesselburg means "key city" in German and that Peter the Great renamed the old fortress that when he built Leningrad, realizing that it was in truth the key to his capital's defense.

They said the success of the entire maneuver was being bolstered and assured by the constantly active squadrons of German bombers, both Stukas and level-flight types.

Troops Bombed Along Lake

"Armament and supply facilities" of Leningrad are the particular objectives of the air raiders, the high command said.

The Germans also bombed Russian airports and troop concentrations along the shores of Lake Ladoga.

D. N. B., official news agency, said a German pursuit squadron yesterday shot down 16 Russian bombers of the Martin type within 15 minutes. The location was not disclosed.

The mere cutting off of Leningrad, German military correspondents, declared, has made the Russian Arctic port of Murmansk useless, since its railway line runs to Leningrad and it therefore is without a land route for food and supplies.

Far to the south, on the shore of the Black Sea, another encirclement continued in force against Odessa.

The German and Rumanian forces which have surrounded that port for a month reported the Russians were trying localized counterattacks but that the siege still held.

On the central front, military commentators said more than 4000 Russians were taken prisoner and 238 Russian tanks and 102 guns were destroyed or captured in fighting northeast of Roslavl, which is 60 miles southeast of Smolensk.

The numerically superior Russian forces made an attack which was repulsed; then a German counterattack broke into the Soviet lines with deadly effect, they said.

Make Equal Claims

[This is the same general area where the Russians said they had smashed eight German divisions who still were fleeing westward toward Smolensk. Oddly, each side claimed the same number of cannon captured—102.]

The German commentators said another 2000 Russians were captured and 40 guns destroyed or captured in a series of small skirmishes farther south.

Thirty-eight guns and six tanks were captured from the Russians Monday in the east, it was added.

Position Grave, Stalin Says, Asks More Allied Aid

London, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Premier Joseph Stalin in a recent conversation with Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador to Moscow, described the Russian position as grave and urged an immediate increase in American and British deliveries of armaments and other supplies to Russia, it was reported here tonight.

Stalin's allusion to the gravity of the Russian position and his reference to various military eventualities were said to have made a considerable impression on government circles in London.

It is understood that Stalin reaffirmed the pledge contained in the Anglo-Soviet alliance that Russia never would conclude a separate armistice or peace with Germany.

U. S. Freighter Sunk

night of September 5 by an aerial bomb.

The announcements added to the tension in German-American relations that was caused by the attack on the Greer.

Officials who feared that the sinkings followed a Nazi-made pattern marking a new policy of sinking American vessels without warning on the high seas, pointed to this evidence:

The Government has now received information that the U-boat which attacked the Greer fired "blind," that is after taking only sound bearings and without determining what kind of ship it was firing at. Latest information was that the submarine released its torpedo without surfacing or without using its periscope.

President Roosevelt, discussing the Greer incident at a press conference last Friday, said that the U-boat commander could easily have identified the Greer as an American warship if he had taken the trouble to look at it through his periscope. The vessel, said he, was plainly marked with the Stars and Stripes.

Officials interpreted the dive-bomber attack on the Steel Seafarer in the Red Sea as deliberate. It was disclosed here and in Cairo that the freighter, owned by the Isthmus Steamship Lines, was fully lighted. Floodlighted American flags flew from her stern and were painted on her sides. Belligerents' vessels are not lighted. Steel Seafarer was loaded with lend-lease supplies for the British forces, including arms and implements of war.

The fact that in the Sessa disaster only three of her crew of 27 were saved caused officials to say that the freighter was probably attacked suddenly and without warning, perhaps in the same manner as the assault on the Greer.

Roosevelt Speech Awaited

The evidence, pointing to a German attempt to "sweep the seas" of shipping that might help the British, led informed quarters to expect that President Roosevelt would answer with orders to the Navy to clear the German menace from the sealanes, along the lines of his orders that the Navy "eliminate" the submarine that fired on the Greer.

In the President's view, such orders to enforce his oftproclaimed policy of freedom of the seas would not require a declaration of war. He has explained to press conferences that the United States has from time to time been called on to eliminate "piracy" on the high seas.

Apart from renewed orders to the Navy to clear the sealanes, answering force with force, there were these other steps the President could take:

Ask Congress to authorize arming of merchant ships, which is now barred by the Neutrality Act.

Instruct the Navy to escort American vessels on the high seas.

The President, of course, could also ask Congress to amend the Neutrality Act to permit American ships to carry war cargoes directly into combat areas, but such a request was considered unlikely at this time.

Arming of merchant ships, said well-informed officials, would be likely to be given a trial before undertaking the more drastic step of convoys.

Start of unrestricted submarine warfare in the last war, proclaimed by Admiral von Tirpitz on February 1, 1917, led directly to American entry into the war. Diplomatic relations with Germany were severed two days later and on April 6 came the declaration that a state of war existed.

The State Department yesterday had not established the nationality of the submarine that fired a torpedo into the Sessa, but Secretary Hull told his press conference he had no doubt on that score.

The Sessa was a former Danish ship taken over by the Maritime Commission under the recent ship requisition law. The vessel was chartered by the commission to the Marine Operating Co. of New York, and later was transferred to Panamanian registry.

Several of the requisitioned ships have been transferred to foreign registry in order to permit them to enter combat zones that are barred to American ships. The Sessa, however, was not bound for a combat zone recoghized by the United States.

The cargo, said the State Department, consisted of foodstuffs, cereals, lumber and other general cargo all owned by the Icelandic government. It carried no munitions.

The Sessa sailed from New York August 7, was due in Iceland about 12 days later, and thus met her attacker about two days before her scheduled arrival.

The Steel Seafarer and the Sessa were the third and fourth American merchant ships to be sunk at sea in World War II. The first was the U. S. Lines' City of Rayville which struck a mine in Australian waters and sank November 8, 1940. The second was the Robin Moor, torpedoed, shelled and sunk in the South Atlantic last May 21 by a German submarine. All passengers and crew were saved after a fortnight's ordeal in open boats.

Roosevelt Blamed Reich

President Roosevelt told Congress that the Robin Moor sinking was "outrageous and indefensible." He blamed it squarely on Germany.

Charging that the German Reich was attempting to scare the United States out of its aid-to-Britain policy, the President then declared:

"We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield."

Officials said yesterday that, when the full facts are established about the Sessa and the Steel Seafarer incidents, protests will be prepared and dispatched to Germany, as in the case of the Robin Moor. For the present, however, the prime question is to consider means of combatting the menace to the American program of "delivering the goods" to Britain.

2 American Technicians Die in North Ireland

Londonderry, Northern Ireland, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Two American technicians employed by the British government on defense works in Northern Ireland died recently after illnesses and their bodies will be shipped to the United States for burial, it was revealed here today.

They were Dalmer Martell, 34, an oiler, of Arlington Mass., and Robert Burgess, 25, a welder, of New York.

Mothers of 2 Va. Men Saved From Bombed Ship Are Overjoyed

Joy, following uncertainty and a prediction of disaster by one of them, was expressed yesterday by the mothers of two Virginia members of the crew of the sunken Steel Seafarer and the Baltimore wife of the freighter's captain.

STARRETT

Mrs. Emma F. Starrett, 808 Prince Street, Alexandria, said she tuned into the middle of a news broadcast yesterday morning bringing her the news of the sinking but not the rescue and was "frantic" because her son, Richard Ferguson Starrett, 21, was aboard.

Only after a number of telephone calls did she learn of the rescue of young Starrett, son of the late Henry Prince Starrett, former American consul general in Italy.

The youth, a seaman on the Seafarer, graduated from Devitt Preparatory School in 1939. He joined the Merchant Marine after physical disability barred his enlistment in the Navy.

Mrs. Starrett had not seen her son since he sailed from New York July 14.

In Baltimore Mrs. Ellen Halliday, wife of Capt. John D. Halliday, told the Associated Press she had foretold the disaster prior to the freighter's sailing.

Mrs. Halliday, whose hobby is reading tea leaves, was drinking tea with her husband before he left Baltimore for New York to take command of the ship for the voyage to the Suez.

"What do you see on this trip," Mrs. Halliday said her husband inquired.

After studying the leaves she told the captain, "You'll never finish this trip . . . you'll never even get half way."

Mrs. Halliday said her husband is a native of Glasgow, Scotland, who ran away to sea as a youth. During the World War he was a lieutenant commander in the American Navy aboard the City of Mobile when that ship was blown up off the Azores. He was adrift for some time in a small boat before being picked up.

The second officer of the Steel Seafarer was Claude M. Henkel, 28, son of Mrs. Viola M. Henkel, of Winchester, Va. The mother, overjoyed at the announcement all hands had been saved, said: "I think everything will be all right because the Government usually takes good care of our boys."

Henkel has served five years in the Merchant Marine during which time he has been thrice around the world according to his mother. Always imbued with a love for the sea, he joined the Merchant Marine after graduating from Virginia Episcopal School at Lynchburg.

The son of a well-known Winchester businessman, Henkel served as third officer on the City of Birmingham of the Isthmian Line before his appointment as second officer aboard the bombed vessel.

'Go Jump in the Lake,' Wife Is Told; She Does

San Francisco, Sept. 9 (INS).—When Mrs. Lucille McDonald's husband told her at the climax of a domestic quarrel to "go jump in the lake," she took him literally, police reported tonight.

There wasn't any lake handy, but Mrs. McDonald followed instructions as closely as possible and jumped into the nearby Fourth Street Channel. She was rescued by passersby.

Seafarer Sank In 20 Minutes, Survivors Say

By the Associated Press

Suez, Egypt, Sept 9.—Twenty-four survivors of the American freighter Steel Seafarer, which was sunk Friday night by an unidentified warplane in the Red Sea, landed here this afternoon with the vividly detailed story of the attack.

They told of spending nearly 12 hours in rowboats and then 24 more hours on a rocky Red Sea island before a British warship rescued them. The other 12 of the crew were picked up by another British ship.

Tall Ruddy Robert Cartwright, Nantucket Island, Mass., the helmsman, said:

"It was 11:30 o'clock Friday night when it happened. The moon was full and we were steaming peacefully northward. Suddenly I heard a very heavy explosion to starboard and the ship rocked like we had struck a reef.

"Must Have Cut Off Engines"

"At the same time, I heard an airplane engine roar and saw a brown streak flash overhead.

"The plane must have cut off its engines, dived and then turned them on again as the bombs were dropped."

Ralph S. Pratt, of New York City, the tall, gray-haired first mate, said the Seafarer was sunk by a bomb or aerial torpedo which hit beneath the waterline. She sank within 20 minutes, Pratt said. All crewmen were able to get off in boats before the ship went down.

"I was asleep below when the ship was hit," Pratt said.

"A sound something like the crack of a rifle woke me up. A second later a very heavy explosion threw me out of my bunk. The washstand came out. Everything was topsy-turvy.

"I got one shoe on and couldn't find the other. I grabbed a slipper and rushed up on deck. While the crew was taking to the boats, I will say this for the German, he didn't machine-gun us afterwards as some of them have done. (The identification of the attacker as "German" was not amplified.)

"Capt. John Halliday, of Baltimore, was on the bridge with the third officer. He sounded the alarm immediately and the crew rushed to the decks, some of them in pajamas, some in nightshirts and some in shorts.

"Wasn't Much Time"

"There wasn't much time. The bomb or torpedo had plugged a hole under No. 4 hatch and we were beginning to sink fast.

"We got the first men up into two boats, launched them all right, then packed the remainder into a third.

"I remained aboard until the last with the captain and the first mate to see if there was a chance of saving her, but it was clear that nothing could be done. We pulled away and three minutes later her decks were awash."

Land was only 10 miles away but the sea was heavy, the currents were strong and it was 11 o'clock the next morning before the two boats reached the island. The first thing the captain did was to signal a passing ship to search for the third boat.

Twenty-four survivors and two boats remained at the island until 4 p. m. the next day when the British Navy rescued them.

"It wasn't so bad," said one crewman. "We had enough to eat and drink."

Few of the men were depressed by the sinking itself but all were concerned that the ship went down with her valuable cargo so close to her journey's end.

Several survivors came ashore from the rescue warship wearing dark blue British football pants. Others were outfitted in white naval jackets and shorts.

Called Deliberate

By the United Press

Aboard a British Warship, Sept. 9. A crewman of the Steel Seafarer said tonight that the bombing which sank hr in the Red Sea was a deliberate attack on an unarmed and unconvoyed vessel impossible of being mistaken for anything but a United States merchantman.

The American freighter was flying her colors, her nationality clearly distinguishable, when attacked, he said.

400,000 Tons of Coal And Great Stores of Oil Put to Torch

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 9.—Destruction of the Spitzbergen coal mines and the burning of great coal and oil reservoirs by Royal Canadian engineers was confirmed tonight when British authorities, without explanation, lifted a ban against mentioning the extent of the demolition operations.

An eyewitness corrospondent was permitted to report for the first time that five rich mining properties were rendered useless and that the torch was put to 400,000 tons of coal and 125,000 gallons of fuel oil.

The first announcement of the Spitzbergen foray had declared the prime aim of the venture was to keep the coal supply from covetous German hands.

Nazis Dismiss Move

[Berlin—Authorized sources declared they were informed the British had destroyed the mines and radio at Spitzbergen and "the Norwegian people who have been getting coal from Spitzbergen certainly will not like this."

[Otherwise the Germans dismissed the British - Canadian - Norwegian landing on the islands as "a typical prestige move."]

But while the full development of this aim was disclosed almost 24 hours after the initial announcement of the Arctic expedition, it was still not permissible to say whether any of the Canadian - British - Norwegian landing force had been left to garrison the archipelago.

The war office remained pointedly silent on that phase of the operation, but Prime Minister Churchill today placed Spitzbergen on the Allied front against Germany and there were unofficial predictions that the invasion was only a foretaste.

Machinery Removed

It would take months to make the mines useful again and the Canadian forces leading the expedition removed millions of dollars worth of essential machinery.

One fuel dump, containing 75,000 gallons of oil, burned for four hours like a mighty blowtorch when the Canadians touched it off. The flames roared a mile above a fjord and drums were blown into the sky like giant fireworks.

Expedition Brings Free French Back

London, Sept. 9 (AP).—Several French officers and men who escaped from Nazi prison camps more than a year ago and since have wandered forlornly through the hidden byways of Europe have been brought back to Britain by the Spitzbergen expedition and will join the Free French forces of Gen. De Gaulle.

Details of their adventures and of how they met the Canadian force which rescued them were shrouded by censorship, but this much was made known:

The Frenchmen were captured by the Germans during the Flanders campaign.

"We made our escape from German camps in dribbles and met later," said a young officer who once worked in a Paris business office.

"We knew how the war was going and about the Vichy situation, and we all vowed to join the Free French and fight on against the Nazis."

"A Second Life"

With tears of joy the ragged, bearded men recognized the British ship and went out to meet it.

Some leaned from their small boats to caress the warship's sides. A few tried to sing "God Save the King," but choked with emotion.

The Canadians who occupied Spitzbergen gave the French some Canadian boots and uniforms to replace the civilian rags they wore.

Stroking his new shirt, a captain who once commanded a tank battalion exclaimed:

"For 14 months we were dead men; now Canada and Britain have given us a second life.

"It is said that a man always has two fatherlands — his own and France. I say we now have two fatherlands—France and Britain."

Others joined in exclamations over the food they had eaten after so many months of hunger.

U. S. Survivor Tells How Sub Trailed Doomed Ship for Day

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 9.—The vessel on which four American recruits for the R.A.F. were killed recently was trailed for more than a day by the attacking submarine, one of the seven survivors disclosed here tonight.

The survivor, Jim Jordan, of Pasadena, Calif., also disclosed for the first time the names of the four who lost their lives. They were: Harry Hay, Talahassee, Fla.; William Bishop, Cleveland, Ohio; Frank Kruszynski, whose address was unknown to Jordan, and a youth whose last name was Cox, from New York City.

"The last two didn't train with me," Jordan said, "but I got to know them on the boat."

Begs to Bomb Sub

Jordan, who like the four fliers was trained in Canada for R.A.F. duty, donned his uniform today and begged for a plane to bomb the submarine that took the life of his four companions.

"Boy," he said, sticking out his jaw, "I saw those fellows die. I want to do something about them."

The survivors reached a British port Friday, and their names were made public the following day, but few details of the torpedoing became known to the public until Jordan told his story tonight. Here it is:

"We realized one morning that we were being trailed by a submarine. That didn't worry us much, but later in the day our engine broke down. We worked on it—all 11 American boys—for 16 hours.

"The broken engine reduced our speed from 16 knots to seven. That's a hell of a feeling when you know a submarine is after you. Anyhow, we chugged along zig-zagging and twisting for another day.

Attacked by Plane

"The next day there was a fog and the first thing we knew out the fog came a plane. It machine-gunned us, turned a cannon on us and dropped a bomb or two. The bomb didn't hit us but the machine-gun and the cannon surely knocked us about.

"Along about dusk subs closed in on us. We could even see their periscopes. They would come up, then duck down and then come up again.

"I saw one very close. I ran and got the captain, and just then there was an awful bang and a mess of black smoke and spray. We were hit all right, and began listing to port.

"We were so badly hit that we couldn't stop our engine. She just kept going 'round and 'round. The machine guns and the cannon had banged up both our lifeboats so we began throwing off rafts.

"I threw one off and then slid down the side of the ship after it. I got caught in a flock of ropes and swung out from the side of the boat. Then I swung back and bounced off the boat. I reckon that saved my life.

Propellor Chopped Up 20

"The others did the same thing. The listing boat began chasing us. I saw the ship's propeller cut into a bunch of them and about 20 fellows including seamen got chopped up.

"All this time the ship's whistle was screaming. I never knew there could be such a horrible noise in my life. And I never knew that men's screams could be heard above the whistle's scream. But they were. Later, I'm afraid, their screaming stopped."

Jordan said he and ten others clung to two rafts for 11½ hours. The submarine approached them once, he said.

"The sub gunner turned his gun on us," Jordan said. "I thought it was all up. Then the commander waved him aside. He later gave us some meat."

A Polish warship picked up the survivors. Thirty-seven of the ship's crew and passengers were lost.

Doughnuts Foil Bakery Bandit Seeking Dollars

Philadelphia, Sept. 9 (AP).—Jelly-filled doughnuts were the downfall today of a man attempting to rob a bakery at pistol point.

First Mrs. Pauline Kessler, 52 and spry for a grandmother, swung a bag of doughnuts and knocked the gun from his hand. Then her screams brought her husband from a rear room.

The bandit turned to flee, but slipped on a jelly-covered dunker and skidded feet first into a woman customer entering the front door. He was captured.

Japan Names Special Envoys To Indo-China

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Sept. 9.—The cabinet today appointed Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former foreign minister and trade delegate to Batavia, as special ambassador at large and Iwataro Uchiyama, former minister to Argentina, as special minister at large to French Indo-China.

Their mission, in the words of the newspaper Asahi, will be "to unify within the structure of the foreign office all Japanese political, economic and cultural organs in French Indo-China and lead these organs to negotiate with French Indo-China." This, says Asahi, "is a new way to conduct diplomatic negotiations with foreign countries."

Yoshizawa will make his headquarters in Hanoi, at the side of the French governor general. Uchiyama will be stationed at Saigon.

The Japanese press attaches the greatest importance to the appointments, which, it is held, further rivet French Indo-China to the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere. The announcement indicates the functions of the new ambassador and minister go far beyond ordinary diplomatic negotiations or even supervision and enforcement of the new economic pact concluded between Japan and Indo-China last May.

The new economic pact provides for participation of Japanese capital in agricultural, mining and hyraulic concessions in French Indo-China, establishment of Japanese schools and "examination of general economic questions between Japan and French Indo-China."

The Japan Times Advertiser claimed today, as an indication of the possibilities for self-sufficiency in the coprosperity sphere, that North China was producing this year under Japanese guidance 120 million piculs of wheat and between 2,500,000 and 3 million piculs of cotton. The cotton crop last year amounted to only 1,500,000 piculs. (A picul weighs 133⅓ pounds.)

British Sink 5 Axis Ships Including Destroyer, Damage 3 Others in Air, Naval Attacks

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 9.—British naval and aerial raiders reported tonight they had sunk five Axis ships, probably destroyed three more, damaged others, and pounded the locomotive works of the German city of Kassel in attacks stretching from the Arctic to Bengasi in the Mediterranean.

Four of the ships reported sunk were German, one Italian.

The four were a destroyer, an unidentified vessel, an armed trawler sunk by "light forces" operating under Rear Admiral P. L. Vian, D. S. O., against German convoys supplying troops on the Murmansk front against Russia, and a 4,000-ton German supply ship torpedoed in a "strongly escorted" convoy in the English Channel. The admiralty said a British submarine sank a large Italian schooner in the central Mediterranean.

In the Arctic battle, the German warship Bremse, 1460 tons, also was listed as probably sunk.

[The German high command acknowledged that the Bremse, described as a 1400-ton artillery cadet ship on convoy duty, had been lost after a short and fierce fight with the British.]

Still other ships were reported damaged in the battle.

Norwegian patrols joined the British in a running fight in the English Channel which accounted for the sinking of one supply ship and the probable sinking of another, and a German motor torpedo boat. An armed trawler was also reported set afire in the English Channel action.

Both supply ships were torpedoed in the English Channel when their convoy was sighted and attacked at midnight and followed until morning.

Nearly 100 R. A. F. planes pounded the locomotive workshops of Kassel. The air ministry said most of the planes got through to blast their targets and that Germany's heightened need for railway transportation for the Russian campaign gave the raid importance.

R. A. F. flyers also bombed Muenster and other objectives in western Germany and the docks at Cherbourg (German - occupied France), the air ministry said.

[The Germans reported civilian dead and wounded from British air raids on Kassel, which is 75 miles south of Hannover.]

In the Mediterranean a second British submarine was said by the admiralty to have attacked and hit two lighters off the harbor of Bengasi, chief port of Cirenaica, in Italian Libya. One was believed sunk.

Admitted British losses in all these attacks were four men wounded in the English Channel fighting and two airmen killed in an accident during the Kassel flight.

One German plane was reported downed overnight, German air activity over England being limited to single-plane dashes over coastal districts in eastern and southwest England. A few British casualties and minor damage were reported from these attacks.

Model Apologizes For Socking Policeman

New York, Sept. 9 (INS).—Patricia Garfield, socialite model, was meekness personified today when she oppeared in court to answer a charge of socking Patrolman Joseph Kelly during a street rally.

"I'm very sorry; I'm very, very sorry, and I apologize to Patrolman Kelly," said the pretty model.

Churchill Wants Greater U. S. Naval Aid

lost in July and August amounted to scarcely more than one-third the tonnage of the Axis losses, despite the fact that British shipping offers 10 to 20 times the number of targets.

Still, he said, the end was not in sight, adding:

"The Germans are much hampered on the American part of the Atlantic by fear of trouble with the powerful American naval forces which ceaselessly patrol the approaches to the Western Hemisphere. This has been a help to us, but I could wish it might be a greater help.

"The enemy's tactics may change. No doubt Hitler would rather finish off Russia and Britain before coming to close quarters with the United States.

"Hitler has, however, also the greatest possible need to prevent precious munitions supplies, now streaming across the Atlantic in pursuance of the policy of the United States Government, from reaching our shores.

"Should he do so, the area of danger zones will again become ocean-wide. Meanwhile, let us hear no vain talk of the Battle of the Atlantic having been won."

He spoke briefly, then, of his return by way of Iceland from the Atlantic meeting with President Roosevelt. In Iceland, he said, "very considerable United States and British naval and air forces are assembled."

The meeting, he said, resulted not alone in the familiar eight points but in agreements for British-American measures in aid of Russia and on a policy intended to "put a stop to further encroachments (by Japan) in the Far East."

Sums up British Hopes

Concluding his address, his first appearance before Commons since the Roosevelt conference, he thus summed up Britain's situation and hopes:

"The mood of Great Britain is widely and rightly averse from every form of shallow or premature exultation. This is not the time for boasting or glowing prophecies, but there is this: A year ago our position looked forlorn and well-night desperate to all eyes but our own. Today, we may say aloud before an awestruck world, 'we still are masters of our fate. We still are captains of our soul.'".

Churchill met in advance criticisms of the eight-point declaration subsequently delivered by two Conservative members of Parliament.

For he said that while he had always deprecated the formulation of peace or war aims at this stage, "a joint declaration by Great Britain and the United States of America is an event of a totally different nature.

"Although the principles in the declaration have long been familiar to the British and American democracies," he added, "the fact that it is a united declaration sets up a milestone or monument which needs only the stroke of victory to become a permanent part of the history of human progress."

M. P.'s Henry George Strauss and Maurice Petherick took a different view, however.

Strauss said the Atlantic charter was "an obviously predominant American document," and went on:

"Most of us would do a great deal for Anglo-American friendship, but one of the things we ought not to do is too readily to agree with the magniloquent general declaration of principles which . . . was put forward by a nation which made profound mistakes about Europe at the end of the last war and shows every sign of making similar mistakes at the present time."

Petherick said he doubted the wisdom of the document at such a time, and that after winning the war Britain "should not be in too much of a hurry to make peace."

Want to Find Dog's Owner? You Can, Day or Night

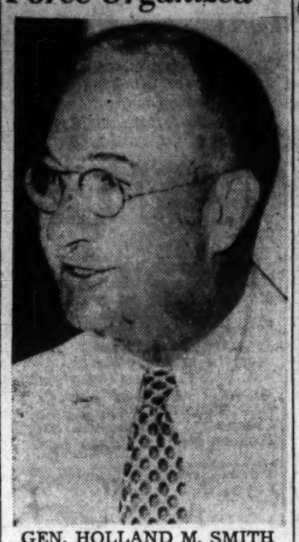
One now can learn the name and address of the owner of a lost dog bearing a current District license tag at any hour of the day or night, the Metropolitan Police Detective Bureau announced yesterday.

Information on the owner of a stray dog may be obtained from the Tax Collector's office at National 6000 from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday.

At other hours of the week the information now is available at the detective bureau at police headquarters, it was announced.

The new tracing service was made possible by a group of persons who subscribed to a sufficient number of lists of dog owners to warrant a free copy being provided for the police.

U.S. Expeditionary Force Organized



GEN. HOLLAND M. SMITH

bious Force in any expeditionary assignment.

Maj. Gen. Holland M. Smith, now at the Marine base, Quantico, Va., has been named commander of the force. It forms part of the Atlantic Fleet, commanded by Admiral Ernest J. King, and the ships for its transport and protection would come from the Atlantic Fleet.

Parachute troops are included in the First Marine division organization and might well take part in any landing operations attempted by this force. The division is now divided between Quantico, Va., and Parris Island, S. C., but most units are expected to move to the new Marine base at New River, N. C., this month.

Gen. Smith, who has been in command of the division, is expected to keep the headquarters of the Atlantic Amphibious Force at Quantico, with Brig. Gen. Philip Torrey as commander of division at New River. Most of the First Marine Aviation Wing is based at Quantico, although a new air station is to be constructed near the North Carolina base.

Smith Served in France

Smith is a 59-year-old Marine who has spent a large part of his 35 years in the Corps on expeditionary force duty. After his apointment as a second lieutenant in 1905, he served in the Philippines, Panama and Santo Domingo. He participated in uprisings in the latter country in 1916-17, before going to France with the Fourth Marine brigade.

Overseas, Gen. Smith was in most of the battles involving American troops and received the Croix de Guerre. After the war, he served in Haiti and was the Fleet Battle Force Marine Officer. From 1933 to 1935, he commanded the Marine barracks here, and from 1937 to 1939 was director of operations and training and for a time assistant commandant at Marine Corps Headquarters.

28th Division Executes Result Of Paper Work

A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Twenty-eighth Division went on an administrative march today to determine the ability of the division to execute march orders on terrain after they had been planned on paper.

The division marched south from the reservation in two columns, one composed of units of the Fifty-fifth Infantry Brigade plus special engineers and part of the 103rd Medical Regiment, marching from Samuels Corner at 8 a. m. by way of Route 17 to Tappahannock. Thence it marched along the Richmond Highway to St. Stephens' Church, where bivouac for the night was established.

The other column was the Fifty-sixth Infantry Brigade, the 103rd Quartermasters Regiment, medical and engineer detachments and the Fifty-third Field Artillery brigade. The column took Route 2 and 14 from Villboro over to the bivouac area at St. Stephens. General plans called for the division to spend at least 12 hours in the bivouac area at which time it will be given a new situation by the Second Army Corps.

The men were moved by 1800 motor vehicles operating in shuttle formation along the 55 miles from the reservation to St. Stephens.

FBI Worked Gestapo Radio, Spy Trial Told

allowed to be made in the courtroom, and as soon as each session is over he is whisked away to an FBI hideout.

He was a machinegunner in the German army in the World War.

Sebold said that he visited Germany in 1939 and was forced into accepting service with the Gestapo. He was given full instructions by a Dr. Rankin, whom the prosecution has identified as Nikolaus Adolf Fritz Ritter, a Gestapo official. He was trained as a spy, he said, taught the use of codes, given the names of four persons to contact in America, and furnished $1000 with which to establish a short wave radio station "somewhere near New York."

All this he did with the knowledge of the American consul at Cologne, to whom he had appealed for advice as to how he might avoid spying againts the country of his adoption. When he landed back in America in February, 1940, he was met by agents of the FBI and State Department, who outlined the course he was to follow.

A radio station was set up in April of that year at Centerport, Long Island, and it was manned by M. H. Price, an FBI agent. Since then, Sebold testified, between 200 and 300 messages have been sent or received from Germany over that station.

FBI Guided Spying

"How long has that station been operated?" the prosecutor asked.

"Until right now," Sebold replied.

Sebold said he was placed on the FBI pay roll at $50 a week and was guided in all his "spying" by agents of that Federal Bureau. They even helped him draft letters which in accordance with his instructions from the Gestapo he sent to a "spy drop" in Shanghai named Wang.

Sebold said that while he was in Germany "Dr. Rankin" asked him if he knew anuthing about the secret American Norden bomb sight He testified he had never heard of the key secret device, but in order to make an impression he offered to get the entire secret for the Gestapo.

"Don't worry about it," he quoted the Gestapo official as saying, "we are already in possession of it."

Federal Attorney Harold Kennedy said in his opening statement yesterday that Herman Lang, one of the defendants, had smuggled details of the Norden sight to Germany in 1938, having obtained them as an inspector for the Carl L. Norden Co.

Microfilm Instructions

Kennedy had Sebold identify several microfilms today as secret instructions given him by the Gestapo in Germany. Tiny dots on them turned out under enlargement to be 50-word messages. One of them told him to get in touch with Lng, who was to return to Germany immediately by way of Siberia, with Fritz Duquesne, Everett Roeder and Lilly Stein.

Duquesne, a professional spy, like Lang, is one of the defendants in the present trial. Roeder, a former employe of the Spery Gyroscope Co., manufacturers of America's number two secret bomb sight now being used in action by the British, and Miss Stein, a beautiful model, have both pleaded guilty in advance of trial.

Like other Gestapo spies, Sebold said, he was given a particular book for working out code messages from Germany. His book was the American best seller "All This and Heaven Too."

President May Announce Tighter Patrol

sinkings. But he declared it obvious that American sentiment would be more fully aroused at each repetition. He said he was not convinced as yet that Germany had so changed her policy.

Another member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, similarly voiced doubt that Germany sought any showdown in the North Atlantic, or would seek it unless she were "desperate." He pointed out that the Atlantic fleet is under instructions now to "eliminate" the submarine that attacked the Greer, and that might mean any Axis submarine that appears in the area.

Nor did Thomas go along with the view theat the Greer, Sessa and Steel Seafarer incidents were intended to stiffen Japan's Axis adherence. Thomas, the committee's Far Eastern expert, said he believed this country's crisis with Japan has been passed. He predicted Nippon will ultimately break entirely away from the Axis.

One influential Administration Senator, who declined to be quoted, said no one knew Germany's North Atlantic intentions and cited lack of evidence as yet that the Axis intends to risk war with this country by seeking further trouble on the Icelandic route. In the event it did, he said there would certainly be clashes with the American patrol, now keeping open the lane to the island, occupied by American troops on Iceland's invitation. Repeated sinkings, particularly on this route, he said, could only lead toward a final break, and Germany should know that.

"Casual" Incidents

Possibility that the North Atlantic incidents might have been "casual" and not part of any systematic campaign in that area was seen in the fact that the Sessa was torpedoed August 17, nearly three weeks before the Greer encounter, and that the Sessa was flying a Panamanian flag.

Connally Sees Hull

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who has adopted the policy of daily contact with the State Department, conferred yesterday with Secretary of State Hull.

Connally withheld comment on the Sessa and Steel Seafarer sinkings and on British Prime Minister Churchill's warning that Hitler might force naval warfare on the United States.

Like Secretary Hull, several Senators interviewed declined to discuss implications from the sinkings pending receipt of fuller information.

Japan Trade Loss 'Won't Hurt U. S.'

Full Stoppage Will Have Little Effect, Experts Agree

Complete cessation of trade with Japan, the Tariff Commission reported yesterday, will not cause any "appreciable" interference with the national defense program.

A full stoppage of imports, the commission added, would have only slight effect on United States economy as a whole and would have no effect on the national health.

These were the major conclusions of an exhaustive study of this country's trade relations with Japan, which virtually ceased after President Roosevelt froze Japanese credits in the United States on July 26.

The Tariff Commission study was based on figures through May. It covered 89 import classifications, including around 90 per cent of the total value of purchases from Japan, which amounted to $52,461,000 during the first five months of this year, a drop of $4,979,000 from the corresponding 1940 period.

Some Benefits, Too

Among the other conclusions were these:

1. Certain domestic industries which have been using Japanese imports, particularly the full-fashioned hosiery industry, would be adversely affected, but certain others which produce competitive articles, such as fish canneries and electric lamp manufacturers would be benefited.
2. "The public interest might require that the Federal Government take measures both to facilitate readjustments in the few industries which would be most seriously affected, and to prevent any unwarranted increase of prices. . . ."
3. Present users of silk hosiery would be the principal consumer interest affected.
4. Consumers of such semi-luxury Japanese products as crab meat, sword fish and mink furs, constitute only a small fraction of the population and are regarded as able to purchase substitutes "without appreciable hardship."
5. Consumers of low-priced Japanese made articles, such as cotton manufactures, hat bodies, slide fasteners, chinaware and electric lamps, would generally be obliged either to curtail consumption or buy higher priced substitutes, but in some instances would be benefited by superior quality.

Freight Car Shortage Seen by Fall

A critical transportation shortage this fall, perhaps reaching a deficit of 40,000 freight cars a week, was forecast yesterday by the National Planning Association, a local economic research organization comprised of outstanding Government and labor officials and headed by William L. Batt, Philadelphia industrialist who is director of the OPM materials division.

In a pamphlet made public yesterday, the association declared that peak demand for freight cars this fall, when the harvest is being moved, may run as high as 1,020,000 or 1,030,000 cars, while estimates of peak capacity indicate a supply of only 980,000 cars.

It said estimates by railroad circles that transportation would be adequate failed to take into consideration a series of unusual defense demands.

Complacency Blamed

In a sharply worded statement, the association declared that the explanation for the shortage is to be found in the "complacency" which has "characterized our defense experiences."

"If the transport services cope with the fall demand," the statement declared, "it will not be because this Nation's transportation system was organized to meet the requirements of an all-out defense effort, but rather because lack of planning and shortage elsewhere have held production below expectations."

The association said it is now too late to raly on addition of equipment to meet the prospective shortage, and that the temporary solution, if any, must come from increased efficiency of operations.

Increased Loads Urged

It recommended:

Increase in average load per car and lengthening average haul.

Prompt release of cars by shippers.

Pooling of less-than-carload traffic.

Shift of short-haul business to trucks.

Elimination of circuitous routes.

Conservation of motive power by stoppage of fast freight schedules, curtailment of excursion traffic and cancellation of non-essential passenger trains.

In passing reference to the defense program, of which the association has been sharply critical, the statement declared:

"Complacency followed by crisis; assurances of plenty followed by shortages, have characterized our defense experience. A year ago we were complacent about our supplies of steel and aluminum; today plants making civilian goods are being forced to shut down because of inability to secure raw materials, and even the production of military supplies is hampered."

15-Year-Old Son Of Executive Found Shot to Death

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 9 (AP).—Bruised and battered and with a bullet through the head, the body of 15-year-old Justin Potter, jr., was found today near a heavily traveled suburban highway.

He was reported missing late yesterday afternoon after he had ridden away from home on his bicycle. The youth's father, head of a large Nashville coal company, found the body crumpled against an abandoned well.

Deputy Sheriff Gus Kiger said the boy had committed suicide. From the well officers fished an old-fashioned revolver, tied to a rock. Kiger said the gun had been identified as belonging to a member of the youth's family.

Kiger said officers theorized the youth dropped the rock into the well and fired the gun which then was jerked into the well.

Doubled Arms Output Forecast

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Sept. 9.—The present rate of American defense production will be doubled in September and October, John D. Biggers, former director of the production division of the Office of Production Management, who was recently appointed by President Roosevelt American Minister to London in charge of synchronizing British and American defense production, asserted today before leaving aboard the Dixie Clipper for Lisbon.

Biggers said that mass operation is necessarily slow in starting but accelerates quickly.

"Our production is now moving up what you might say is a 30-degree incline. This month and next month it will begin to move on a 60-degree incline."

Nazis Again Tell Costa Rican Consuls to Leave

Berlin, Sept. 9 (AP).—The German government has advised Costa Rican consuls in Nazi-occupied zones their activity is "inadmissible."

[Costa Rica last week defied a German order to remove consular officials from occupied territory.]

An official German statement said:

"The government of Costa Rica, on the basis of argument entirely irrelevant to international practice, has not complied with requests of the Reich's government to close its consulates in occupied territories.

"Since, according to generally recognized regulations of the articles of war, lawful authority in occupied territories actually has passed to the occupation power, the Reich's government has advised Costa Rican consuls in territories belonging in the war zone that their official activity is inadmissible.

"It further is left to their discretion to surrender their archives to the consul-general of Costa Rica in Hamburg."

Court Orders G.O.P Man's Name on N.Y Mayoralty Ballot

New York, Sept. 9 (INS).—The Appellate Court Division late today upset Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora's decision and ordered the name of John R. Davies restored to the ballot in New York City's Republican mayoralty primaries scheduled for next Tuesday.

Attorney Louis J. Lefkowitz, chairman of the Republican County Law Committee, immediately took action toward an appeal to the State's highest court which will hear arguments Thursday morning.

Seeking reelection, Mayor F. H. Laguardia has the backing of the Republican Party as well as that of the American Labor Party.

Scientist Tells Of Discovering Dwarf Stars

By the Associated Press

Williams Bay, Wis., Sept. 9.—Discovery of three new white dwarf stars was announced by Dr. William J. Luyten, University of Minnesota astronomer, when the American Astronomical Society met today at the University of Chicago Observatory.

Two of the stars were discovered at the University of Minnesota by examination of photographic plates and verified by scientists at the University of Cordoba, Argentina, while the third was revealed by workers at Union Observatory, Johannesburg, South Africa. The plates examined by Dr. Luyten were taken at the Harvard Station at Bloemfrontein, Sout Africa.

Dr. Luyten believes one of the stars to be blue-white and to have "the remarkable weight of possibly 250 tons per cubic inch," or twice that of the usual white dwarf star.

"This star," said Dr. Luyten, "is probably 16 light years distant from the earth and moving at a rate of 40 miles per second. Another, lying 21 light years distant, has about the color of the sun and is the faintest of the white dwarf stars now known."

The astronomer believes the third star "may be as much as 500 trillion miles away" and has the ordinary characteristics of white dwarfs.

Scientists at the University of Cordoba who were called upon to view the stars through a telescope because they are not so placed as to be visible from the Minnesota area were Drs. Enrique Gaviola and Martin Dartayet.

Ways and Means Members 'Prep' for Tax Bill Conference

In an effort to reach an agreement on the tax bill in the next three days, House members of the Ways and Means Committee "prepped" yesterday in a day-long analysis of the Senate bill for the opening conference today.

Treasury representatives reviewed with Ways and Means committeemen the Senate tax changes that raised the total of their $3,216,400,000 tax measure to $3,580,900,000.

Indications were that House conferees may seek a compromise between their own steep individual surtax rates and the Senate's base-broadening plan further increasing tax payments all along the line.

One House conferee, opposed to base broadening because of the heavier burden imposed on persons with modest incomes, said revenue considerations alone could influence House acceptance of the Senate's lowered exemptions.

House conferees, who will serve in informal capacity because of the House recess will be Chairman Doughton, of North Carolina; Representative Cullen, of New York; Cooper, of Tennesee, and Boehne, of Indiana, all Democrats, and Treadway, of Massachusetts; Knutson, of Minnesota, and Reed, of New York, Republicans.

A Treasury breakdown of the 303 million dollars revenue anticipated from base-broadening, presented to House members, showed 283 million dollars of this would come from married persons and only about 20 million dollars from single persons. (Single exemptions were cut $50 and exemptions of married couples, $500.)

Of this total base-broadening revenue, only 47 million dollars would come from new taxpayers and only 10 million dollars from persons who never heretofore filed tax returns. The balance would be collected from automatically increased payments from persons now paying income taxes.

Police Discount Murder Theory In Doctor's Death

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 9 (U.P.).—A murder theory in the mysterious death of a St. Joseph physician, whose nude body was found slumped over an X-ray table in his office, was discounted by police tonight after an autopsy indicated he died by asphyxiation from a powerful drug.

Emphasizing that their investigation was not completed, the police said that Dr. John A. Schram, 38, apparently had died accidentally.

Schram's body, discovered by police, had diathermic pads attached to the abdomen, indicating that he had been treating himself for an illness.

Sheriff A. J. Hastings said he had not been able to discover why Schram should have taken the drug.

WYNN PREPARES FOR CURTAIN CALL

TALKS TO CAST ON OPENING NIGHT

The Perfect Fool

Ed Wynn's Comedy Is Serious; Tells Only Clean Jokes

By Samuel Stavisky
Post Staff Writer

"You don't need ten million dollars to be happy," Ed Wynn hollered.

"You can be just as happy with nine million dollars."

The full-house audience roared. Vice President Henry A. Wallace chuckled so hard he almost fell out of his first balcony box.

Was the joke really that funny? It was.

That's Ed Wynn for you. A clown with a Humpty-Dumpty egg face, horn-rim goggles, bulbous nose, saucer grin and double chin. A comic with a high-pitched fluttery lisp. A zany with a thousand crazy hats and a thousand crazy costumes. A comedian who tells clean jokes, and makes them screamingly funny, although he is on the stage for 2 hours and 35 minutes of the 2-hour 50-minute show.

It's in telling the joke that Wynn displays his genius. Even an old wheeze brings down the house when Wynn tells it. For every joke he has a different silly hat and different silly suit. His mouth, his hands, his feet, his eyes, his nose, his tummy are always gesticulating, giving the gag fresh meaning—or a novel twist. His madcap antics turn him into a riotous fool, so that from the moment he's first seen on the stage, the audience is in a constant unstable state of laughter.

Except for the ugly fact that he has no ambition to play someday the role of Hamlet, Wynn makes serious business out of funny business.

Since his debut in 1902, Wynn has written most of his script, and the words and music to more than 100 songs. He creates and handpicks new jokes, and then battles with himself for hours thinking up ways to put them over so that they'll be terrifically funny. He has agents scouring around for newer and nuttier costumes.

Wynn wrote the book for "Boys and Girls Together," Broadway hit musical comedy playing this week at the National Theater. He selected the cast of outstanding performers and the oh! so beautiful chorus girls. He produced and directed the show. Then, faced with the task of outperforming his stars, he learned how to play the violin and piano accordian. After that, all he had to do was be funny.

Unlike the classic clown, Wynn is neither a sad man nor a hermit off stage. Sometimes he's even funny.

Posing opening night with Vice President and Mrs. Wallace, who'd gone backstage to congratulate him, Wynn warned the photographer to make sure he made no mistake in identity. To a suggestion that he and the Vice President collaborate on a play, Wynn countered: "I'd love to help him write laws."

It's nine years since Wynn last played Washington. But he has a special affection for the Capital.

Back in 1908 "Teddy" Roosevelt invited Wynn, then a youngster, to the White House after witnessing the show. "Teddy" complimented him on his clean humor, and it was right then and there that Wynn vowed, he says, to tell only clean jokes, or none.

The jester recalls, too, that President Wilson saved him from extinction in 1919, after he had been blacklisted for leading the actors' strike. Wilson wrote a letter expressing the opinion that Wynn was needed on the stage, and the producers relented.

President Harding was Wynn's most ardent fan, though. Wynn, staging a mind reading act at the National, had the audacity to ask Harding, watching from a box, to stooge for him, and Harding quickly assented. The President pulled a bill from his pocket, and Wynn called out its serial number—a feat which so delighted Harding, he presented the bill ($1) to the comedian. It's one of Wynn's prize possessions.

The 91 members of "Boys and Girls Together" call him "Boss," but Wynn is more like a mother hen anxiously hovering over her brood of chicks.

"Give a good show, girls," he encouraged just before curtain time Monday night. He was admittedly nervous, because it was the beginning of the road show season, and the stage hands were new. His voice was strained somewhat, but a doctor quickly fixed him up.

The opening performance over, he called the cast together. "Nice work," he said, and he was visibly pleased with them, and the reception of the audience. He promised them a tour of Mount Vernon.

"Don't tell them I said so," Wynn confided in the reporter, "but I think the girls like me. Well, I like them, too."

From here the show goes to Baltimore, then across the country for 150 performances, including 80 one-night stands.

"In these critical times," Wynn said, "people want to laugh. I'll show them how."

This Isn't Funny—Ed Wynn had a throat irritation opening night, called in a specialist to inspect his stage-voice pipes. The doctor is Arthur A. Zinkhan

AIRVIEW OF CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS AND CAMPUS, ON MICHIGAN AVENUE NORTHEAST

By Robert R. Rand
Post Staff Writer

Students and teachers are beginning to dot the beautiful campus again, out at the Catholic University of America, where the new college year begins September 22.

Opening its fifty-third year this month, the university "is ready to admit any person of good moral character," says Dr. Roy J. Deferrari, its secretary general. Composed of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish students, and having both priests and laymen as instructors, the college's one aim is to stress training for higher education, he says.

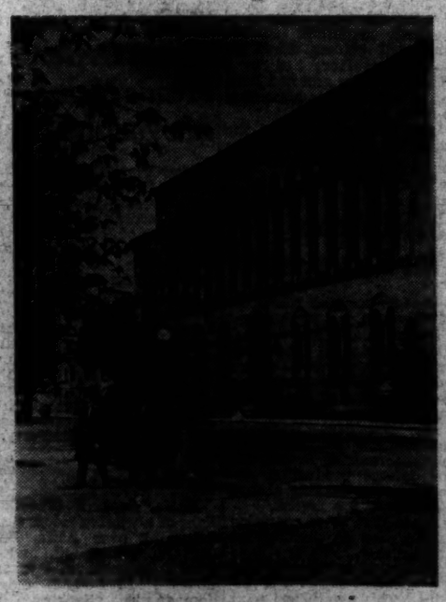
"Sixty-five per cent of our students go on to graduate work, and as time goes on, we hope to make it 90 per cent," states Dr. Deferrari. "In fact, with the exception of our college of arts and sciences, and our schools of engineering and nursing, all our schools are for graduate study."

Catholic University, Fourth Street and Michigan Avenue Northeast, has 11 divisions: The College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Social Science, the School of Nursing Education, the School of Social Work, the School of Engineering and Architecture, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the Summer Session, the School of Law, the School of Sacred Theology, the School of Canon Law, and the School of Philosophy.

The three latter schools are theological, and the rest are lay schools. Women may be admitted to the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the School of Law, the School of Social Work, the School of Nursing Education, the School of Philosophy, the School of Social Science, and the Summer Session.

"As a member of the Association of American Universities," says Dr. Deferrari, "we have a national reputation."

On the recreation side, Catholic University also provides ample facilities for its more than 2200 students. On the campus is a huge gymnasium, tennis courts, four volley ball courts, two basketball courts, two baseball diamonds, five horseshoe pitching courts, four outdoor handball courts and two indoor courts, two football fields, and a swimming pool. It's stadium seats 13,000 people.



CATHOLIC U. LIBRARY

Cognizance of the national defense program will be reflected in many of the courses of the university this year, with new courses in chemistry, physics, mathematics and economics. Government-supported courses in engineering, science and management defense training will be continued.

In the School of Nursing Education, provision is being made to care for a larger enrollment, in cooperation with the Public Health Service's program of financial aid.

The impact of the defense program will likewise be reflected at the School of Social Science, with new courses in cost accounting, business cycles, welfare economics, and migratory labor. The School of Law will offer a new course in trade regulation, also.

For workers and other persons who wish to take part-time courses, the university offers late afternoon and evening courses. Tuition is $10 per semester hour. Full time tuition per year is $360.

Clash of Nye, Willkie Opens Movie Inquiry

seekers swarming around Willkie and a score of Capitol police handling the standing-room only crowd in the caucus room of the Senate Office Building.

Technically, the subcommittee's job is to determine whether the war propaganda charges against the movies warrant a Congressional investigation.

Isolationists Prevail

In practice, it was clear after yesterday's session, the sucommittee hearings will be indistinguishable from a full-dress Congressional investigation.

Senators Nye and Bennett Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, are authors of the resolution calling for the investigation. It was referred to the Interstate Commerce Committee, whose chairman, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, appointed an overwhelmingly isolationist subcommittee to consider the charges.

Subcommittee chairman is Senator D. Worth Clark (Democrat), of Idaho. Other members are Senators McFarland (Democrat), of Arizona; Bone (Democrat), of Washington; Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, and Brooks (Republican), of Illinois.

McFarland, the only supporter of Administration foreign policy on the subcommittee, engaged in several sharp exchanges with Nye, telling the witness at one point:

"I'm trying to confine you to real evidence that would be admissible in court."

Names Only One Picture

This sally came after Nye, who ha dasserted that the motion picture industry has produced 15 or 20 war propaganda films, could name only one picture of that class that he recalled seeing himself. The film was "I Married a Nazi."

"What was the objectionable feature of that picture?" McFarland inquired.

"It had the effect of making one individual so hated that the person who saw the picture would hate a whole nation," Nye replied.

"How was that done?" the Arizona Senator insisted.

Nye replied that he was the type of movie patron "who can go to a picture one night and not even remember the title the next morning" and suggested that the subcommittee have screenings of some of the alleged propaganda pictures. Chairman Clark indicated that this probably would be done. He also said a minute analysis of the disputed pictures would be placed before the subcommittee.

Disowns Anti-Semitism

Nye opened his testimony with a charge that opponents of the investigation have attempted to present the inquiry as "the result of a desire to serve the un-American, narrow cause of anti-Semitism." Injection of an anti-Semitism issue into the hearing is "a red herring," he said.

The witness recalled a speech he made in St. Louis last month, in which he named various film executives whom he charged with responsibility for war propaganda movies and which, he said, had been widely criticized as evidence of anti-Semitism.

"There would have been no different approach by me to the subject had those primarily responsible for propaganda in the movies been in the main Methodists, Episcopalians, Catholics or Mohammedans," he declared. "If I had it to do over and were I determined to name those primarily responsible for propaganda in the moving picture field, I would, in light of what I have since learned, confine myself to four names, each that of one of the Jewish faith, each one foreign born. But I would do that without any spirit of prejudice and without prompting by any cause as foreign to my thinking as is anti-Semitism."

Nye said both the production and distribution of the majority of American films were controlled by "four or five individuals," whom he did not name, who had been born "in lands that have been saturated with hate, with fear, with prejudices and with persecution."

"A Very Selfish Stake"

"The power is theirs, if they want to exercise it," he declared, "to make the great majority of theatergoers in the United States feed upon propaganda, propaganda which might readily be the natural consequence of the individual likes and dislikes of causes the producers would portray in their pictures."

Nye also asserted that the motion picture industry had "a very selfish stake" in the outcome of the war, because, he said, several companies depended on foreign sales for their profits and now have "blocked funds" in England which would be worthless if Germany won the war.

He said one company which collected 80 million dollars in 1940 realized eight million dollars of this revenue from showings of its films in Britain, of which about six million dollars represented clear profit. Its total profits for the year were eight million dollars, he said. If Britain lost the war, amounts now due to the film companies from their English outlets would not be paid, he continued, and the industry would have lost a highly profitable market.

Pictures which Nye listed as samples of "war propaganda" included "Sergeant York," "The Great Dictator," "Escape," "The Mortal Storm," "Flight Command," "Convoy," and "Manhunt."

Nye said he had reason to believe film companies "have been asked or even ordered by some agent of the Government to produce propaganda pictures."

When McFarland pressed him to name "the agent," Nye said his authority for the statement was "one of the No. 1 producers." He said he expected that the producer would corroborate him, if placed on the stand, but that, if he did not, Nye could bring "five other witnesses" who would.

Nye added that he considered his function was not to confine himself to legal evidence but to give the subcommittee "leads" which would enable it to establish the facts.

Willkie Replies

Willkie countered with an assertion that "Senator Nye has proved himself a star witness for the industry."

"In his whole long and tedious statement," Willkie said, "Senator Nye gives not one valid reason for an investigation of the motion picture industry . . . He demonstrates, without a bit of doubt, why this foolish show should be ended, once and for all."

Willkie circulated his reply to Nye in the form of a press release after Chairman Clark had told him at the start of the hearing that subcommittees procedure would not permit him to cross-examine witnesses.

Industry Files Brief

The film industry counsel also placed in the record a lengthy brief holding that the hearing was "unauthorized and invalid," since the Senate has not yet authorized any investigation of the movie propaganda charges.

He said the very charge that the motion pictures have disseminated propaganda proves that they are media of information and opinion, like newspapers, and in this function cannot constitutionally be subjected to the Congressional power over interstate commerce.

Senator Clark, of Missouri, will be the chief witness before the subcommittee today. The session begins at 10:30 a. m.

Chief of Russian Air Mission Arrives in D. C.

Copyright by New York Times

Gen. Mikhail Gromov, chief of the Russian air mission which flew from Moscow to Alaska and the Pacific Coast, arrived here yesterday by commercial plane and went to the Soviet Embassy. He plans to confer with United States Government officials on Russian technical needs, particularly in aviation research. The other members of the mission are visiting aircraft factories on the West Coast.

Chicago, Sept. 9 (INS).—The Germans, in attacking Russia, have bitten off more than they can chew, the commanders of the two huge Soviet planes which recently flew from the U. S. S. R. to Seattle, said in Chicago today.

The commanders, Ivan Cherevichny and Wasili Zadkoff, told of a late Soviet communique claiming eight Nazi divisions had been wiped out, said:

"That's only the beginning. The Russian people are completely united and many, many times that number will be destroyed."

Safety Pin in Lung Makes Girl, 13, Cough for 5 Years

Pembroke, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—Phyllis Williams, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Effie H. Williams, of Pembroke, found out today the cause of a chronic cough which she has had for almost five years.

Her mother took her to St. Elizabeth's Hospital at Pearisburg for an examination, where a physician discovered a small safety pin lodged in her left lung. The girl does not know when she swallowed the object, but it was apparently several years ago.

With the exception of the cough, she has suffered no ill effects from the pin. She will be taken to a specialist immediately for an operation for its removal.

from the Smolensk sector was not a local one, he asserted, and added that "the space of action is limited but it is hard-felt by the entire German army."

Lozovsky described the whole front as "not continuous, but a zigzag line."

"The Germans are trying to wedge in," he went on, "and we are trying to wedge their wedge and cut it off.

"Along the entire front there is incessant fighting of unprecedented intensity. This is the reason for the great losses of the Germans and their exhaustion, moral and physical, and in equipment."

In the fighting around Odessa he said 16 Rumanian divisions originally were thrown into the struggle and that now more than half of the malready have been shattered.

On the south the Rumanians, to whom the Nazis have left the siege of Odessa, have seen 20,000 of their soldiery slain in ten days in the approaches to that Black Sea port, said a Soviet communique, which lauded the Red navy garrison for daily sallies into the eld to scourge the foe.

Of besieged Leningrad in the north th eRussians had little to say, but they buttressed with a wealth of detail the midnight announcement of Marshal Timoshenko's triumph in the center.

Dana Dodge Relieved Of Wives and Troubles

Reno, Nev., Sept. 9 (AP).—The marital troubles of Dana Dodge, 25, member of a wealthy Nevada family, were finally untangled today.

Dodge was granted a default divorce decree from Evelyn Thorye Dodge, of Daly City, Calif., on the grounds of three years' separation. They were married on July 2, 1937. Before his divorce from her became final, Dodge married Leah Kewlet, Hawaiian dancer, last July 7. That marriage was annulled August 29 and the dancer's $50,000 damage action dismissed.

Italy Nearing Famine, Singer Says on Return

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Italy is near the famine stage and the winter will bring hunger riots, a Seattle tenor returning from a three-year stay in Italy predicted today.

"All food is being shipped into Germany in exchange for coal," 26-year-old Antonio Decampo declared, "and the people are at the breaking point.

"Italians haven't had any meat to speak of for two months. Coffee is $12.50 a pound. The government has taken away the people's bements seem conscious of impering loved spaghetti and wine."

Terms Reached in Disney Strike

Settlement of a strike at the Walt Disney studio, which had threatened to result in the closure of the Hollywood cartoon factory, was forecast yesterday by the United States Conciliation Service.

In an announcement here, it was stated that Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey had developed a formula for the reemployment of an estimated 500 strikers, following conferences between the studio and the A. F. of L. Screen Cartoonists Guild.

Key provisions of the settlement proposal provide for proportionate layoffs of union and nonunion people, with considerations for seniority and special skills.

Other labor developments yesterday included a threat of a nationwide strike of railroad station red caps, and the stoppage of two anthracite collieries in Pennsylvania.

The red cap walkout was voted, according to spokesmen of the United Transport Service Employes of America, by 95 per cent of 3,500 members, who are seeking wage increases of at least 30 cents an hour above present minima of from 36 to 40 cents an hour.

Summer Worst Season for Your Hair, Says Specialist

F. D. JOHNSON

It is little wonder that so many people find their hair and scalp in bad condition at the end of the summer, says F. D. Johnson, local hair and scalp specialist. There is no other season when the hair and scalp are subjected to so many abuses.

Over-exposure to the sun bleaches the hair, causes dry, brittle and lifeless appearance.

Bathing in salt water leaves an alkaline deposit which also has a drying effect.

Excessive perspiration keeps the scalp continually wet and is particularly aggravating to some scalp conditions.

Those who were suffering with scalp conditions at the start of the summer may find them progressively worse. If you need help call at 1052 Shoreham Building and consult F. D. Johnson. There is no charge for an examination or advice and treatment will not be advised unless he believes it will help you. Phone NA. 6081.

Gen. Schley, Army Engineer Chief, to Retire

The forthcoming retirement of Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of Army Engineers, was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Gen. Schley, who has spent billions in Federal funds for construction of Army bases, flood control and harbor improvement work during his four-year term as chief of engineers, is well known here.

He was assistant engineer commissioner of the District of Columbia from 1912-1916, and commandant of the Engineer School at nearby Fort Belvoir, Va., in 1936-37. From 1932 to 1936, he was Governor of the Panama Canal Zone.

Since the emergency began, the Army Engineers under Gen. Schley, have taken an ever-increasing part in military construction work. Normally, the Engineers handle flood control and navigation projects, while the Quartermaster Corps has charge of military construction.

First the Engineers took over all Air Corps building projects under the Army expansion program and then the construction of the outlying island bases. A few days ago, the War Department asked Congress to transfer all Army construction from the jurisdiction of the Quartermaster Corps to the Corps of Engineers.

A distant relative of Rear Admiral Winfield S. Schley, Spanish-American War naval commander, Gen. Schley has seen 42 years of military service. Now 61, he is retiring at his own request.

He was born in Savannah, Ga., and entered West Point in 1899. After serving in the Philippines and Cuba, Gen. Schley spent four years as an instructor in engineering at West Point. During the World War, he commanded the 307th Engineers overseas and later was chief engineer of the Fifth Army Corps.

For service during the Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel offensives, Gen. Schley was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Now on leave, he will be succeeded as Chief of Army Engineers by Brig. Gen. Eugene Reybold.

FCA Seeks to Prevent Farm Land Value Inflation

The Farm Credit Administration called upon private credit agencies and national farm leaders yesterday to help prevent inflation in agricultural land values such as occurred during and immediately after the first World War.

The agency asked more than 100 representatives of farm mortgage lenders, insurance companies and agricultural leaders to a conference here September 26 to discuss a policy which would limit loans to the "normal" value of farm land.

In issuing the call, A. G. Black, governor of the FCA, said that, with rising farm prices and farm income, there was a new danger of land values becoming inflated to a level which could not be supported over a period of years.

Rural credit agencies will be asked to adopt normal values as a basis for appraisal in the making of farm loans. This basis has been used by the FCA in making its loans.

Barkley Urges Inflation Barrier

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9 (AP).—Majority Leader Barkley of the Senate declared today that the cost of living must be curbed and a barrier erected against inflation.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Iowa State Bankers Association, the Kentuckian said that "unregulated and unjustifiable inflation" must be prevented, "in order to avoid a perpendicular collapse and reaction" when the current emergency ends.

Likewise, he asserted, "we must put a curb upon unjustifiable increases in the cost of living to millions of our people who depend upon meager wages and salaries to support their families."

Estimating the Nation's total income for 1941 at 95 billion dollars, or about 23 billion over the past year's figure, Barkley suggested that the huge tax bill passed by the Senate last week, with increased levies all along the line, was not stiff enough.

"This seems to be a burdensome amount added to our present taxes, but may I not ask you and the American people whether we ought not out of the increased total income of 23 billion dollars per year to take more than 3½ billion to help pay for the program which, at least in part has made this increase in income possible?"

3 Japanese Ships To Get Nationals In British Empire

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Tokyo, Sept. 9.—In line with an agreement with Britain according to which a British ship is scheduled to arrive at Yokohama to evacuate British subjects from Japan on September 24, the Japanese government has decided to dispatch three passenger ships to evacuate Japanese nationals from British territories, the Foreign Office announced today.

One ship will go to Malaya and the Straits Settlement, one to India, the Near East and East Africa and one to Europe. The latter ship will carry new diplomats and military and naval attaches to their posts and pick up evacuees from Europe on the return trip. Among these diplomats is expected to be the ambassador to London, Mamoru, Shigemitsu, although the official spokesman said today it was still uncertain whether he was returning.

No arrangement was made to evacuate Japanese from the United States and Hawaii.

You owe it to your boy to give him every school advantage. If he hasn't been making all the progress you think he should—don't blame the boy altogether. All personalities cannot be fitted into a stereotyped mold. Chances are he is "forward" in some subjects but "backward" in some others. Mass education does not take this variation into account.

Here's where the Woodward School is a big help. With small classes and men teachers your boy gets the extra, individual attention he needs. You want him to have—and he will—receive a full-rounded education—and that's what we aim successfully to give him. You'll be gratified at the progress he will make under our guidance.

Woodward School offers this specialized service for boys—up to and including high school.

U. S., Japan Accord Seen Growing Near

Roosevelt.

Activity in the State Department here has been paralleled by negotiations in Tokyo where American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew has met Foreign Minister Teijiro Toyoda a dozen times within the past week.

Unusual activity was manifested at the State Department yesterday among officials concerned with Far Eastern affairs. Secretary Hull met with Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long, Stanley Hornbeck, adviser on Far Eastern affairs; Maxwell Hamilton, chief of the Far Eastern division of the State Department, and Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, presumably for a discussion of the Far Eastern situation.

Particular interest was attached to this meeting in view of the fact that Premier Konoye is scheduled to make an important announcement following the meeting of the Privy Council in Tokyo today which will be held in the presence of the Emperor.

It is not believed here that the Konoye government will go so far as to formally divorce Japan from the Axis pact, but some diplomatic observers believe that the Japanese prime minister may proclaim a so-called "independent" policy for Japan in Asia which might mark the first step toward veering away from the Axis.

It was reliably learned here that the talks with Japan have been conducted on the basis of the following points:

1. Japan to renounce her link with the Axis.
2. Japan to renounce further aggression in the southern Pacific where Japanese ambitions have long been focused on the Dutch East Indies.
3. Japan to refrain from joining with Germany in the war against Russia by invading eastern Siberia.
4. Japan to withdraw her forces from central China.
5. Japan to abandon her foothold in Indo-China.

In return for these concessions on the part of Japan, it has been indicated that the United States would:

1. Normalize its trade relations with Japan.
2. Unfreeze Japanese credits and assets in the United States, making it possible for Japan to resume her trade with this country.

It is also understood that if Japan were to abandon her foothold in Indo-China and renounce further aggression in the Southern Pacific, the United States and other interested parties would undertake to facilitate her acquirement of the necessary raw materials for her industries from that region.

Some observers believe that while Japan is anxious for an agreement with the United States in view of the extreme pressure brought to bear on Japan by increasing economic sanctions on the part of both America and Britain, the Konoye government will find it extremely difficult to accept a program which calls for such large concessions on the part of Japan. In well-informed quarters, it was pointed out, however, that these were initial points to serve as a basis of discussion and that there was room for negotiation.

If the United States and Japan should be able to agree upon a program for a Pacific settlement, it was believed China and the Dutch would be asked to join in any final settlement of Pacific problems. It is assumed here that the British and presumably the Australians, as members of the British Empire, are being kept informed of developments.

Tokyo Council Approves Negotiations

London indicated that Japan already was discussing a possible similar rapprochement with Great Britain.

[A pronounced lessening of Tokyo press criticism of the United States was reported last night by the Associated Press and the United Press.

[At the same time it was announced that Japanese cotton exchanges will suspend operations November 1 because the United States freezing order has deprived them of their functions. The Osaka and Nagoya markets will liquidate all their engagements by October 28.—Editor's note.]

Informed Japanese sources here said they believed Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye's forthcoming statement would be vague and indefinite, because he does not desire war but is unable to promise peace for lack of army backing.

These sources said that Konoye may announce the progress of negotiations aimed at the reciprocal evacuation of nationals, his hopes for relaxation of economic warfare and reiterate that Japanese Far Eastern policies are entirely peaceful. It was said that Konoye, with the backing of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, big businessmen and the navy, was doing his utmost to resist pro-Axis pressure by the army. Continued Russian resistance to Germany plus a display of strength by Britain, America and the Netherlands was said to have prevented an open breach between the army and the cabinet.

Informed Americans here expected Konoye to make no announcement that a fundamental Japanese-American agreement will be reached, although the premier may express hopes for such an agreement in the future in order to ease tension in the Pacific.

These sources said that the British decision to continue the evacuation of nationals from Japan indicated that London does not believe that an agreement is near.

U. S., Britain Reach Accord on Trade

could ship to Argentina in order to get dollar exchange with which to buy Argentina's meat.

Under the new agreement, Britain would be permitted to continue exporting enough to Argentina to enable her to continue getting her essential foodstuffs, even if her exports contain materials like steel, which the British are getting under the Lease-Lend Act from the United States.

Department of Commerce and lease-lend officials in this country who negotiated the deal with officials of the British supply council recognized that a considerable British export trade with Latin America would also have to be permitted if Britain were to continue buying oil from Venezuela, and while this continuing British export trade is bound to compete with American goods, the official view is that the British must be permitted to continue helping themselves so long as their export business does not take priority over the production of those essential weapons necessary for the fight against Germany.

Neither the American nor the British officials who negotiated this deal have any illusions that it will remove all the grievances that have arisen among exporters here since the passage of the Lease-Lend Act. Best proof of this is the fact that under the terms of the pact they have established a sort of Anglo-American grievance committee which will go into all borderline cases in the future. It is hoped that this committee, composed of lease-lend and British supply council officials, will at least minimize the main points of dispute.

The church bell then tolled the hour of four.

The president stood with one hand on the open door of the White House sedan in which he rode to the cemetery, along with his wife and his son, James, and his mother's surviving brother and sister, Frederick A. Delano and Mrs. Price Collier.

Tension was so great that when Mrs. Collier coughed, Mr. Roosevelt started. He lapsed into immobility until he was roused again by a sudden commotion in the ranks of the estate people, who were standing on the west side of the burial plot, facing the family. A young man had fainted. Someone revived him with smelling salts.

In spite of the family's "No flowers" request, the side of the grave was banked with them and they overflowed into the rest of the plot. On top of the casket was a single spray of bright gladiola, lavender, pink and yellow asters and red roses. A huge wreath of red roses, white lilies and baby breath bore the only identification. It was from the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Roosevelt's grave was to the left of that of the President's father, James Roosevelt, who died in 1900. Nearby were the graves of Rebecca, first wife of James, and of the President's son and first namesake, who died in infancy.

In keeping with a family tradition, the pallbearers who lowered the casket into the grave were eight men from the Roosevelt estate.

Mr. Roosevelt wore a dark blue business suit and black tie. On his left arm was a black silk sleeve band. He wore his glasses.

Three sons, James, Elliott and John, were similarly dressed, but only Elliott among them wore a band of mourning on his arm.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was garbed entirely in black, her dress a sheer chiffon and net. Mrs. Collier, also in black, wore a hat with a flowing black mourning veil thrown back from her face.

The brother of the President's mother had on a cutaway coat and striped trousers.

Other members of the family present were the wives of the three sons, and Ethel du Pont Roosevelt, wife of Franklin D., jr., who is on sea duty with the Navy, and Mrs. James R. Roosevelt, widow of the Chief Executive's half-brother.

Gen. Schley, Army Engineer Chief, to Retire

The forthcoming retirement of Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of Army Engineers, was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Gen. Schley, who has spent billions in Federal funds for construction of Army bases, flood control and harbor improvement work during his four-year term as chief of engineers, is well known here.

He was assistant engineer commissioner of the District of Columbia from 1912-1916, and commandant of the Engineer School at nearby Fort Belvoir, Va., in 1936-37. From 1932 to 1936, he was Governor of the Panama Canal Zone.

Since the emergency began, the Army Engineers under Gen. Schley, have taken an ever-increasing part in military construction work. Normally, the Engineers handle flood control and navigation projects, while the Quartermaster Corps has charge of military construction.

First the Engineers took over all Air Corps building projects under the Army expansion program and then the construction of the outlying island bases. A few days ago, the War Department asked Congress to transfer all Army construction from the jurisdiction of the Quartermaster Corps to the Corps of Engineers.

A distant relative of Rear Admiral Winfield S. Schley, Spanish-American War naval commander, Gen. Schley has seen 42 years of military service. Now 61, he is retiring at his own request.

He was born in Savannah, Ga., and entered West Point in 1899. After serving in the Philippines and Cuba, Gen. Schley spent four years as an instructor in engineering at West Point. During the World War, he commanded the 307th Engineers overseas and later was chief engineer of the Fifth Army Corps.

For service during the Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel offensives, Gen. Schley was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Now on leave, he will be succeeded as Chief of Army Engineers by Brig. Gen. Eugene Reybold.

Reilly, Former Newsman, May Get Smith's NLRB Post

By the Associated Press

Gerard D. Reilly, Labor Department solicitor and former New England newspaperman, was mentioned in informed quarters yesterday as the probable choice for appointment to the National Labor Relations Board to succeed Edwin S. Smith, whose term expired August 2.

The C. I. O. has asked President Roosevelt to reappoint Smith but the A. F. L. has declared opposition to him on the grounds that his board decisions had favored the C. I. O.

Taylor May See Pope Tomorrow

Rome, Sept. 9 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, arrived in Rome tonight with a verbal message for the Pope from the President.

His audience is expected to take place Thursday morning. Asked what message he was bringing, Taylor said: "I am the message."

He explained that he had come only for the one audience with the Pope and would start back to the United States in about ten days.

FCA Seeks to Prevent Farm Land Value Inflation

The Farm Credit Administration called upon private credit agencies and national farm leaders yesterday to help prevent inflation in agricultural land values such as occurred during and immediately after the first World War.

The agency asked more than 100 representatives of farm mortgage lenders, insurance companies and agricultural leaders to a conference here September 26 to discuss a policy which would limit loans to the "normal" value of farm land.

In issuing the call, A. G. Black, governor of the FCA, said that, with rising farm prices and farm income, there was a new danger of land values becoming inflated to a level which could not be supported over a period of years.

Rural credit agencies will be asked to adopt normal values as a basis for appraisal in the making of farm loans. This basis has been used by the FCA in making its loans.

Barkley Urges Inflation Barrier

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9 (AP).—Majority Leader Barkley of the Senate declared today that the cost of living must be curbed and a barrier erected against inflation.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Iowa State Bankers Association, the Kentuckian said that "unregulated and unjustifiable inflation" must be prevented, "in order to avoid a perpendicular collapse and reaction" when the current emergency ends.

Likewise, he asserted, "we must put a curb upon unjustifiable increases in the cost of living to millions of our people who depend upon meager wages and salaries to support their families."

Estimating the Nation's total income for 1941 at 95 billion dollars, or about 23 billion over the past year's figure, Barkley suggested that the huge tax bill passed by the Senate last week, with increased levies all along the line, was not stiff enough.

"This seems to be a burdensome amount added to our present taxes, but may I not ask you and the American people whether we ought not out of the increased total income of 23 billion dollars per year to take more than 3½ billion to help pay for the program which, at least in part has made this increase in income possible?"

3 Japanese Ships To Get Nationals In British Empire

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Tokyo, Sept. 9.—In line with an agreement with Britain according to which a British ship is scheduled to arrive at Yokohama to evacuate British subjects from Japan on September 24, the Japanese government has decided to dispatch three passenger ships to evacuate Japanese nationals from British territories, the Foreign Office announced today.

One ship will go to Malaya and the Straits Settlement, one to India, the Near East and East Africa and one to Europe. The latter ship will carry new diplomats and military and naval attaches to their posts and pick up evacuees from Europe on the return ship. Among these diplomats is expected to be the ambassador to London, Mamoru Shigemitsu, although the official spokesman said today it was still uncertain whether he was returning.

No arrangement was made to evacuate Japanese from the United States and Hawaii.

WOODWARD SCHOOL For Boys
(Accredited)

You owe it to your boy to give him every school advantage. If he hasn't been making all the progress you think he should—don't blame the boy altogether. All personalities cannot be fitted into a stereotyped mold. Chances are he is "forward" in some subjects but "backward" in some others. Mass education does not take this variation into account.

Here's where the Woodward School is a big help. With small classes and men teachers your boy gets the extra, individual attention he needs. You want him to have—and he will—receive a full-rounded education—and that's what we aim successfully to give him. You'll be gratified at the progress he will make under our guidance.

Woodward School offers this specialized service for boys—up to and including high school.

Fall Semester Begins September 22nd

We'll be glad to have you consider WOODWARD SCHOOL for the enrollment of your boy this fall. If convenient, drop in and see the Director. If you prefer, we will send a faculty representative to see you at your convenience. Phone National 8250.

U. S., Japan Accord Seen Growing Near

Roosevelt.

Activity in the State Department here has been paralleled by negotiations in Tokyo where American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew has met Foreign Minister Teijiro Toyoda a dozen times within the past week.

Unusual activity was manifested at the State Department yesterday among officials concerned with Far Eastern affairs. Secretary Hull met with Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long, Stanley Hornbeck, adviser on Far Eastern affairs; Maxwell Hamilton, chief of the Far Eastern division of the State Department, and Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, presumably for a discussion of the Far Eastern situation.

Particular interest was attached to this meeting in view of the fact that Premier Konoye is scheduled to make an important announcement following the meeting of the Privy Council in Tokyo today which will be held in the presence of the Emperor.

It is not believed here that the Konoye government will go so far as to formally divorce Japan from the Axis pact, but some diplomatic observers believe that the Japanese prime minister may proclaim a so-called "independent" policy for Japan in Asia which might mark the first step toward veering away from the Axis.

It was reliably learned here that the talks with Japan have been conducted on the basis of the following points:

1. Japan to renounce her link with the Axis.
2. Japan to renounce further aggression in the southern Pacific where Japanese ambitions have long been focused on the Dutch East Indies.
3. Japan to refrain from joining with Germany in the war against Russia by invading eastern Siberia.
4. Japan to withdraw her forces from central China.
5. Japan to abandon her foothold in Indo-China.

In return for these concessions on the part of Japan, it has been indicated that the United States would:

1. Normalize its trade relations with Japan.
2. Unfreeze Japanese credits and assets in the United States, making it possible for Japan to resume her trade with this country.

It is also understood that if Japan were to abandon her foothold in Indo-China and renounce further aggression in the Southern Pacific, the United States and other interested parties would undertake to facilitate her acquirement of the necessary raw materials for her industries from that region.

Some observers believe that while Japan is anxious for an agreement with the United States in view of the extreme pressure brought to bear on Japan by increasing economic sanctions on the part of both America and Britain, the Konoye government will find it extremely difficult to accept a program which calls for such large concessions on the part of Japan. In well-informed quarters, it was pointed out, however, that these were initial points to serve as a basis of discussion and that there was room for negotiation.

If the United States and Japan should be able to agree upon a program for a Pacific settlement, it was believed China and the Dutch would be asked to join in any final settlement of Pacific problems. It is assumed here that the British and presumably the Australians, as members of the British Empire, are being kept informed of developments.

Service With a Scoot

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

AIRPORT INNOVATION—Motor-driven scooters are provided for pilots of private planes which are obliged to land at the end of the ramp at the new Washington National Airport. Tokyo Council Approves Negotiations

London indicated that Japan already was discussing a possible similar rapprochement with Great Britain.

[A pronounced lessening of Tokyo press criticism of the United States was reported last night by the Associated Press and the United Press.

[At the same time it was announced that Japanese cotton exchanges will suspend operations November 1 because the United States freezing order has deprived them of their functions. The Osaka and Nagoya markets will liquidate all their engagements by October 28.—Editor's note.]

Informed Japanese sources here said they believed Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye's forthcoming statement would be vague and indefinite, because he does not desire war but is unable to promise peace for lack of army backing.

These sources said that Konoye may announce the progress of negotiations aimed at the reciprocal evacuation of nationals, his hopes for relaxation of economic warfare and reiterate that Japanese Far Eastern policies are entirely peaceful. It was said that Konoye, with the backing of Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, big businessmen and the navy, was doing his utmost to resist pro-Axis pressure by the army. Continued Russian resistance to Germany plus a display of strength by Britain, America and the Netherlands was said to have prevented an open breach between the army and the cabinet.

Informed Americans here expected Konoye to make no announcement that a fundamental Japanese-American agreement will be reached, although the premier may express hopes for such an agreement in the future in order to ease tension in the Pacific.

These sources said that the British decision to continue the evacuation of nationals from Japan indicated that London does not believe that an agreement is near.

U. S., Britain Reach Accord on Trade

could ship to Argentina in order to get dollar exchange with which to buy Argentina's meat.

Under the new agreement, Britain would be permitted to continue exporting enough to Argentina to enable her to continue getting her essential foodstuffs, even if her exports contain materials like steel, which the British are getting under the Lease-Lend Act from the United States.

Department of Commerce and lease-lend officials in this country who negotiated the deal with officials of the British supply council recognized that a considerable British export trade with Latin America would also have to be permitted if Britain were to continue buying oil from Venezuela, and while this continuing British export trade is bound to compete with American goods, the official view is that the British must be permitted to continue helping themselves so long as their export business does not take priority over the production of those essential weapons necessary for the fight against Germany.

Neither the American nor the British officials who negotiated this deal have any illusions that it will remove all the grievances that have arisen among exporters here since the passage of the Lease-Lend Act. Best proof of this is the fact that under the terms of the pact they have established a sort of Anglo-American grievance committee which will go into all borderline cases in the future. It is hoped that this committee, composed of lease-lend and British supply council officials, will at least minimize the main points of dispute.

The church bell then tolled the hour of four.

The president stood with one hand on the open door of the White House sedan in which he rode to the cemetery, along with his wife and his son, James, and his mother's surviving brother and sister, Frederick A. Delano and Mrs. Price Collier.

Tension was so great that when Mrs. Collier coughed, Mr. Roosevelt started. He lapsed into immobility until he was roused again by a sudden commotion in the ranks of the estate people, who were standing on the west side of the burial plot, facing the family. A young man had fainted. Someone revived him with smelling salts.

In spite of the family's "No flowers" request, the side of the grave was banked with them and they overflowed into the rest of the plot. On top of the casket was a single spray of bright gladiola, lavender, pink and yellow asters and red roses. A huge wreath of red roses, white lilies and baby breath bore the only identification. It was from the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Roosevelt's grave was to the left of that of the President's father, James Roosevelt, who died in 1900. Nearby were the graves of Rebecca, first wife of James, and of the President's son and first namesake, who died in infancy.

In keeping with a family tradition, the pallbearers who lowered the casket into the grave were eight men from the Roosevelt estate.

Mr. Roosevelt wore a dark blue business suit and black tie. On his left arm was a black silk sleeve band. He wore his glasses.

Three sons, James, Elliott and John, were similarly dressed, but only Elliott among them wore a band of mourning on his arm.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was garbed entirely in black, her dress a sheer chiffon and net. Mrs. Collier, also in black, wore a hat with a flowing black mourning veil thrown back from her face.

The brother of the President's mother had on a cutaway coat and striped trousers.

Other members of the family present were the wives of the three sons, and Ethel du Pont Roosevelt, wife of Franklin D., jr., who is on sea duty with the Navy, and Mrs. James R. Roosevelt, widow of the Chief Executive's half-brother.

Brazil's Anniversary

Axis powers with an eye on Latin America will, if they run true to form, discount the implications of the address delivered last Sunday by President Vargas on the 119th anniversary of Brazil's national independence. For the Axis proceeds on the theory that continental solidarity—Pan-Americanism it used to be called—is now and will continue to be a rather pathetic myth. Yet no Axis representative who viewed Sunday's impressive military display in Rio de Janeiro and listened to President Vargas' statesmanlike appeal for American unity could have failed to appreciate how impregnable the Western Hemisphere may become, given the will to concerted action. "Any aggression from whatever source will find us the greatest bloc of varied nationalities ever got together in any defensive alliance," declared the President. These are bold words. If today they are perhaps not as well implemented as they might be, nevertheless, seldom if ever has there been a clearer statement of intention or of the case as it must logically appear to nations in this hemisphere which would safeguard their independence.

In a radio message congratulating Brazil on its anniversary President Roosevelt pointed out that the United States is solidly behind Brazil's policies of continental friendship and solidarity and "will continue to support them with all its moral and material resources." This pledge has been made before to Brazil and to other American republics and should be made again. For it is conditioned by friendship, mutual interest and the realization that to make available to our sister republics the tools of defense—industrial as well as military—is to insure material essentials which many of our neighbors to the south feel are a necessary prerequisite to the will to concerted action.

Norden Sight

The Government prosecutor at New York's spy trial charges that details of this country's most jealously guarded aerial weapon, the Norden bomb-sight, were sold to Germany in 1938 by a former inspector at the Norden plant. For obvious reasons the allegation is most disconcerting. By common consent the sight is the world's finest, enabling bombers to hit their objectives with uncanny accuracy from heights as great as 30,000 feet. Its makeup is so shielded that ever since it was installed in American planes, there has been endless speculation about its details. Yet little information has been forthcoming, and perhaps not more than half a dozen persons are in possession of the complete plans. As further evidence of secrecy, it has been asserted that work on the Norden sights is dispersed among 28 firms, and that the parts are then assembled in Army shops, together with some parts produced exclusively by the Army. Thus no one firm, presumably, knows all the details of manufacture.

Even the British are said to have asked for the Norden in vain. Several months ago a report to this effect was strenuously denied by military and Congressional authorities. Some have seen evidence of the Norden in the fell work of the Flying Fortresses with which the R. A. F. is now bombing Nazi objectives from the substratosphere. But this also is denied. The fortresses, which are designed for the installation of the Norden, are sent to Britain equipped, instead, with the Sperry bombsight, which is good but not as good as the Norden.

Accordingly it is very problematical whether the Nazis have got the plans of the Norden. Certainly the work of the Luftwaffe reveals no such evidence. And the testimony of the British air fighters is against the assumption. It may be, of course, that Germany does possess certain facts about the sight. But, if she does, she has apparently been unable to produce either the completed sight or any other sight approaching the Norden's accuracy. This is not to say that details could not be pieced together by foreign agents, given cooperation from the inside. Perhaps the trial in New York will reveal how this has been or might be accomplished. If so, the Army can be depended on to profit accordingly. In any case, until the Norden sight is used in actual warfare—when, despite precautions, it would sooner or later fall into enemy hands—it remains a reserve superthreat which, in the hands of the British today, would be hastening the day of victory.

Next Moves

That Hitler must soon seek a diversion from the campaign in Russia seems to be the opinion of many military experts. The season is so far advanced that even those who are convinced that the conquest of Russia is inevitable have postponed the final cleanup till spring. Thus the Nazi time schedule will be thrown completely awry. It was doubtless the aim, as Winston Churchill said in the House of Commons yesterday, to finish off Russia in quick order, and then to turn on Britain and the United States. The vigor of the British air offensive and the knowledge that our arsenal is constantly growing may now compel Hitler to leave his Russian job half-finished while he devotes some of his attention to new adventures.

Premier Churchill forecasts an effort to halt United States supplies to Britain. He spoke on the heels of the sinking of the American freighter, the Steel Seafarer, in the Red Sea, and the speech itself was succeeded by the report of the sinking in the North Atlantic of a freighter operated by an American company under Panama registry. Certainly the news seems to bear out the British Premier's forecast. For over three weeks now the losses on the Atlantic are said to have been infinitesimal. This is due less to the combined patrol work of the British and American navies than to Hitler's concentration on the job in Russia and Hitler's fear of inciting America into sterner anti-Hitler measures. But the sands are running out of the hourglass. And the spectacle may at any time persuade the Nazi leaders to make the same desperate gamble that was made in 1916 in the hope that they can win the war before the industrial and military might of America sends all their chances of victory glimmering.

Thus the United States may be called upon to succeed Soviet Russia in bearing the brunt of the Hitler assault. It would be altogether a different test. Russia had to meet Hitler on its own territory; we must deal with Hitler on the sea lanes of the broad Atlantic. The issue is transcendentally important to our destinies. If Hitler should succeed in sweeping the Anglo-American commerce off the high seas, he would be the titan of the modern world. Britain would be strangled into submission. And with her shipping and shipbuilding facilities at his disposal, Hitler could then dictate the submission of half our continent, and reduce our own great Nation to industrial and military subordination.

That Hitler in a position astride two continents and the mighty Atlantic would allow the United States any equality in the world is absurd on its face. He himself has said that there is no room for our sort of world in his cosmogony. He did not mean Britain or the British Empire. He referred to the "capitalistic-liberal" system, or our American way of life. To this system he would oppose a world tyranny managed by his Nazi lieutenants, and "one of the two must succumb." In the face of this bold assumption Senator Nye, in his statement before the movie inquiry, says that those who want to see the downfall of this cosmic menace must have a financial stake in the downfall. He is right. The entire United States, let alone the movie producers, have a vested interest in the obliteration of Hitlerism. If Hitler wins, we shall all be the poorer, but we shall be the poorer in political independence as well as in material power.

On Thursday the President will make a companion talk to Premier Churchill's on the newest developments in the world conflict. He would be untrue to his record if he did not meet the latest challenge on the high seas with vigor and forthrightness. Our Navy owes its origin to our insistence on freedom of the seas. Now we must give our Navy, which is at its magnificent best in both equipment and morale, the fullest opportunity to insure our freedom against the marauder who has never disguised his ambition to establish himself at the head of the historical list of would-be world conquerors. The job is safe in its hands. Hitler will live to regret his contempt for the United States as "degenerate Yankeedom" only if we meet force with force and beat him to all the approaches to our great ocean which, till he irrupted, was our insurance of independence.

Where McFarland Is . . .

When Senator Wheeler, as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, appointed a five-man subcommittee to hold hearings on a resolution calling for an investigation of war propaganda in films, he was careful not to lay himself open to the charge of making the subcommittee 100 per cent isolationist. To be sure, four of the members, Senators Clark, Bone, Tobey and Brooks, voted against the Lend-Lease Act and for reduction of draftees' service. But the fifth, Senator McFarland, who is serving his first term, was on the other side of the fence on both those issues. Presumably his weight was expected to have little influence on the direction or conduct of the hearings.

If this was the assumption on the part of the isolationists, it was a serious tactical error. For, as the hearings began yesterday, Senator McFarland was in there pitching for all he was worth—much to the discomfort of Senator Nye. Hardly had Senator Nye begun his attack on "four or five" moving picture executives than Senator McFarland interrupted: "I should like to ask Senator Nye what he expects to accomplish through this resolution?"

To this, of course, there was no clear-cut answer. Again and again the gentleman from Arizona cut short Senator Nye's statement of "the case against the movie industry" with pointed and extremely embarrassing questions. Did Senator Nye want legislation against propaganda? Did he want legislation to control propaganda? Did he contend that pictures showing conditions abroad are untrue? Throughout his own little inquisition Senator McFarland made it quite clear that he was after facts and straight answers, but for the most part he got neither.

In short, it was—and will doubtless remain—an unequal battle. When Senator McFarland asked that Mr. Willkie, the counsel for the movie industry, be permitted to ask questions, he was suavely complimented by Chairman Clark—and overruled. As the proceedings continue, the isolationists may be depended on to trot out formidable charges of warmongering which Mr. Willkie will have to deal with as best he can. It will be a good bet that if the hearings go on in the present vein, it looks as if the isolationists responsible for the resolution will wish they had never thought of it.

For Dear Old Dough!

At the end of the 1939 season President Hutchins of the University of Chicago suggested that perhaps the time had come when "at least one important university" should undertake the experiment of getting along without a football team. Dr. Hutchins neglected to say that Columbia had previously undertaken such an experiment without noticeable success. Anyway, there was less student opposition to his suggestion than might have been anticipated. No football team at all, the students reasoned, would certainly be an improvement over a team which could be beaten by Michigan, 85 to 0. But outside the campus there were many grave shakings of middle-aged heads; a precipitous drop in enrollments was freely predicted.

Nothing of the sort happened. Dr. Hutchins reported the other day that enrollments are as heavy as ever. This may or may not be because Dr. Hutchins and his faculty have at last found the way to make studium pleasanter to youth than stadium. We are inclined to think that it indicates chiefly that college football, despite its tremendous capital investment, is a rapidly declining industry. It seems about to follow the example of college baseball which, save on certain ritualistic occasions like the Harvard commencement, is now played before virtually empty stands. Over a period of about four or five decades, interest in college baseball seems to have decreased in almost direct ratio to the increase of interest in professional baseball.

This open and honest professionalization of football is a logical and indeed inevitable development. The fantastic scale on which college football was developed in the 1920s served to make the game popular among millions who have even less interest in the liberal arts, humanities and social sciences than the players themselves. Today college football has about the status of minor league baseball; its main purpose is to provide a proving ground for prospective big league players. If, as seems likely, the paid attendance at college games begins to show a serious decline, the various forms of subsidy now employed to entice promising young huskies to the campus, may be suspended. Then no doubt, the professional football club owners will set about organizing their own minor leagues, scouting and "farm" systems, and everybody—players, public and Dr. Hutchins—should be quite happy.

LINES TO A TOO-FAT ROBIN

'Twas cherry-ripes, I think,
That made your big mouth grow so orange-pink;
My Montmorencies, and my Richmonds, too,
At evening not quite ripe, but lost to view
When with my pail I came at early morn,
Just wakened by bird-bugled notes of scorn.
What worm-food grew the spots upon your breast?
Are you the only one that left the nest?

I pick you up, you flute a wild alarm;
You are not safe, there's many a thing might harm.
I toss you toward a low branch of the tree,
You flap no wings, just drop, and scold at me!
You are not hurt, you struck a mossy place,
But your parents both fly, shrieking, in my face.

Old Robins, hark to me!
Bring him just dandelion puffs for tea,
Or seeds from maples—some such soaring things
That will reduce his fat, and grow some wings,
The while I keep my cat
Locked in the sweltering house, to save your brat.

Union Now

In this time when we are beseeched on all sides by those persons who would give up their children's future for their own temporary safety it is indeed heartening to read such an article as Livingston Hartley's "A Better World—After a Democratic Victory." It serves to show that there are still those who believe in democracy and in the promise that it holds of a golden age of law, order and progress the world over.

Civilization is nothing more nor less than the close cooperation among the peoples of the whole to achieve a common goal and the individual his own personal goal. This way and this way alone can civilization be enriched, for each life adds to its own glory and the sum total equals a huge step forward in the culture and progress of man.

Yes "the people of the world, through their thinking leaders, are beginning to realize not only the need of getting together, but the very fact that only by cooperation, by equal opportunity and fairness can civilization continue at all."

Our choice has come as it has come to civilizations in the past. Are we to allow this anarchy between nations to continue or are we to establish law and order between the various peoples of the world?

In the past the great civilizations decided to keep their sovereignty, the right to make decisions, regardless of the hurt to others. And as a reward for retaining this condition of anarchy they lie prostrate in the dust, forgotten by the common man, their language dead, their culture remembered only by means of a few pieces of pottery and their knowledge lost or destroyed forever.

Our leaders tell us our choice will be different; that we are working for law and order between nations. Let each one of us, man, woman or child, with head up and hopes high, stand back of our leaders and urge them on to the achievement of that great goal—a world civilization, the United States of the World.

We must stand now, each one of us, to make sure that there will be no backsliding of America this time. A union now of the British Empire and the United States to serve as the nucleus of this future world union will provide the answer to "Mein Kampf," the answer to all tyrants, an actual point of hope, a symbol of the victory to come and which the peoples of the world will as one arise to proclaim as theirs. The future will be ours and of our own making. The reward, a peaceful, growing democratic United States of the World, where at last man's rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness will be insured for all time. RODERICK P. NAEB.

Pensions For Paupers

A letter received from England some time ago contained the following information. One brother of mine owns ten homes and received the old age pension. Another sister who is a widow received old age and widows' pension. Now please compare that with the system here in the richest country in the world.

Instead of having a dignified old age, we are reduced to pauperism. If we happen to own a home after all these years of depression, to become eligible for a pension we are forced to take a bond on it. In other words some one is penalized for being thrifty and reduced to pauperism before he is given a miserable existence. These old people who were the pioneers and built up this country that we so proudly boast about. Their cries and lamentations reach high heaven, so is it any wonder that the wrath of God is descending upon this country. E. S.

WPA Arm Of Help

In the interest of the much-abused WPA, I ask for space for a personal experience:

I was a subdirector over a group of men working in the Library of Congress over a year ago.

Today, of the five, I have had recently the personal report from three of them. One is in railway baggage-car service with a salary of $240 a month; another is in one of the accounting division of the Government, under Civil Service, due to reclassification, and another is in the War College, with the proud distinction of a personal word from the President for his special services in the past to a great economic movement.

The WPA arm of helpfulness was and is one of the most humane and truly emergency agencies which the Administration has fostered. Unfortunately, it has frequently had in positions of supervisorship men and women who supposed they were overlords. Their attitude toward men and women of genuine worth working under them was such that disgust and near-rebellion were often inspired. These people were called "reliefers" in the newspapers and were thus made to feel ashamed of the governmental agency they worked under. Yet they were often doing work of highly specialized sort. I give the above to do justice to men and women who, if rightly treated in the WPA, will later show what the same proportion of capability that the men above mentioned showed. J. O. KNOTT.

How Long?

We wonder how long it will be before some 85 per cent of our adult population realizes these three simple facts?

That the Hitler criminally insane are looking upon our United States with jealous and rapacious eyes. (We have in quantity many of the things they desire and need!)

That there exists, among them, long-time envy, bitterness and hostility toward us.

That they are now but awaiting a favorable moment to attack us, or, at least, to make heavy and humiliating demands upon us, which amounts to the same thing.

Are we prepared weakly to hand over our right, title and interest in our beloved United States to an horde of murdering heathens? We guess not! B.

Free Riding

What Westbrook Pegler fails to note or perceive in his boresome antilabor diatribes is the fact that the nonunion workman in an organized industry is getting a free ride at the expense of of his fellow workman. So, as a matter of course the union workman is out to see that the nonconformist does not get a free ride, journalistic instructions be damned. The nonconformist must be educated to pay his fare.

Also, one does not judge the merits of an orchard by the decayed fruit scattered here and there beneath the trees.

The main trouble with Pegler is that he studied theology before he approached catechism.

Wake Up, America

Not being residents of Mars or the moon, but having preferred to play at our petty and rotten game of politics rather than to make a real or sustained effort to improve conditions here, the most powerful democracy ever known in numbers and wealth cannot truthfully claim that we are powerless to help better the situation, or escape our large share of blame for it.

The man behind the present threat to the world has permitted no excusable doubt as to his objective but has arrogantly advertised his aim to destroy democracy everywhere, and we are jailing his advance agents in our cities every day. When a brave man sees himself, his family and his friends attacked he immediately seizes any weapon at hand and wades right in to defend himself and them. (If we do not know that we are being attacked, then our sleep is indeed deeper than Rip Van Winkle's.) So far our inglorious response has been a deluge of words, divided between abuse for our enemy and encouragement to our friends, the tossing off of a few mostly obsolete weapons to the latter with many promises of more later. Meanwhile we hide behind mother's skirt and desperately trust that by the time she and the rest of the family have been killed, we will have assembled so many dreadful weapons that the big bad wolf will go away and we will be safe. If all that we are really concerned about is our own prosperity, our own skins and our own brand of democracy, then we are certainly not justified in our continued existence, for life is a give as well as take proposition.

Wake up, America. It is certain that we are not so decadent as we have been made to appear, but it is fully time that we threw off our nightmare and got out from under the bed. The few false prophets who have sown disunity and temporarily succeeded in betraying our history, ideals, stout hearts and good name must be promptly repudiated and recognized for the Quislings they are, whatever their motives may be. We must stop playing the balky donkey in world affairs, realize that we have grown up as a Nation, accept our status of manhood with its responsibilities and act so as to earn the respect of ourselves, our children and our neighbors. Only then will improved prospects for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness materialize.

Propaganda Rights

Those prime spokesmen of the America First Committee, Senators Wheeler, Nye, Clark, etc., are about to launch an investigation of the movies, on the ground that they are spreading propaganda. This is odd coming from them, for what is America First but a propaganda committee?

The thing about the movie industry that the Senators object to is that it is anti-Nazi or anti-dictatorship. Yet they object to calling it "war-mongering." Are they actually pro-dictatorship? They are using their official position to try to intimidate certain people with whom they disagree. This has been done before in Germany and France, and today where is freedom of speech in those countries? Offhand one would say that this is an example of pettiness on the Senators' part, but it has its more ominous undercurrents. The very fact that the Senators should promulgate such an investigation shows that they are really not very interested in democratic forms, when they are not going their way. The investigation is one more step toward the transformation of the American First Committee into an out-and-out American Fascist Party.

Pirates! Pirates!!

The waters that wash the China coast are being policed as never before in history, for from Vladivostok to Singapore the American Navy, the Royal Navy, the Japanese Navy and the Royal East Indian Navy are steaming up and down, rehearsing for the great event that may begin soon. But I'll bet the pirates are still shaking down such merchant craft as still venture the coastal trade.

Pirates? Yes; pirates! They've been at it for centuries, come wars, come famines, and I don't think they'll let four war-strength navies interfere now. It's too good a racket for them to allow it to die down. Besides, what else could the poor pirates do? They're a hereditary class of China coast society. A few years ago they even had a "Queen" or, at least, a female chieftain; I came in contact with some of her "subjects" for a few exciting days once upon a time.

The little coastwise tramp steamer was Chinese owned, and that trip she was bound from Haiphong to Hongkong, touching at several little ports en route to load and discharge a very mixed cargo. The ship's company was very mixed, too: the captain was Liverpool Irish; the first (and only other) officer was very ex-British Navy, having been either cashiered or allowed to resign for "the good of the service;" the crew was the usual dregs of the Orient, Lascars, and what-nots. There were half a dozen Bengali guards, forsooth, to preserve order—and to repel boarders. The only other cabin passengers besides myself were two Dutch women, lay missionaries from up-country. But at one of the little ports we shipped about 50 deck passengers, mostly men, but a few women, and even children, and all average-looking Chinese. The term deck passengers means that they are entitled only to deck space and to boiling water to make their tea. They carry with them such food as they consume, and they are never, never allowed "below," regardless of wind and weather. It was all very informal.

We "wore" the flag of the then new Chinese republic, but I had noticed that we also showed a banner with a strange device—a small yellow bunting with Chinese characters in black. As events proved, we shouldn't have shown it. Well out to sea, and in early afternoon, the captain's No. 1 boy woke me from my uneasy siesta by scratching at the cabin door (they never knock) and chattering: "Captin wanchee you come top-side chop-chop," by which I gathered that the captain wanted me on the bridge immediately. Clad in pajama-trousers straw sandals and solar topee, I crossed the hot plates of the open deck, passing among the smiling deck passengers, some of whom politely made way for me, until I reached the spike-topped high iron grill fence, extending athwart the ship from starboard to port, closing off the bridge and "quarters" from the rest of the ship. Inside this space were gathered the officers, the missionaries, some Chinese "boys"—and the Bengali guards, who looked pretty green about the gills and were praying to what gods they had. The captain handed me a Webley automatic, saying: "Don't shoot until I tell ye." "Shoot what?" said I. "Those decks' are pirates," replied the captain, "and my 'stool' tells me the damned owners haven't paid the squeeze-money for this voyage and we shouldn't have shown the yellow squeeze flag, so we are to be held up as an example of other owners to keep up their payments." Meanwhile, the "first" was phlegmatically unreeling canvas fire hose, chatting pidgin to the boys, kicking the Bengalis and cursing the owners and the China coast trade all with simultaneous efficiency.

Then it began! With the Chinese equivalent of "Come on, boys," yelled by the leader, the erstwhile "decks" swarmed up the other side of the grill like monkeys, except that monkeys don't carry knives in their teeth. The "first" sprayed them all impartially with scalding steam; the captain, the boys and I emptied our revolvers, and even the Bengalis fired a few shots—I think—though I was too excited (and too scared) to be sure. But I remember wondering why the pirates didn't shoot us. The explanation came later: they hadn't been able to bring any guns on board and, anyway, dead foreign devils can't write ransom notes; live foreign devils are valuable, while dead foreign devils are worthless. But if they had seized the ship it would have been all up with the nonforeign devil captives, who would have been tossed overboard with their tummies slit to make 'em sink fast.

But they didn't seize the ship. It was the "first" with his steam hose who saved the day: the pirates couldn't take it. None really got over the grill except as scalded corpses. When their numbers had been reduced below the winning ratio of pirates vs. the rest—the survivors sensibly quit. They were battened below hatches, where the Dutch missionaries swathed their scalds and prayed over them. But they had lost face, and the crew kidded them mercilessly.

Two nervous days later we made Hongkong and our captain signaled from the harbor mouth to the port authorities, "Come and see what we've got," or signals to that effect, for a patrol boat came alongside and removed the unlucky survivors of the fracas; the others had gone over the side two days before. I couldn't wait long in Hongkong, so I gave my evidence to the court by deposition and moved on, and some weeks later read in the South China Morning Post that some of the leaders had been hanged on the highest gibbet I've ever seen, which used to be kept permanently set up on the Kowloon side of the bay—mostly for hanging pirates. But as long as I remained in the Far East I used to read occasionally that such and such a ship had just "got through" or was overdue—"believed pirates."

Just before we parted I asked the captain why the "decks" hadn't held me up when I passed among them on my way to the grill fence, as they could easily have done, instead of letting me join the officers, the missionaries, and—oh, yes—the Bengalis.

"Well, ye see," said the captain, "they hadn't any f-earms, and they didn't know if you had any. And they wanted to take us all together. They didn't want to take you all alone. It wouldn't have been sportin' of them." P. P. J. KNAYB.

Three Imperative U. S. War Actions

SINCE the President has postponed his fireside chat, there is time to report what some members of his Administration wish he would say. None of those reported upon has been identified in the past with an extreme attitude. They have been, rather, middle-of-the-roaders, torn between the hope of avoiding war and the desire to aid the nations fighting the Axis, doubtful at times how far our national interest required us to go.

LINDLEY

This, in gist, is what they would like the President to say:

As you know, I believe that the aim of the present Nazi regime is domination of the world. Those of you who are still doubtful will at least agree to this: that a nation which dominates the continents of Europe and Africa will have resources greater than ours. In time it might control Asia, either by conquest or alliance. As a matter of fact, we have irrefutable evidence that the Nazis already have plans well advanced for the control of South America.

Bluntly, my duty as President is to prevent, if possible, the growth of any nation or combination of nations powerful enough to menace, now or in the future, the security of the United States.

DURING the first two years of this war, my main objective was to prevent the Nazis from breaking through in our direction. Because I knew the Western European democracies had fallen behind them in the production of modern arms, especially airplanes, I advocated the amendment of the Neutrality Act so that we might sell them American airplanes and other weapons. But the Nazi army proved to be even more powerful than I or most other people expected.

After the fall of France, some of my own military advisers were doubtful whether England could survive the summer. But I decided that as long as the British were determined to fight, we should give them, in our own interest, all the help we could. So I raked together and shipped across rifles, machine guns, artillery and ammunition. Later I sent them 50 destroyers in return for bases to strengthen our own last-ditch defenses, if they should fail. Frankly, although I am naturally optimistic, the most I could reasonably hope for was to keep the British fighting until we were better prepared to defend ourselves.

WHEN the R. A. F. defeated the Luftwaffe in the great air battle over Great Britain of August to October, 1940, I felt immensely relieved. But the British did not have the resources to match those of a Nazi-dominated Europe. They had no prospect of catching up with, much less surpassing, the military power of the Axis. The British people did not realize this, but their leaders did. It was then proposed that we underwrite them and their allies through the lend-lease bill.

In passing the lend-lease act Congress committed us to limited participation in a war aimed first at the defense of the British strongholds in the oceans, which are our outer lines of defense, and ultimately to the destruction of the Nazi regime.

CHURCHILL and I had the idea that if we could keep the Nazis ringed in Europe—by troops and naval blockade—and bomb Germany the way the Germans had bombed England, the Nazis would eventually give up. Many military experts scout this idea: they say the Nazi army must first be defeated in the field. We saw no way to do this. The British haven't got the men, and we haven't got the ships to transport and supply a great army of our own.

The British felt, however, that if we would supply them with enough weapons and food they could outlast the Nazis and eventually win, after a long, hard war—perhaps five or ten years.

However, even orthodox military men begin to see now how the Nazis can be beaten—in fact, how they cannot win if the right things are done.

I WON'T stand on formalities—although nowhere in the world, except among our own isolationists, is there much doubt left that if we declared war tomorrow the defeat of the Nazis would be assured, and in fairly short order. More imperative, for the present, are three concrete actions:

1. Putting full steam behind our production of armaments—to be shipped to the British and the Russians.

2. Seeing that they are delivered—which includes using the American Navy to protect the sea lane all the way to British ports, and to blockade Japan if she interferes with shipments to Vladivostok.

3. Landing forces in West Africa, as an indication of our intention to stop any Nazi expansion in that direction—toward South America.

We have two choices. The first is to keep on with our present half-hearted effort. At best this means a long war; at worst eventual British defeat. The second is destruction at the source of the threat to our security—which can be brought about in a short war, perhaps within a year or two.

The views expressed above run counter to public opinion generally—although several readers of this column recently have expressed similar ones—but they reveal, in essence, a changing emphasis, perhaps a trend, in official thought.

The Gallup Poll

Public Confidence in British Victory Rising as War Enters Its Third Year

By the American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 9.—American public confidence in eventual victory for Britain and her allies has revived considerably since the British reverses in Greece and in Crete last spring and since Russia entered the war. But it is still below the spirit of confidence which prevailed at the outbreak of war two years ago this month.

A series of public opinion polls conducted by the Institute during the two years of the conflict traces the alternate periods of optimism and pessimism in the United States as the fortunes of war seemed to favor or hinder the British cause. The latest study indicates that a little more than two-thirds of the voters polled think Britain is going to win the war, while only 6 per cent think Germany will win and the rest are either undecided or think a stalemate will result.

This represents a considerable increase in confidence in recent weeks—coinciding with the stubborn resistance of Russia against the Nazi invasion—and a very substantial increase since the dark days of June-July 1940 when France fell victim to the Nazi sword.

The public's ideas on the outcome of the war are, of course, purely a layman's "hunch," since the common people have no military experience which would give them special insight. Military experts themselves are not in agreement as to the probable outcome of the war. But the public's views about the progress of the war may be important, nevertheless, as a guide to attitudes on war issues in general.

The Institute has found, for example, that American interventionist sentiment tends to increase when Britain is suffering reverses. The present rising confidence in a British victory may, indeed, account for the lack of public energy in pushing the defense program which some observers allege exists today.

The trend of public confidence in a British victory is shown in the following series of surveys.

"Which side do you think will win the war—Britain or Germany?"

	Britain	Germany	Stalemate or Undecided
Sept. 1939 (War Begins)	22%	7%	11%
July 1940 (France Fallen)	32	33	35
Sept. 1940 (End of First Year)	43	17	40
Jan. 1941 (Wavell Success in Libya)	63	10	27
Apr. 1941 (Greece Fallen)	50	17	33
Today (Russian War)	69	6	25

Institute studies have found that voters who believe Britain will win give four main reasons: (1) Britain's control of the seas and her ability to get supplies and food from her colonies; (2) confidence that the United States will not permit Britain to go down; (3) belief that Germany cannot stand a long war without supplies from the outside world; (4) confidence in the character and morale of the British people.

Federal Socialization

By Mark Sullivan

War Powers Feared

ON September 4 a German submarine fired torpedoes at an American Naval destroyer. That, under the circumstances, was a sign of war. Certainly it was a sufficient sign to make it desirable that America should pull itself together, should achieve unity and efficiency for preparedness against the possibility ahead.

Four days later, September 8, Congressman Martin Dies, chairman of the Committee to Investigate un-American Activities, made a formal charge against a man about to fill one of the five or six most important posts in the Government's organization for preparedness. The charge was that Mr. Leon Henderson, expected to be in charge of price administration, and some important subordinates, are—it can be put either of two ways—either that these persons are sympathetic to the collectivist organization of society, or that they are wholeheartedly devoted to the system of private ownership.

To pass judgment on these charges is not the purpose of the present column. Except to say that the charge against Mr. Henderson personally seems much less supported by the evidence than in the case of some of his subordinates. So far as the evidence presented by Mr. Dies goes, justification for the charge against Mr. Henderson is largely indirect. It might reasonably be said that if an organization includes, in important positions, subordinates holding objectionable views, the head of the organization is himself chargeable with responsibility.

THIS is to be said: The office of price administrator, if given the powers sought from Congress, is an office which, more than almost any other agency of government, could destroy the system of private ownership—if destruction of the system were desired by persons who lay down the policies of the office and make its day-to-day decisions. Indeed the situation is more delicate. In the existing situation, with private ownership under bitter attack by another conception of society; in a condition of war or near-war, which always makes it difficult for private ownership to function—in this situation it is hardly enough for the price administrator to be merely judicially fair toward private ownership. If private ownership is to survive it is necessary for the price administrator and his subordinates to believe in it whole-heartedly.

To pass from the case of Mr. Henderson and price administration, it is a fact that there is widespread apprehension about much of the whole defense program. The suspicion is that there is a—I quote a phrase of Mr. Arthur Krock, of the New York Times—"steady attempt of the veteran New Deal group to direct the whole program toward Federal socialization of industry after the war."

The same uneasy feeling is expressed by Dr. Stanley High in the New York Herald-Tribune. Dr. High is eloquently earnest for preparedness, but is troubled: "The suspicions and antagonisms which, for fair or foul reasons, attached to the New Deal are being attached to the incomprehensibly gigantic enterprise of defense. Many of the New Deal's most controversial figures, large and small, and many of its most hotly contested projects, have found shelter behind the defense front. No one knows and no single person could possibly find out all that is transpiring behind that front. It may be all to the good. But we don't know and it is not patriotic good form to inquire. Meanwhile there is a general conviction, among both liberals and conservatives, that if we knew we wouldn't like it."

THE suspicion is entertained by Congress; it accounts for that body's hesitancy to confer powers which would be proper for defense, but might be used for purposes other than defense. In this very price-control measure, now before a committee, it is provided that "This act . . . shall terminate . . . one year from the date of a declaration by the President, or the Congress by concurrent resolution." That provision reflects a fear that whoever is President when the emergency ends might be tempted to retain the extraordinary powers permanently. So Congress provides that Congress itself can terminate the emergency "by concurrent resolution," which does not require signature by the President.

The bill provides for a one-year period following the termination of the act for the purpose of winding up operations. And Congress directs that "during such one-year period the authority granted by this act to the President shall be exercised in such manner as to facilitate readjustment to normal conditions." What Congress means by "readjustment to normal conditions" is return to the system of private ownership.

In all this the stark fact is that we need national unity for defense—and that national unity is impossible to achieve so long as the condition here described exists.

Churchill's Speech

Hopes For Greater Naval Aid

London, Sept. 9.—A partial text of Prime Minister Churchill's House of Commons speech follows:

Late in July I learned the President of the United States would welcome a meeting with me in order to survey the entire world position in relation to the several and common interests of our respective countries. . . .

Important conclusions were reached on four main topics.

First of all, there was the eight-point declaration of broad principles and aims which guide and govern the action of the British and United States Governments and peoples amid the many dangers by which they are beset in these times.

Secondly, that measures should be taken to help Russia resist the hideous onslaught Hitler has made upon her.

Thirdly, the policy to be pursued toward Japan in order, if possible, to put a stop to further encroachments in the Far East likely to endanger the safety and interests of Great Britain or the United States and by timely action to prevent the spread of war to the Pacific Ocean.

Also, there were a large number of purely technical matters to be dealt with and a close personal relationship was established between the high naval, military and air attaches of both countries. . . .

I have, as the house knows, hitherto consistently deprecated the formulation of peace aims or war aims, however you put it, by His Majesty's government at this stage, and I deprecate it at this time when the end of the war is not in sight and when the conflict sways to and fro with alternating fortunes, and while conditions and associations at the end of the war are unforeseeable. But a joint declaration by Great Britain and the United States of America is an event of a totally different nature.

Sinkings Decrease

Although principles in declaration have long been familiar to the British and American democracies, the fact that it is a united declaration sets up a milestone or monument which needs only the stroke of victory to become a permanent part of the history of human progress.

The Battle of the Atlantic has been going on unceasingly. In his attempt to blockade and starve out these islands by U-boat and air attacks, the enemy continually changes his tactics. Driven from one beat to the next, chased from home waters and driven from the approaches to these islands, he proceeds to the other side of the Atlantic. Increasingly hampered by United States patrols in the North Atlantic, he develops his malice in the south and we follow hard upon his tracks and sometimes we anticipate his tactics. . . .

Improvement in sea warfare manifests itself in two directions. In the first place, there is a very great falling off in the sinkings of British and Allied shipping and a corresponding increase in the tonnage of valuable cargoes safely landed on our shores . . . The second improvement is the extraordinary rise in the last three months in the destruction of German and Italian shipping which has been achieved very largely by the development of new and brilliant tactics of the coast command and R. A. F. bombing squadrons acting with the coastal command. . . .

I would like the House to pay attention to this statement because it is really an extraordinary statement for anyone to be able to make. I may say that sinkings of British and Allied shipping by enemy action in July and August added together do not amount to much more than one-third of the German and Italian tonnage we have sunk by our aircraft and our submarines.

20 Times the Target

How remarkable that statement is may be judged when we remember that we present perhaps ten, or it might even be 20, times the target to hostile attacks upon the seas as is presented us by the shipping of the enemy. . . . .

The Germans are much hampered on the American part of the Atlantic by fear of trouble with the powerful American naval forces which ceaselessly patrol the approaches to the Western Hemisphere. This has been a help to us but I could wish it might be a greater help.

The enemy's tactics may change. No doubt Hitler would rather finish off Russia and Britain before coming to close quarters with the United States.

Hitler has, however, also the greatest possible need to prevent precious munition supplies now streaming across the Atlantic in pursuance of the policy of the United States Government from reaching our shores. Should he do so the area of danger zones will again become ocean wide. Meanwhile, let us hear no vain talk of the Battle of the Atlantic having been won.

It was with great pleasure that on my homeward voyage I visited Iceland. We were received with the utmost cordiality by the government and the people.

I had the honor to review large numbers of strong British and United States forces which no doubt for performance of entirely different and separate duties happen to be engaged jointly in defending this important island, a stepping stone across the Atlantic, from Nazi intrusion and attack.

Syrians to Get Syria

. . . Very considerable United States and British naval and air forces are assembled in Iceland. Spacious airfields which we have constructed and are expanding there and in Newfoundland will play an ever increasing part, not only in control of the broad waters, but in the continued flow of the ever broadening stream of heavy bombers now acting against Germany, night after night, which will play a decisive part, or one of the decisive parts, in the final victory. . . .

We are in Syria only to end the war. However, we must make it quite clear that our policy and that of our Free French allies is that Syria is to be handed back to the Syrians, who will assume as soon as possible their independent sovereign rights. . . .

Powerful reinforcements have reached the army of the Nile and I now feel considerable confidence that we shall be able to defend Egypt sucessfully from German invasion across the western desert. . . .

The magnificent resistance of the Russian armies and the successful manner in which their vast front is being withdrawn in the teeth of Nazi invasion make it certain Hitler's hopes of a short war with Russia will be dispelled. Already in three months he has lost more German blood than was shed in any single year of the last war.

Already he faces the certainty of having to maintain his armies spread out from the Arctic to the Black Sea with precarious lines of communication through all the severities of a Russian winter and vigorous counter-strokes that may be expected from the Russian armies.

From the moment, now nearly 80 days ago, when Russia was invaded we have cast about for every means to give with the utmost speed effective help to our new ally. . . . The need is urgent and the scale is heavy because a considerable part of the munitions industry and the iron and steel production of Russia has fallen into the hands of the enemy. . . .

Production Flow Rises

The flow of our own production in this country and in our empire is still rising. It will reach the full flood in the third year of the war when our factories are completed and come into bearing.

If the United States are to fulfill the task they are setting themselves, large installations will have to be set up or converted and there will have to be a further curtailment of civilian consumption over there.

We must ourselves expect definite reduction in the importation of supplies from America upon which we had counted. Within certain limits we are prepared to accept those facts and their consequences. . . .

We must have control and maintenance of the through communications from the warm water port of Basra to the Caspian Sea. It is from this point particularly that American supplies can be carried into the center of Russia in an ever widening flow and British supplies as well. . . .

The Allied front now runs in an enormous crescent from Spitzbergen in the Arctic Ocean region to Tobruk in the western desert and our section of this front will be held by British and Empire armies with their growing strength fed and equipped by sea borne supplies from Great Britain, the United States, India and Australia and I am glad to say that adequate naval power will be at hand, both in the Baltic and Indian Oceans, to secure these seas against all attacks . . .

The mood of Great Britain is widely and rightly averse from every form of shallow or premature exultation. This is not the time for boasting or glowing prophecies but there is this: A year ago our position looked forlorn and well night desperate to all eyes but our own. Today we may say aloud before an awestruck world, "we still are masters of our fate. We still are captains of our soul."

Porterie's Politics

I DOUBT that more than a few citizens appreciate the enormity of the appointment and confirmation of Gaston L. Porterie, the Louisiana political of the Huey Long dictatorship, who is now sitting temporarily in the Southern District of New York as a member of the Federal judiciary.

The facts existed before Porterie was appointed and confirmed and they were especially well known to one member of the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee which recommended his confirmation. And there is no reason to believe that the other members of the subcommittee or of the full committee, or, indeed, any other member of the Senate could have been ignorant of the facts.

His career in Louisiana as the Attorney General of the State Government under the dictatorship had been notorious and it is the solemn duty of all Senators to guard the character of the Federal courts, even though the performance of that duty necessitate some violation of Senatorial courtesy and privilege. Courtesy and privilege require Senators to respect one another's nominations to the Federal judiciary up to a certain, or uncertain, point. But surely Senators owe a duty to the people which Senatorial courtesy and privilege should yield to.

WHERE was the great Liberal, George Norris, when this man was being put over, within a period of one week, without hearings by the Judiciary Committee, on the recommendation of a subcommittee? Where was young Bob LaFollette; where were Nye and Wheeler and Wagner, and why didn't Senator Taft take it on himself to present a statement and analysis of the facts of Porterie's political life and associations?

I have recounted that Porterie, as Attorney General under the dictatorship, failed to oppose the perpetration of the frauds which were practiced by the faction of which he was a leader in the primary which elected to the Senate the man who later became his sponsor, John H. Overton. I have declared that when one State judge attempted to frustrate the fraudulent practices in one parish or county, Porterie, as Attorney General, and by virtue of his higher authority in the law department of the State, in turn frustrated the judge.

ONE day I may explain in detail the operation and effect of the fraudulent practice of causing dummy candidates to enter elections, but it is a complex subject and, for the present, I will just stand on the fact that a special committee of the Senate which investigated Overton's election did denounce it as "vicious and abhorrent" and did report that "a majority of election commissioners where dummy candidates filed were favorable to the candidacy of Overton."

Here we have a political service by Porterie in favor of Overton's candidacy which consisted of open toleration of fraud and then we have a return of the favor by Overton to Porterie in the form of an appointment for life to the Federal Court.

FOR Tom Connally's conduct in this case no excuse is apparent. Senator Connally, of Texas, was chairman of the special committee which revealed and denounced the fraud and he could not have been ignorant of Porterie's duty as State Attorney General to protect the ballot or of his failure to make any effort. Connally was the one who reported fraud to the Senate, and the words "vicious and abhorrent political practice" were his language. Nevertheless, it later fell out that he was chairman of the subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee which passed on Porterie's qualifications and recommended his confirmation, with no protest from him.

But, of course, the device of the dummy candidate was only one atrocity among many perpetrated by the Long machine during Porterie's term as Attorney General. He was in office when, for another example, a concession to drill and sell oil in the State oil reserve was handed over to a group of his own, and Long's political henchmen, which yielded them a profit of $337,000 in the first year of its exploitation. He was, in short, an active and aggressive and not merely an acquiescent member of the Long machine and, nevertheless, we find him now sitting on the Federal bench as one of those younger and forward looking jurists through whom President Roosevelt, by means of his court-packing plan, intended to reanimate the Constitution and improve the character of the courts.

On Propaganda

By Barnet Nover

Witch Hunt On Capitol Hill

FOR YEARS and years we have been hearing a great deal about propaganda. During the next week or so, as the Senate subcommittee which is allegedly investigating "war propaganda" by the movie industry goes ahead with its hearings, we shall hear a great deal more about it.

NOVER

There is little likelihood, however, that any great amount of enlightenment will result from the present proceedings. The chairman of the subcommittee in question and most of the members are as impartial as would be a panel of butchers looking into the merits of vegetarianism. There approach is not scientific, but inquisitorial. The role they have assumed is not that of judges, but of prosecutors. The defendant has been found guilty before even being brought to trial. All that is asked of him is that he confess it.

It is obvious that we shall learn very little from this latest witch hunt on Capitol Hill. Yet propaganda, what it is and how it operates, is a subject worth looking into.

THE WORD is one of ancient and honorable lineage. A college of propaganda to educate priests for missions was established by Pope Urban VIII early in the seventeenth century. Propaganda in its original sense is, as Webster definesit: "Any organized or concerted group, effort or movement to spread a particular doctrine or system of doctrines or principles. It has come in the course of time to have a more sinister meaning. Propaganda today is regarded, to cite Webster again, as the "secret or clandestine dissemination of ideas, information, gossip, or the like, for the purpose of helping or injuring a person, an institution, a cause, etc."

The accent is, of course, on "secret" and "clandestine." Propaganda, in other words, is, we have been led to believe, a form of black magic operated by malign spirits who, keeping well in the background, throw a hypnotic spell over their intended victims and compel them to do things which are in opposition to their basic feelings and interests.

IN THE STATEMENT which he read at the opening hearing of the Senate subcommittee, Senator Gerald P. Nye made a reference to the large sum of money Great Britain allegedly spent in the United States for propaganda to get us into World War I. It is clear that Senator Nye believes this propaganda was effective. It is equally clear that he is persuaded that had some way been found to curb or expose British propaganda in the years between 1914 and 1917 the United States might not have gone to war.

This is very flattering to the British. But it is not in the least flattering to Americans. It suggests that the 120 million Americans, including the overwhelming majority in both Houses of Congress who followed Woodrow Wilson, were children who, at the sound of a penny whistle by a British Pied Piper, were ready to follow him to destruction. And it is precisely the same unflattering presumption that seems to be behind the present inquiry.

AS A MATTER of fact it was not the British alone who spent money in this country for propaganda purposes in the period leading up to our entry into World War I. The Germans were pretty busy, too. Why was it, then, if propaganda is presumably as effective in getting people to do what they shouldn't do and believe what they shouldn't believe that the Germans failed while, as Senator Nye would have it, the British succeeded? Why is it that while, during the present war, German propagandist efforts have been infinitely greater than those they have failed to win over American opinion?

The answer is that what the Germans said in the period between 1914 and 1917 was negated by what they did. The same is even more true today. The best British propagandists, then as now, have been on the German side.

SENATOR NYE objects to certain movies because they give a picture of conditions in Germany which, he insists, creates a feeling of hostility toward one of the participants in the war and therefore feed the flames of American belligerence. Yet that feeling would exist if no movies had ever been made or if nobody ever went to the movies. And, of course, there is no law compelling an American, not even Senator Nye, to go to the movies and if they insist on doing so there is nothing to stop them from finding out in advance the kind of a movie it is.

The attitude of hostility toward Hitler and the Nazi regime which the overwhelming majority of Americans share is no product of the kind of propaganda Senator Nye has in mind when he uses that word. It is the result of a long process of education in realities. In this process of education the press, the radio, books magazines, teachers, preachers, statesmen, foreign correspondents and many others have played a part.

Only a few days before Senator Nye's statement appeared the Nazi authorities in Paris picked out at random three individuals guiltless of crime and executed them merely by way of reprisal for the wounding of a German sergeant. Any individual who had been brought up to believe in justice and fair dealing and civilized conduct would have been untrue to himself did he not resent and resent bitterly this display of Nazi barbarism. Yet what the German authorities did to those three hostages is as nothing compared to what Hitler has been doing in Poland, in Yugoslavia, in Norway and in every other land which he has trodden under foot.

The American attitude toward Nazi Germany is not the result of the fact that Americans are gullible—that mistrust of the people's ability to sift truth from falsehood our isolationists share with the totalitarians—but because they have become aware of realities which can be ignored only to their destruction and the destruction of all that we hold most precious.

shipped in full carload lots, the District's food supply has not been materially affected by the strike, it was said.

"Less" carload shipments into Washington average between 60 and 75 cars daily, stated Grover Blackstone, joint freight agent for all rail companies here except the C. & O. He explained that a "less" carload might carry shipments for as many as 50 different persons or companies, and that "less" carloads contained an average of only about 25 per cent foodstuffs.

Alarm that vital defense materials might be affected by the strike was apparently a basis for Representative Randolph's statement that "It is time the heads of both the Senate and House District Committees step out of their customary legislative roles" to intervene in the strike.

"We have an obligation to use our offices" to try to bring about a settlement, he told reporters, indicating that both House and Senate District Committee heads should cooperate in an effort to bring the parties together. Senator McCarran was out of the city yesterday.

Increase of Police, Firemen Asked

undesirable characters to the Nation's Capital.

"The proper supervision and control of this floating population has placed an increasingly serious burden on the personnel of the department. It is felt that an increase of 250 men will permit the proper patroling of the streets of Washington."

The police budget estimates also propose splitting the present Eleventh Precinct in Anacostia with the construction of a $40,000 precinct station at Forty-second Street and Benning Road Northeast.

In justification for the new station, the police estimates explain that the present Eleventh Precinct covers approximately 17 square miles "and it is felt that residents at the east end of this precinct are not getting the protection to which they are entitled."

Apparently cognizant of recent criticism leveled at the department—which resulted in a Congressional investigation and wholesale changes in personnel and procedure—officials renewed requests for improved, scientific crime-fighting facilities.

The Commissioners were asked to provide a "chemical microscopist" at $3800 a year to "assist in the detection of crime and in the education of members of the force in the use of scientific methods of crime detection."

The services of such a chemist, it was pointed out, have been "sadly needed" for a number of years.

"Heretofore," the estimate report stated, "all work of this type has been done either by volunteers, or by various Government agencies such as the Bureau of Standards and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"Though this assistance has been gladly rendered," the budget report added, "it has frequently caused serious delay due to the fact that their own work must come first with the agencies performing the tests."

An item of $96,900 was included in the police estimates to replace and add to the department's mobile equipment. Requests were made for 3 new patrol wagons, 3 tow trucks, 25 motorcycles, 23 small cruisers and 12 ambulance scout cars.

It is planned, the Commissioners were informed, to replace one light cruiser in each precienct with an ambulance-scout car stocked with complete first aid equipment.

In requesting the ambulance vehicles, the report pointed out:

"Through the District hires the services of ambulances belonging to the various hospitals, it has been found that frequently these ambulances are delayed in responding to calls due to the fact that they are occpuied on previous calls."

The estimates also called for an administrative assistant to the department's chief clerk at a salary of $2600 a year. This position is necessary, it was explained, because the chief clerk's position—filled by a captain—is constantly changing and the need is great for a permanent assistant who could become thoroughly familiar with the work and serve in an advisory capacity.

Because of present overcrowding at the Second Precinct Station, Fifth Street and New York Avenue Northwest, a sum of $21,500 was requested to add a new tier cell block. This, the Commissioners were told, is needed urgently for the "safety and welfare" of persons arrested in this congested area.

Among the more important items in the Fire Department estimates were requests for a new fire boat at a cost of $75,000 and an appropriation of $110,000 for construction of an engine house near North Capitol and Crittenden Streets Northwest.

The new fire boat would replace the present Firefighter which has been in service 36 years and is described as "old and obsolete."

The new boat would be approximately 64 feet in overall length with a 16-foot beam, 5-foot draft with steel suitable for breaking ice. It would have a displacement of about 50 tons.

Current Fire Department funds already provide $2000 for preparation of plans and specifications for the proposed engine house. When and if completed, the new quarters will be occupied by personnel and equipment of No. 14 Engine Co. at 413 Eighth Street Northwest, which would be abandoned.

Fire officials asked the Commissioners to authorize purchase of ten new vehicles to replace present apparatus at an estimated cost of $81,850—an increase of $20,150 over present appropriations.

New vehicles needed include three pumping engines, two hose wagons, one aerial truck, one rescue squad wagon, two chiefs' cars and one passenger automobile, the city heads were told.

The Fire Department asked permission to increase its personnel by 20 privates at salaries of $2100 each a year.

The District National Guard, now in active military service, estimated its expenses for the 1943 fiscal year at $75,000. The present appropriation is $32,627.

In submitting his budget estimates, Brig. Gen. Albert Cox declared:

"The induction of units into Federal service has not diminished the volume of work in the headquarters offices. There has been a tremendous increase in the amount of correspondence and general clerical work.

"The War Department," Gen. Cox added, "is continually requiring the making of numerous reports and the transfer and return of all Federal property records is in itself a herculean task and this work will have to be duplicated on the return of the guard to the city."

verted to transatlantic service for aid to Britain and insisted that solution of the petroleum shortage must come from piplines and tankers, rather than railroad tank cars.

In the meantime the Interstate Commerce Commission approved a new rate schedule to expedite movement of gasoline and oil eastward by tank car. Transport tariffs are lowered 25 per cent for fuel oil and gasoline. On crude oil originating east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River, the reduction in hauling costs is 50 per cent. Cuts of 27 to 40 per cent are provided on shipments coming from other sections of the country.

Making public a report showing that gasoline consumption in 17 Eastern States and the District of Columbia declined nearly 13 million gallons during the week ended August 29, Davies declared:

"This is significant because it indicates an actual accomplishment in the way of effecting an overall 10 per cent reduction in the consumption of gasoline."

He said it was achieved without causing undue hardships or inconvenience to the motoring public.

"While these new figures are gratifying," said Davies, "the public must not be deluded into believing our difficulties are over. This saving was accomplished because a definite program was under way. That program has and will cause some public inconvenience.

"The coordinator's office is constantly seeking to alleviate this inconvenience but until we are positive this may be done safely without risk of precipitating a serious gasoline and fuel famine this winter we will not be able to lift supply restrictions."

Davies' report revealed not only a 10.1 per cent decline in gasoline deliveries for the week ended August 29 but also a volume—113,273,947 gallons—which was 2.8 per cent under the base week period of July 18, when deliveries totaled 116,592,866 gallons.

D. C. Highway Unit Reduces Its Budget

A budget totaling $4,605,060 for the 1943 fiscal year—$457,000 less than the current appropriation—yesterday was submitted to the Commissioners by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways.

At the same time, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer asked for $411,100, an increase of $31,590 over funds for the current fiscal year.

Of principal importance in Whitehurst's estimates was an item of $18,000 to prepare plans and specifications for a grade separation and new bridge over Rock Creek Park at Klingle Road Northwest and $496,000 to complete the proposed grade separation at Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest.

Whitehurst also requested funds for improvements to 35 streets.

He explained his lowered budget figure by pointing out that 1942 fiscal year appropriations had been high to make use of a "surprise" surplus in the gasoline fund from the 1941 budget. However, he said, there is now no surplus in the fund and the higher appropriations are not needed.

Traffic Director Van Duzer would add 15 positions to strengthen his staff. There is a particular need, he said, for additional clerks to handle the increased volume of work due to rising automobile registrations.

Van Duzer requested $27,500 to install traffic signals at 24 intersections where the need is "great." Of these, 19 would be two-way lights and the balance three-way.

The highway department again asked for $30,000 for snow removal equipment and $75,000 to carry on the work. To repave major thoroughfares, Whitehurst asked $269,000 and $411,000 for paving of local streets.

Streets selected for repaving and improvements and the individual costs follow:

Eastern Avenue, Whittier to Laurel Street, $19,400.

Howard Students Seek Employment

Howard University announced yesterday many of its men and women students returning to the university next week are anxious to obtain part-time employment to aid them in paying their college expenses.

The students would be capable at performing such tasks as serving meals, operating switchboards and elevators in apartment houses and acting as chauffeurs, it was suggested.

Interested persons should apply to the dean of men or dean of women through Dupont 6100, it was said.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Her Doctor Husband, Who Specializes in Feminine Clientele, Is So Bored by Women Socially That He Leaves Parties Rather Than Talk to Them; Why?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am over 35 years of age. I mention the fact so that you may know this is a problem involving adults. My problem has to do with my husband's attitude toward womankind—myself as well as my women friends. He is a doctor rather well known for his work with women, and yet he cannot endure them socially. He refuses to be partners with them at bridge, golf, parties, dances, etc. He says they bore him too much and he prefers the social companionship of men, exclusively.

This is not a pose. He means what he says—as I have learned in our several years' marriage. And yet, why should women bore him? He has every masculine quality that women adore—from a splendidly handsome physique to a charming gentleness of manner that fascinates them. His detached attitude toward women applies to me, too—for the most part. I would like to know what to do about it—not because I wish to intrude into his mind and absorb his octopus-like (as I have seen my friends try to do with their husbands), but because I want to help him adjust to normal, daily living.

As far as I am concerned, I care so much for him that I am content with crumbs of companionship, if that is all he wishes to give me. I ask only to serve him—which may sound as if I am a doormat-wife, and I am not at all. I love him deeply, sincerely and completely. And it worries me when I have all his special friends as guests at a party and he suddenly disappears, and I know he has suddenly got bored and gone off to read a book. Yes, he does just that. He simply vanishes because some woman has tried to be nice to him socially and consequently bored him.

Do you suppose his social aversion to feminine companionship is due to his daily (almost hourly) contact with sickly, weakly, neurotic women? Or does it stem from some deeper prejudice that can't be changed because he doesn't want it changed? I am not too unhappy (which amounts to saying that I am a little unhappy, doesn't it?)—because I understand him and demand nothing he doesn't willingly offer. And women friends of mine often say to me: "I would give all I possess to have a husband as attentive, thoughtful and gentle as yours!" And that is his manner toward me. But it is as though he were acting a part he had set himself to play; and even I cannot tell when he is acting and when he means it.

I have known one other doctor who reacts in almost the same way toward women; except that he is even worse. He never attends his wife's parties, except to greet the guests with a "How-do-you-do?" and then disappear. My husband, however, is a perfect host as long as he can be with men. But let one or two females try to corner him for a talk and he edges gracefully away and is gone. What I must know is whether his condition can be corrected. Or is it a normal attitude? And am I the one whose attitude is wrong?

BAFFLED.

Case of a Man Subjectively Content

DEAR BAFFLED: By virtue of taking unto himself a wife, apparently your husband has achieved emotional and social self completion, so that he feels no need or temptation to explore further complementary possibilities in the feminine personality—which, I daresay, he finds singularly lacking in intellectual stimulus and response, even if he were inclined to seek such values and satisfactions from that source, which I judge he isn't.

With his emotional requirements fully met in the marriage, he lives and moves and has his objective social being on a plateau of integrated intellectual consciousness, from which point of vantage he is chiefly engrossed in matters having a preponderantly (or traditionally) masculine flavor—such as (for instance) science, politics, finance, sports, philosophy, religious theory, the dynamics of national socialism, etc.

In brief, his preferred social diversion consists in mental activity or adventure, leading to an enlargement of his knowledge in every field of his special interests. Wanting to give sincere and substantial expression to his preference, and, also, to guarantee some genuine and profitable response, he turns straightforwardly to the company of men—and blandly eschews the company of women. And that, I think, is altogether understandable, inasmuch as the average male of the species is essentially more objective in round-table discourse than the average female of the species—in the sense that he is animated primarily by a spirit of inquiry; and she by a desire to make a good impression (particularly if men are present)!

Thus, I see nothing either mysterious or censurable about your husband's consistent refusal to play the role of hypocrite at social gatherings. On the contrary, I consider his heroically stand-pat performance a sign of strong character, awarely superior mentality and laudable integrity. Why should he let his personality be conversationally mauled over by an unending series of happenstance women partners at parties? Why shouldn't he spare his manifestly first-class intellect the indignity of being twitteringly inspected as though it were a tray of hors d'oeuvres?

As for why women bore him so acutely, I suppose it is because they insist upon bidding for his social attention, despite his having courteously signified that he would rather they didn't. As for the origin of his basic disinterest (which they should have the perception to see, and the good sense to respect), it obviously stems from the fact that, on the subjective side of his existence, he is a happily married man; and, on the worldly side, in the realm of friendships, distinctly "a man's man." Which, properly appraised, leaves you nothing to complain about; but, rather, much to be proud of and thankful for, it seems to me.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post's Woman's Page.

Short Jackets, Straight Skirts, Featured in Molyneux Showing

For the woman who cannot wear the long jacket here is good news from Capt. Molyneux, one of the foremost designers of women's tailored outfits. Short jackets were featured in an advance showing of his American-designed clothes, held yesterday at a local store. Typical of the jackets is the one shown in the suit above. It is of Dublin green wool tweed with a black Hudson seal collar. The slim, slim skirt has the curved slit which is an unmistakable Molyneux touch, repeated in the circle detail on the jacket and blouse underneath. Other typical Molyneux touches for fall were: Natural defined waistlines; unusual diagonal V-shape seams and tucking; pockets everywhere—front and back; slot-pleated skirt simulating a double-stitched outside seam; straight, simple little skirts; repetition of detail, in buttons and pockets; loose sleeves; belt interest—some trimmed with vivid dyed pony; torch red used alone and combined with black, or black combined with light blue

Creme Vichyssoise Easily Attained

WE HAVE all heard someone yearn for a certain food eaten on some special occasion. Often it is a dish believed among the unattainable such as Creme Vichyssoise.

This thrifty soup is not beyond easy reach since food companies make such excellent canned soups. They cannot make each and every soup, but they do make soups that can readily be made into the specially desired one, without the hours of preparation usually given the original soup. Try making Creme Vichyssoise from a can of chicken soup with rice, to which other ingredients are added. Here is the recipe:

Creme Vichyssoise

Cut 3 peeled medium-sized onions in fine pieces and cook with 2½ cups diced, pared potatoes, in about 3 cups boiling water until tender. Drain then press through sieve, add 1 can chicken soup with rice, 1 tablespon butter, 2 cups milk, 1 cup heavy cream, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and mix thoroughly. Reheat to lend. Serve hot or cold, garnished with 2 tablespoons minced chives and dash of paprika. Serves 6.

An easy made Borsch can also be achieved through a can of condensed bouillon, a can of beets, sour cream and seasonings. Here is a recipe for making it:

Borsch

Chop 1 No. 2 can beets. Combine with beet juice, 1 teaspon minced onion, 1 10½ ounce can condensed bouillon and 1 cup cold water. Heat thoroughly, but do not boil. Add ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Pour hot or cold into 4 soup bowls, topping each with 1 tablespoon sour cream and 1 teaspoon minced dill pickle.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Some Major Problems

SEVERAL pressing problems of the day—the splotchy make-up worn by suburban housewives, the self-protection of Washington womanhood, and how to get the girls back on the farm will be tackled at once by Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The president of the Do Something About It League received reporters at her weekly press conference at a desk heaped high with letters.

"These" explained Mrs. DeGoofey "represent some of the things wrong with our country today."

The reformer picked up a letter and opened it. "This, she said, "is from a man who complains that women are too careless about their make-up when they go out to do their morning grocery shopping. He writes:

Morning Maxe-up Offends 'Esthete'

"DEAR MRS. DEGOOFEY: I frequently shop for my wife at our community grocery store, and my finer sensibilities are constantly being offended by the splotchy and careless makeup of the housewives I encounter.

"It seems that a woman will spend an hour fixing her face to go downtown, but when she runs out to the neighborhood grocery store, she just smears on her powder and paint any old way—no two cheeks matching—and apparently without using her liquefying cleansing cream, muscle oil astringent, skin toning lotion and foundation cream. Can't you do something to remedy this suburban eyesore? ESEHETE.

In reply to "Esthete" Mrs. DeGoofey said she would press her bill before Congress to have free public makeup booths established on street cornoers.

"I have long advocated such a measure," said Mrs. DeGoofey, and now that it has become so imperative for women to become glamorous in the cause of defense, I will seek special backing for my bill from the war and navy departments.

"In the meantime I will try to get grocery stores to employ more men of the life guard type so that housewives will be offered some incentive to improve their makeup. If these measures fail, I will start a movement to have husbands do all the grocery shopping. It's too hard on women anyway."

Hatpins and Veils For Beauties

Mrs. DeGoofey said she has received scores of appeals from Washington women and girls who were afraid to be on the streets alone for fear of molestation by men.

"To meet this situation," she said, "I am advocating a return to the use of the hatpin. In the days when women wore hatpins, there was far less crime, and men mashers were not so bold. I am also advising women who consider themselves especially good looking, to go heavily veiled and to wear long skirts and heavy cotton stockings."

Another problem Mrs. DeGoofey has been urged to act upon is that of inducing women to aid defense by farm work.

Snappy Uniforms To Charm Corns

"I am told' she said "that it is almost impossible to enlist farmerettes for defense, that while most women are willing to be Red Cross workers, motor car drivers and camp entertainers, almost nobody is willing to raise the corn and beans.

"Now I think the chief reason women do not want to do their bit on the farm is that farm tasks have not been made glamorous enough. Now my idea is to put the farmerettes in snappy uniforms—something even more alluring than the Red Cross workers or the motor volunteers wear. I would have something along musical comedy lines, possibly very short shorts with deep V-neck blouses and sashes, all in patriotic colors, and floppy Maud Muller hats worn on the back of the head so as to reveal the hairdress. With this outfit, could be worn some cute dancing slippers sprinkled with gold stars.

"I also intend to have a corps of photographers to record the activities of the farmerettes while milking, shucking corn, driving tractors etc. After the first photographs are published, I have no fear but that we will be stampeded by patriotic women begging for the chance to serve their country."

Little Surprises

Hollywood, Calif.—Bette Davis has a clever way of giving every ensemble an unexpected turn. For that little formal touch that makes a late dinner costume more appealing, Bette wears gold kid wrist-length gloves with matching bag. They add a fillip to a semi-tailored black sheer dress and black hat. In the same vein is her habit of giving a sportsy touch to a formal dress. Bette's white crepe shirtmaker dinner gown is belted with white pigskin with sports matchmate in a large white pigskin envelope bag.

Balance Food If Your Goal Is to Reduce

By Ida Jean Kain

SHADES OF the gay nineties! The ladies are carrying fancy pillboxes for their saccharine tablets. The other day I watched a buxom matron put away a man-size dinner which included everything, from soup to dessert, then fumble around in her handbag. Finally she produced her little saccharine box and trustingly dropped a tablet into her coffee. She was going without sugar in her coffee because it is fattening. As if the 25 calories in a lump of sugar would make any difference when compared with the 2000 she had just eaten.

This little incident would hardly be worth mentioning except that it's typical of the way so many women go about reducing. They seem to think that as long as they give up one thing that is reputed to be fattening, it doesn't matter what else they eat. And it's all so silly. Unless your total calorie score is lowered, giving up potatoes, bread or cream and sugar will not make the slightest difference in your weight. It is well to remember that no food is fattening unless it boosts your caloric intake above your requirement. And once your requirement has been exceeded, giving up anything else will not help you to reduce.

While your reducing hinges on your caloric restriction, in up-to-date reducing the main concern is to include certain foods. It is a distinct advantage to have a reducing diet fairly high in protein. The protein steps up the metabolism, which means that you can actually burn more calories. A liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs and skim milk or cheese in the daily menus will help you to lose weight. On a high-protein diet you will feel satisfied more quickly.

Scientific research has shown that your craving for excess food may be a hidden hunger. You may be eating enough calories without getting the vitamins and minerals you need. A good reducing diet supplies an abundance of the protective elements and may give you a feeling of satiety not afforded by your regular menus.

The fruits, vegetables and whole grains needed to balance the diet also help to overcome the tendency to constipation which may result from the high-protein diet. It may also be a good practice to take a glass or two of hot water with lemon juice, or take the hot water with a half-teaspoonful of salt per glass about 15 to 30 minutes before breakfast.

Betrothal of Mary Jane Stanley To Cary Euwer to Be Announced

Engagement Expected to Be Told at Party Bride-Elect's Parents Will Give Sunday

By Hope Ridings Miller

Defense and Senate subcommittee inquiries notwithstanding, Love and Lohengrin are still taking over their share of the Capital scene. So don't be surprised if the engagement of pretty Mary Jane Stanley and Cary McNab Euwer becomes a headline announcement in the next few days. In fact you can expect it definitely at that 5-to-7 party the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, are planning to give Sunday afternoon.

For some time, friends have been noting with interest progress of the romance that actually began about seven years ago. The wedding date has not been decided, but rumors are making the rounds that the ceremony will take place in a Washington church some time within the next few months.

A blonde-haired honey with brown eyes and a wardrobe of fashion-plate perfection, Mary Jane was one of the most popular Washington debs of the 1934-35 season. Her father was then Assistant Attorney General, and she ran away with honors as Washington's most attractive "official bud" of that year. She also made her bow at a ball given by her parents at the fashionable Elkridge Kennel Club in Baltimore and again at that city's famous Bachelor Cotillion.

Mary Jane attended Wells College and Goucher, graduating from the latter in 1938. Since then, she has been with her parents at their home, The Lawn, near Laurel, Md. In recent months she has devoted much time toward organizing recreational programs for soldiers at Camp Meade.

Mr. Euwer is the son of Mrs. Walter Courtney Euwer, of Upper Marlboro, Md. He is a graduate of Princeton, class of 1936, and Georgetown Law School, and is now serving as Assistant District Attorney.

Washingtonians will be flocking back to town by the dozens in the next few days, now that it's definitely settled that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are to make a 24-hour visit here September 25. But one Capitalite at least—and one who would probably have a better chance than most to meet the Windsors—will be vacationing in Canada while the famous couple are wined and dined around these parts. In other words, Ralph J. Totten, former United States Minister to the Union of South Africa, will be off tomorrow for a three weeks' moose and bear hunting trip in northwest Quebec.

Mr. Totten will go by way of Montreal and Ottawa to Hunters Point, pick up a guide and a canoe there, and then take out into the wild forest and lake country, where he will be completely out of touch with the work-a-day world for at least two weeks. And if he doesn't emerge from that hide-out with a sizable bearskin to add to his collection, or some mammoth moose antlers, he'll be pretty disappointed.

Either going or coming, Mr. Totten will stop for two or three days in Ottawa to pay his respects to his friend, the Earl of Athlone and H. R. H. Princess Alice. Now the Governor General of Canada, the Earl formerly served as Governor General of South Africa, and there's where Mr. Totten first met him.

From Sands Point, Long Island, comes word that Marie MacNeil, of Barra, the former Marie Stevens Hicks, of Washington, will be back in the Capital November 1 to open her home on Thirtieth Street. That's the place that Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau have had the past few years.

Mrs. MacNeil, who became the wife of Robert Lister MacNeil, forty-fifth chief of the Clan Barra of Scotland, a few years ago, was well known here as the widow of Representative Frederick Hicks. Never weary of well-doing, Mrs. MacNeil is now busy with the Scottish Clans Evacuation Plan, which she founded for the purpose of making homes in the Scottish Highlands available for children of the bombed areas of England. You'll be hearing a lot more about this project in coming months. In fact, there's to be a big-time benefit fete for it in a great Washington garden in the autumn Cent Milk Program Supported by P.-T. A.

By Lucia Giddens

Use of funds from the school lunch appropriation "for the 1-cent school milk program if necessary" and an increase in appropriations for the District Health Department were recommended to the Commissioners yesterday in resolutions adopted by the board of managers of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The board at its first fall meeting recommended that "the sponsor's contribution appropriated annually for the Board of Public Welfare to use for hot lunches for needy school children shall be continued for this purpose, with the proviso that it may also be used for the 1-cent school milk program if necessary."

The other resolution recommended that the Commissioners approve the request of the District Health Department for an increase of more than $400,000 over the current appropriation and urged that "particular attention" be given to two items—the addition of 20 nurses to the nursing service and the addition of "sufficient" clerical workers to maintain the department's work "on an efficient basis."

The resolution called the Commissioners' attention to the fact that this "13 per cent increase is based on standards" established in a recent public health survey.

Another resolution recommended that "special attention be given to the needs of children mentally and physically handicapped as revealed in the recent survey conducted by the Board of Education with the assistance of the D. C. P.-T. A."

The board of managers decided to postpone on the request from WPA officials for the P.-T. A. to furnish volunteers to assist in the serving of the free school lunches. It has been hinted that the lunch program may have to be curtailed unless volunteer workers can be obtained to supplement the reduced number of WPA workers.

However, the P.-T. A. board of managers yesterday decided to wait to learn the Board of Education's attitude before taking action on the question. Discussion indicated that some members of th eboard of managers felt that the lunch program is too large for volunteer workers to handle efficiently, considering the hours that would be required of them.

Possibility of an educational program to warn young people, particularly girls, against the dangers of going to secluded places and of being on the streets alone late at night was discussed by the board.

Mrs. C. D. Lowe, chairman of the safety committee, recommended that more auto driving instruction be furnished in the high schools.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District P.-T. A., was in charges of yesterday's board meeting, held at the N. E. A. Building.

Morgenthau Advises Curbs On Inflation

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 9.—Declaring that the Nation faces inflation now and "must deal with it at once," Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau called upon laborers, farmers and businessmen to curb their desires for higher wages and profits in the interest of the Nation's welfare.

The public must be taxed more, spend less, save faster and submit to increased regulation, he added in a long-promised pronouncement of his views on inflation delivered before the Advertising Club, of Boston.

Morgenthau proposed these two general methods of combatting inflation:

1. By curbing demand for commodities, by higher taxes, regulation of installment credit, and increased savings.

2. By controlling prices, specifically by releasing for consumption surpluses of all commodities—particularly farm products—"as fast as necessary to prevent unreasonable price rises."

As a complementary step, the Treasury chief renewed his plea for reduction of "nonessential" Federal expenditures and for economy in State and local governments as well.

Praises Veto of Freezing Bill

Praising President Roosevelt's recent veto of a bill to freeze Government stocks of cotton and wheat Morgenthau declared:

"We ought not to withhold cotton surpluses, or any other surpluses, from the market in times like these."

He proposed that Canadian wheat—of which he said more than 498,000,000 bushels of surplus were available—be admitted in larger volume as was done recently in the case of Cuban sugar.

"This has been historically a land of milk and honey," Morgenthau said. "There is still plenty of milk and honey, but too much of it is in the warehouses. Let's make it flow.

"It is sheer folly from the farmer's point of view to push prices up by creating scarcities in times like these. The farmers suffered cruelly for 12 long years after the collapse of the inflation of 1920 and 1921; they should not be made to suffer again.

"It is shear folly in the same way for labor leaders to seek new increases in wages every few months—new increases which in turn produce higher manufacturing costs, higher prices and a higher cost of living.

Short-Sighted Landlords

"It is short-sighted for a landlord to charge all that the traffic will bear in defense centers where housing space is at a premium.

"It is poor business in the long run for any businessman to seek exorbitant profits in this period of defense spending.

"It is bad banking, in the long run, for any banker to exploit the present demand for funds by seeking to charge unreasonable interest rates.

"There are always selfish groups in any country which think they can profit from inflation. They are wrong.

"Inflation does more than merely to rob the wage earner of a portion of his earnings. It does more than saddle the farmer with a load of debt which he cannot repay. It is more destructive of morale than any other single force. Inflation divides the country. It sets up producers against consumers, workers against employers, the people who owe money against the people to whom the money is owed."

'Very Severe' Temblor In Pacific Recorded

Weston, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Weston College seismograph recorded a "very severe earthquake" at 2:38.43 a. m. (E. S. T.) today. The Rev. Clarence Blais, S. J., said the disturbance occurred about 8,800 miles from Weston, probably in the southwestern Pacific Ocean, and lasted three and a half hours.

In New York the Rev. Joseph Lynch, seismologist at Fordham University, estimated the disturbance to be in the general area of the Philippine Islands.

Jim Preston Back at a Job In Senate 'Where Life Started'

Follows Voluntary Nine Blocks Away In Archives Building

Jim Preston was back in the Senate yesterday after six years in voluntary exile just nine blocks from the Capitol.

He came back from his job in the Archives Building, he said, to "where my life started." He talked like a man on his first day home after a long exile.

James D. Preston spent six years at National Archives as assistant administrative secretary in charge of publicity—"but there wasn't any publicity." Now he's back in the Senate, where he held sway for 38 years, most of them as superintendent of the press gallery.

Preston wanted to return to the press gallery, but there wasn't room for him. So he got as close as he could to the old life—a job in the office of Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the Senate. Halsey and Preston were press gallery associates for decades. Preston's job is to index the Senate Journal as an assistant to the Journal clerk, Edward J. Hickey.

A telephone at the Capitol rang yesterday. A newspaperman was calling with a question. Jim Preston gave him an answer.

"It's the most delightful thing in the world," he said, "to know that someone wants you."

Preston's desk in the office of his old friend, Halsey, is but a few steps from the Senate corridor where reporters interview Senators. From another door of the office he can see newspapermen waiting for the press gallery elevator. At a desk just in back of him, correspondents scan Congressional Record copy before it goes to the printers.

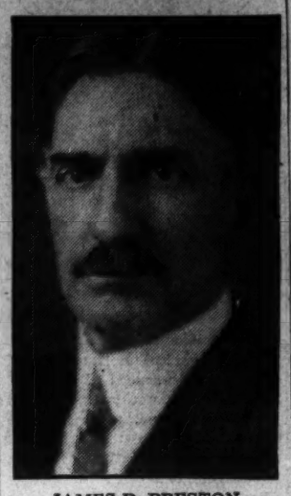
"Excitement in My Blood"

"I had been around here so long that the excitement of this place was in my blood and I couldn't get it out," Preston said. "I saw three generations of statesmen make history here, but I was so close to it at the time, it just seemed routine."

Six years at Archives, where history is a museum piece, have improved his perspective.

"I wanted to get back to the press gallery where I could feel that any moment someone would come and ask—do you know such and such? I don't know of any greater opportunity for a man than association around the press gallery."

Jim Preston was 65 last month. He was 20 when he first went to work in the Senate, March 25, 1897, as messenger in charge of the press gallery. Halsey came to the Senate in December of that year as a page boy.



JAMES D. PRESTON

Saw "Figures Rise and Fall"

"We saw the Congress send the Nation into two wars, watched great figures rise and fall. Then the old press crowd drifted away, many of them to assignments downtown, and I got discouraged. In 1931 I went to work in the Senate Library where I thought, though I don't know why, that I'd like it better. Then, in August, 1935, I went to Archives."

Halsey jokingly said Preston had come back "to the scene of the murder or back to his first love, I don't know which."

"Anyway," he added, "Jim Preston's a pretty handy fellow who can do most anything."

Fritz Weidemann, Ousted Nazi Agent, On Way to Chile

Buenos Aires, Sept. 9 (AP).—Foreign Minister Ruiz Guinazu disclosed today that Capt. Fritz Weidemann, former Nazi consul general in San Francisco, had been given a transit visa through Argentina to Chile on the trip which brought him to South America from Berlin after his ouster from the United States.

[The United Press reported from Rio De Janeiro that Weidemann had cancelled his plans to fly to Buenos Aires.]

Agreements reached in the Pan-American conference at Havana provide that no American nation shall accept a diplomat or consul ejected by another American nation.

Weidermann now is in Rio de Janeiro. He left Berlin after an announcement that he had been assigned to the Far East but upon his arrival in Rio de Janeiro he said he had "a special mission in South America."

Quick, Men, the Masks!

Fifty officers of the Maryland State Guard, attending a "refresher course" at the University of Maryland, were subjected to a surprise gas attack yesterday.

A tear gas grenade was exploded during a weapons lecture as a test of the officers' efficiency in the use of gas masks. No casualties were reported.

What Will They Take Next?

Greyhound Bus officials did not know a bus was absent from the company garage until the police called yesterday and wanted to know what it was doing parked at Tenth Street and Constitution Avenue. Apparently it had been stolen sometime between 11 p. m. and noon yesterday. Why did the thief drive so short a distance? The gears were jammed.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klottz

Split Threatens Ranks of A. F. G. E.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9.—A split threatens the American Federation of Government Employes, the A. F. L. affiliate, that is holding its ninth convention here. Some of the members in the postoffice custodial service want to withdraw from the federation to set up a union of their own that would be affiliated with the A. F. L. Resolutions which would permit the A. F. G. E. to relinquish jurisdiction over the custodial employes have been turned down by the resolutions committee.

A. F. G. E. President James Burns made a strong appeal to keep the important custodial workers within his union. In his biennial report, Burns went into great detail regarding the work of the union for custodial employes. He frankly recognized the brewing revolt by saying that "at times it has been said by some members in the custodial services that we are not doing enough for the custodial employes, but they cannot really mean this, if they have read the record, and they cannot deny it is worth while belonging to the A. F. G. E. which has the backing of the five million members of the A. F. L."

Burns also recognized the fact that a rival union was trying to wean away the custodial workers from the A. F. G. E.

What will happen is anyone's guess, the custodial faction may accept a proposed compromise that would place a custodial worker on the A. F. G. E. national executive council. If the workers are denied a place on the council, a spokesman for the custodial workers said he believed his followers would gradually drop out of the A. F. G. E. The custodial faction claimed it hasn't been properly represented by A. F. G. E. Opinion differs on the number of custodial workers within the A. F. G. E. Custodial spokesmen say their members make up 105 of the 600 A. F. G. E. lodges and that they have approximately 3,000 members. A. F. G. E. officials say the number of custodial members is between 2,000 and 2,500. A. F. G. E. Secretary Bernice Heffner reported the union had a total membership of 29,180.

A. F. G. E. today became one of the first, if not the first, employe organizations to applaud the Dies Committee. It adopted unanimously a resolution which urged a "more thorough investigation of subversive activities of Civil Service employes" and went on record for an appropriation for the purposes. The resolution also could be construed as support of the Federal Bureau of Investigation inquiry of subversive activities among Federal workers for which Congress has appropriated $100,000.

The union, however, sent back to committee for clarification a second resolution that would have required it to expel any member who was active in an organization "dominated or guided" by subversive groups. Speaking in favor of the measure, Ed McGinnis, a delegate from the Adjutant General's office, said now was the time to rid the Government service of subversive employes and he revealed that he had reported 10 such persons to Army intelligence.

Former Representative Tom O'Malley, of Milwaukee, a delegate from the wage and hour division, said the resolution was "witch-hunting."

Other resolutions were voted to support A. F. of L. President William Green in his fight to stop strikes in defense industries and to raise the mileage allowed for auto travel on official business from 4 to 5 cents a mile.

What appeared to be a fight preliminary to bigger things was started today over the election of vice presidents. The 14 vice presidents are now elected at large and a bloc of field delegates who charge the union is dominated by the District of Columbia want them elected by the districts which they represent. Fred Fraser, of Veterans' Administration, and Arthur Gladstone, of Federal Power, are two Washington delegates who are supporting the field move.

Field leaders threaten to unseat several vice presidents if the election change is voted. W. I. Connors, of Chicago, who favors the election of vice presidents at large, hinted that the real purpose of the proposed election change was to unhorse President Burns. It appears, however, that Burns won't be challenged for reelection. The opposition bloc has tried to induce both Vice President James Campbell and Henry Ihler of National Youth Administration, to make the race, but both have declined.

In his report President Burns urged the convention to go on record for higher employe salaries to meet higher living costs. He also said that A. F. G. E. is sponsoring legislation that would require the Government to pay its white collar employes for overtime over 9 hours. He told the delegates that they could expect longer hours and harder work for the duration of the emergency and he predicted that when the emergency was over "the economy drive" would start, and perhaps, he said, it will "start sooner than we think."

Waste Paper Drive Opens Tomorrow

Washington's campaign for the collection of waste papers and other scrap materials needed in the defense program will be launched tomorrow when an office will be established here by the Waste Paper Consuming Industries, operating under the joint sponsorship of the OPM and Office of Price Administration.

Defense officials, emphasizing the need for waste paper as the raw material of boxes in which defense products must be packed, called on all householders to cooperate in the program.

Persons with accumulations of waste paper in amounts of 100 pounds or more were requested by the OPM and OPA to telephone REpublic 3053 and ask that a collection truck pick up the material.

Can Sell or Donate

Householders have the option, it was explained, of selling their paper at the standard price of 30 cents a hundred pounds, or of donating it to a charitable organization, such as the Boy Scouts or Salvation Army, which, along with others to be announced, are cooperating in the program.

In the latter case, trucks from the cooperating organizations will call for the paper and sell it, in turn, to regular waste paper dealers.

Defense officials emphasized that in either case, the waste paper dealers must pay for the collections, either directly to the householders ar to the charitable groups.

Persons with waste paper accumulations were requested to stack the paper in piles, but need not tie it in bundles.

Planned for Four Months

The collection campaign will continue for at least four months, it was stated, and, if successful, will be continued for a year.

A last minute difficulty, involving District regulations concerning waste dealers picking up materials from private residences, was being worked on yesterday by defense officials. They quoted Richmond B. Keech, Corporation Counsel, as believing that local regulations would not interfere with the campaign.

In announcing the conservation campaign, which also seeks to increase collections of scrap metals, textiles and rubber, Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared that unless supplies of waste paper are expanded, a "probable shortage" would derange present price structures and hamper defense and aid to Britain efforts.

The local campaign will be duplicated in at least 30 other principal American cities, reaching a combined metropolitan population of 40 million people, the OPM estimated.

Scientific Jobs Offered by U. S.

The Civil Service Commission yesterday announced an examination to recruit technical and scientific aides for various Government agencies.

Men and women are needed to do research and testing in radio, explosives, chemistry, physics, metallurgy and fuels. The jobs pay from $1440 to $2000 annually.

No written test will be given applicants. They will be rated on their education and experience as shown in their applications, subject to corroboration. Full information may be obtained from the Civil Service Commission. Applications will be received until June 30, 1942.

How to Do It

Giving Blood To Red Cross Is Simple

A letter from Annapolis Midshipman Ruben P. Songco to The Post yesterday, inquiring how one may donate blood to the Red Cross blood-collection program, led officials of the District chapter to describe these steps which must be taken by every volunteer donor:

Register by phone or in person at the District chapter, 1730 E Street Northwest. At that time the donor will be given his choice of an appointment to give his blood at Naval Hospital.

Donation hours at the hospital are from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. and 3 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday each week. The blood is first typed and tested before donations can be made. One pint is taken from a male donor and a half-pint from a woman.

The actual operation takes from 15 to 20 minutes, with no after effects. Six weeks must elapse before the donor can make another contribution.

Some donors to the program have supplied blood as many as five times, officials said. There are 10 cities throughout the country whose chapters are participating in the program, among them Washington and Baltimore.

Anacostia Schools May Operate On Double Shifts

The Board of Education is expected to decide today whether one and possibly two elementary schools in Anacostia should adopt "double shifts" this year if they are so overcrowded as to necessitate the step.

Both the junior and senior high schools of the section already have been operating under double shifts, with half the students starting at 8 a. m. and the other half at 12:45 p. m.

Because of the accelerated influx of defense workers into Anacostia, similar systems are expected to become necessary at Congress Heights School and possibly at Ketcham School.

5 D. C. Bills Slated Today For Senators

The Senate District Committee today is scheduled to take action on five District bills before going into conference with leading jurists and attorneys of the city on legislation to consolidate the police and municipal courts.

Measures revising the District law regulating working hours for women and empowering the Minimum Wage Board to establish standards of industrial safety are among bills on which the committees will be asked to act in a session starting at 9:45 a. m.

Each bill has been approved by a subcommittee, according to Renah F. Camalier, committee adviser. Camalier, announced that committee approval also will be sought on bills amending the compulsory taxicab insurance law to require insurance companies to carry adequate reserves, to permit out-of-town sightseeing companies to operate here 30 days each year without payment of license fee and to pay public school custodians for their work during the selective service registration last fall.

Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner and Justice Harold M. Stephens of the District Court of Appeals, are expected to attend the court bill conference together with judges of the police and municipal courts and leaders of the city's bar associations.

The court bill would merge the police and municipal courts into a single court of nine associate judges and a chief judge who would be authorized to administer the affairs of the tribunal. It would increase the jurisdiction of the civil branch from $1,000 claims to $2,000, and would create an intermediate appeals court.

The bill was drafted after years of study by committees of the District Bar Association, justices of District and Appeals courts and experts of the Department of Justice. Extensive hearings on it have been conducted by a subcommittee of the House District Committee.

Police Seek Girls Reported Missing From Their Homes

Jo Ann Weddell, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Weddell, 5209 Kansas Avenue Northwest, has been missing since Monday afternoon when she disappeared from the campus of St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts, 4801 Sargent Road Northeast.

Hatless, she was wearing a red-striped gingham dress and carried a black purse. A blonde with blue eyes, she is about 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 102 pounds. Her father is a Social Security Board regional auditor.

Police of the District and nearby also were searching for a 16-year-old Hyattsville (Md.) girl who has been missing from her home since Saturday.

The girl, Alverta Norris, of 3405 Baker Street, Hyattsville, was described as 5 feet 3 inches tall, with blue eyes, light brown hair and weighing 125 pounds. Her disappearance was reported yesterday to Prince Georges County police by her father, Elmer A. Norris.

Norris told police most of his daughter's clothes are missing from the home.

Service's Spiritual Needs to Be Discussed

Hoping to awaken interest of Protestant churches in the spiritual needs of service men, a meeting of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains will be held at 10 a. m. today at the Methodist Building, 100 Maryland Avenue Northeast. The commission is representative of 28 Protestant denominations. Bishop Adna Wright Leonard will be the chairman.

D. C. Schools Due to Open On Set Date

Polio Peak Past Here, Ruhland Says; Nearby Md. Officials 'Watching Situation'

District schools should open September 22 as scheduled, unaffected by infantile paralysis here, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday.

At the same time, school authorities in the nearby Maryland counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges took steps to keep public schools open there.

Deciding against closing schools, the Montgomery County School Board directed, however, that the poliomyelitis situation be watched closely and that schools "cooperate in the most advantageous ways in carrying out the professional directions from the State and county health departments."

The Cheverly-Tuxedo Elementary School, in Prince Georges which was closed yesterday at the request of anxious parents, will be reopened today.

Dr. Ruhland's report that District Schools need not postpone opening followed a conference with health officials of nearby Maryland and Virginia. He said the peak of the Washington outbreak had passed, with 37 cases reported this year.

Three times as many cases were reported in 1935, the city's worst polio year, he said. Of this year's total, seven have been reported since September 1.

While predicting a sharp decline in the disease's incidence for the balance of 1941, Dr. Ruhland cautioned parents against sending their children to school if they have any signs of cold or fever.

Prince Georges County Health Officer John Byers announced that no new polio cases were reported yesterday, but public apprehension over the epidemic there remained high.

Of 804 children registered for instruction at the Hyattsville Elementary School, 125 failed to report for classes yesterday, according to Mrs. Mary Petty, principal. Reopening of the Cheverly-Tuxedo School was recommended by Nicholas Orem, county schools superintendent, who has maintained the situation is not serious enough to necessitate closing of schools in any section except Laurel, where opening of schools was postponed. Orem is backed by Dr. Byers.

In Montgomery County, Health Officer V. L. Ellicott said a seventh suspected case of infantile paralysis was reported yesterday. One child died Saturday in the Chevy Chase section.

Tonsil Removal Held Invitation to Polio

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 9 (AP)—A noted authority on infantile paralysis declared today that throat and mouth operations in late summer, when the disease is most prevalent, may invite it to strike.

Dr. John A. Toomey, of Cleveland, professor at Western Reserve University and a member of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, made this observation after the deaths of three of five children in one family who were stricken with the bulbar type of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) two weeks after their tonsils were excised.

The removal of tonsils apparently left a "portal of entry" for the polio virus to travel through the nerve tract into the brain, said the polio researchist, called in consultation on the cases.

Executive Ave. Parking Trial Is Delayed

The cases of three State Department clerks who refused to give up parking spaces on West Executive Avenue to cars on White House business, were continued in Traffic Court yesterday.

James Kirkland, attorney for the defendants, Clifford Barker, 36, of 3810 Davis Place Northwest; John O. Bell, 28, of 4008 Edmunds Street Northwest, and Norvell H. Sannebeck, 31, of Alexandria, Va., requested a postponement, telling the court he wanted time to search old records regarding control of the property.

Judge George D. Neilson set the cases for trial September 24.

Park Policeman W. K. Snider ticketed the cars of the defendants, August 30. Each posted $3 collateral and demanded hearing in Traffic Court.

The controversy began nearly a year ago when White House and State Department officials decided to close West Executive Avenue, making it a parking area for their automobiles instead of a thoroughfare.

Under control of the Interior Department, the street was closed and patrolled by the Park Police. They issued "Official Parking Permits" which they allegedly described as "illegal."

The defendants, it was contended, continued to park in the area, without permits, although police warned them that their cars would be ticketed.

Despite the threats by police, no tickets were forthcoming, it was said, until last Saturday. But none would say yesterday who ordered them.

At any rate, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Thomas said the Government intends to prosecute on charges that the men disobeyed official signs, and that the property is controlled by the Federal Government under an act of 1894 which made it a Government reservation.

The defense contention will be that there is discriminatory allotment of public space.

Edwards Going To New WPA Post in Week

Paul Edwards, administrator of District WPA, will leave his post next week to become assistant to Howard Hunter, Federal WPA administrator, it was announced.

Ross Haworth, now a special assistant to the District Commissioners, is expected to be named to succeed him.

Former WPA administrator for Massachusetts and once head of Federal arts projects in New York City, Edwards came here two years ago to take over the local job. He is a graduate of the University of California.

Edwards remained here after administrative control of District WPA was transferred to the Maryland regional office in Baltimore several months ago because the Commissioners had urged him to consider the post of Welfare Director.

However, the Board of Public Welfare twice rejected his name and the job went to the then acting director, Conrad Van Hyning.

Davis Nominated By Summit Park Citizens Group

James Davis was nominated for the presidency of the Summit Park Citizens Association at the first meeting of the year held last night at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church Hall, Alabama and Branch Avenues Southeast.

Other officers nominated included Gaspard L. Tiebault, first vice president; E. L. Womak, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Allen and Mrs. William Fallon, secretary; John Yunker, financial secretaries; Miss Verda Layton, treasurer; George H. Marshall and U. S. Fisher, delegates to the Southeast Council, and W. F. Allen and William J. Smith, delegates to the Federation.

The association went on record requesting a new street light on Bangor Street near Thirty-first Street Southeast.

Seven-year-old Betty Jean Williams, of 1211 K Street Southeast, was in a critical condition in Gallinger Hospital last night after she had been struck by an automobile in front of her home early yesterday.

BETTY JEAN

Her mother, Mrs. Clifton Pilchard, said Betty had started across the street toward the bus which would take her to St. Dominic's School at Sixth and E Streets Southwest when she paused and called to her grandmother, Mrs. Margaret M. Gordon, to call back her baby half-brother, Clifton, jr., who was toddling after her.

She was struck as she started on across the street, her mother said. Driver of the automobile was Mrs. Catherine Dawley, 25, of 3925 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, police said.

Physicians at Gallinger Hospital said the child was suffering a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Late last night she had not yet regained consciousness.

In a second traffic mishap yesterday, a 42-year-old woman was injured and the driver was charged by police with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

Mrs. Maude E. Beck, of 1409 Kennedy Street Northwest, was knocked down at Fourteenth and Kennedy Streets Northwest, and suffered injuries to her left shoulder and leg. The driver, John Johnson, 29, of 820 Varnum Street Northwest, was booked at the Sixth Precinct under the pedestrian-control act.

Theaters Brave That Fireside Chat Problem

Some Will, Others Won't, Interrupt Performances for Presidential Address; Other Matters on the Theatrical Scene

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

FRED STONE

IN PONDERING THE IMPONDERABLE, give a thought to the theater people whose business is either threatened or enhanced by their attitude on the Fireside Chat problem. (And, while we're on the subject, why hasn't someone thought of a better catch phrase than that for the hot month utterances of the Chief Executive?)

Time was a radio talk in the evening by President Roosevelt would find the theater managers planning to spend the night at home themselves, close by the radio. But lately the tendency has been to turn from this laissez-faire habit and Do Something About It. The theaters have been opening up loud speakers on their stages to catch the scheduled broadcast, slipping back to the magical never-never land when it was over and shelling out the overtime in the name of Services Rendered.

Most unusual adoption of this principle is the National's plan for Thursday evening. The E street doors will open at 8:30, the President's address will be heard at 9 and the curtain will go up on the Ed Wynn musical at 9:15, or whenever the message is over.

The Loew theaters—Capitol, Palace and Columbia—will follow their Fourth of July precedent by interrupting their programs for the duration of the talk. The Warner houses, on the other hand, view the situation purely as Escape vs. Reality, figuring that those who wish to hear the President's address will stay home for it anyway. None of the local Warner theaters, headed by the Earle and the Metropolitan, will pick up the broadcast. Keith's hasn't yet made up its mind and the Little definitely won't.

And how would you face the problem if you were a theater manager? It's a tough one.

Table Tennis Star Bound for the Earle

Getting up from a chair being about the most difficult thing we do, we were literally appalled by an invitation to play table tennis with Coleman Clark, former U. S. champion and bound for the Earle stage Friday to prove the game is fun to watch. He should be telling us. We remember well the last time he was here, how his bounding about had us gaga to get hold of those paddles and battle it out with him. It looked wonderful, Mr. C., but have you ever tried sitting? The other boys and girls of the drama desks will be effective to a degree that will surprise you, but mind you don't break any of their ankles. You might have to sub for them in covering performances and then you'd have to sit. It's so—restful.

Roadside Theater's Richard P. Creyke, delver-after-old-plays, treasurer and former business manager, has been appointed Senior Scenario Writer at the Wright Field Branch of the Training Film Production Laboratory of the Army Signal Corps. Creyke has been production manager for the General Broadcasting System in Detroit recently, but he's popped up at Roadside every so often to see how the old skeletons come to life. His new duties will involve writing and directing the Signal Corps films.

Watching Ed Wynn at the National Monday night—this column's Nelson B. Bell was there too, taking a busman's holiday—your reporter got to wondering if Wynn recalled a benefit performance he gave of "The Grab Bag" about 15 years ago in New York. It was part of the drive for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and true to the theater's generous nature, Ed and a group of theatrical notables—I think Fred Stone was among them—gave the proceeds of a special matinee to the Actors' Bay of the projected nave. That finale was a sight to remember. Some of the most beautiful girls in Manhattan formed the line and standing in the center, near Wynn, with the Duncan Sisters draped over either shoulder was indomitable Bishop Manning.

"Soviet Frontiers on the Danube," a Soviet picturization of the Red Army in Bessarabia, will begin a three-night engagement in the Press Club Auditorium Friday evening. The film pictures Marshall Timoshenko directing the occupation of some of the territory that now is the center of mechanized warefare. There's an English commentary on the sound track. Twice nightly over the weekend at 7 and 9 o'clock.

No Strings Attached

New York, Sept. 9.

When the Treasury Department's defense bonds program was decided upon, Howard Dietz, the publicist who supervises these broadcasts, went to Washington to confer with Secretary Morgenthau . . . The Cabinet officer explained that the broadcasts would be paid for by Texaco and the Bendix Corporation . . . "I want to get one thing straight," Dietz stated. "I want to make sure that there will be no commercial strings attached to these broadcasts" . . . "There won't be," Morgenthau assured. "I don't want you to think that the Treasury Department of the United States of America is commercial."

Alexander Woollcott, who leaves for England shortly, will be practically the only American to make the trip by boat. Woollcott dislikes flying and prefers to risk submarine attack rather than go up in a plane . . . When Alec returns he will make a series of lectures only in the isolationist Midwest . . . Lieut. George E. Meeks, the first Army Air Corps pilot to be killed on duty outside of the United States, has his picture on the cover of the current issue of "Mechanix Illustrated" magazine . . . Joe Gould, manager of Jim Braddock, Tommy Farr, etc., is making a venture into show-producing. He'll do "For This We Fight," by Lawrence S. Liebson. "Sam Harris and Bill Brady also were prize-fight managers before they became producers," Gould announces, "so I have beautiful precedents."

A minor official of a motion picture company advised his employes to purchase the company's stock, in the open market. Then, unknown to them, he sold some of his own stock holdings. Word of this stock-dumping came to the attention of the Securities and Exchange Commission. A Government investigator was sent to Hollywood to investigate. He examined the movie official—who admitted this practice and asked: "It isn't illegal, is it?" . . . "It's unethical," the investigator replied . . . The official asked: "Is it illegal—to be unethical?"

A young actor on the "Cavalcade of America" program had two lines to speak. He stepped in front of the microphone, read the script—and then fluffed the two lines. He crumpled his manuscript, threw it into a wastebasket and sighed: "I'm not worth the paper I'm written on" . . . Elmer Rice returned from Hollywood pleased at his experience there. "It's wonderful," he insisted. "You exercise a minimum of mentality for a maximum of money."

Air Mastery Speeds British Films

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 9.—Warner's effort to get Brian Donlevy to star in the English picture, "Flying Fortress," is an indication the British are convinced they have regained mastery of the air over their island, and it's "business as usual" for the film industry. Picture theaters are packed over there. Brian goes into "Heliotrope Harry" soon as he finishes "White Savage," but he can and does thank Preston Sturges for all his good luck. Mind you, his acting was just as good in "Barbary Coast" as it is now, but then Eddie Robinson was the vogue, and Brian was overlooked.

Talk about embarrassing moments—Louis Hayward at the Chinese Theater the other night discovered a fur jacket in the seat next to him. On the way up the aisle to leave it with the manager, he met the frantic owner coming down, who grabbed it, shut both eyes tight, took a deep breath, and yelled "Stop, thief!"

Barbara Stanwyck had been doing La Conga in "Ball of Fire" for three days, went home ready to drop, and was met by Bob Taylor, dressed like a plush horse, who said, "Come on, Darling—get on your glad rags—we're going over to the Palladium. It's South American night." "Well, can't I be a good neighbor without making my feet bleed for it?"

Elizabeth Patterson and Monta Bell were making over old times when Bell recalled her first picture, "The Boy Friend," made when "Patty" was as green as grass but frightfully earnest. After the opening long shot, a street scene, Monta said, "Now, Patty, we'll take a closeup." "Oh, goody!" said Patty, "wait till I put on my new evening dress for that!"

They're telling this about Arthur Lyons, one of our important agents, who handles successful writers. He found himself at the ball park with a well known author, and quick as a flash, went into a high-powered sales talk, reeling off a batch of his clients' names that sounded like a publishers' spring list. Author was much impressed, said he'd be proud to find himself in such distinguished company, all except for the last named writer, who had been dead four years. "Huh?" gulped Arthur. "Oh, er, yes, of course," but he grabbed the life line and gasped "Oh! but we handle his estate!"

Phil Ohman, tearing down Sunset to get to the Mocambo in time, was stopped by a cop. When Phil told him who he was and why he was in such a hurry, cop said, "Hey! don't give me that. Ohman went by here just five minutes ago." Well, Phil got out his driving license, identified himself—and as he walked into the Mocambo his trombone player was telling the boys, "Did I put it over! A cop stopped me, so I told him I was Phil Ohman, the band leader, and he let me go!" That's the story—now you've got it what have you got?

The best sound trick made on "Corsican Brothers" won't be in the picture. Lack of sun stopped shooting on location for a while starting, so company and crew got half a crap game. Director Gregory Ratoff tried his hand at it, and the sound crew hooked a mike over and recorded his dialogue. It's as good as anything Abbott and Costello ever did. John Neal will be a guest speaker at the University of Washington "showboat theater" this fall. Drama students reconditioned a discarding showboat which will be used to house all future productions. Wish we had one of them in Hollywood. We could have such fun.

Iran Submits, Will Expel Axis Legations

By the Associated Press

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 9.—The Iranian parliament acceded in full today to the demands of victorious Britain and Russia after hearing sick and aged Premier Ali Furanghi express "The grief of our people over the events that have befallen us."

Two attendants half carried him to the curiously-carved rostrum, which depicts the Persian God of Light slaying the Dragon of Darkness. Then the bearded old scholar sat on the front row while Foreign Minister Ali Sohelly spent an hour reading the entire file of diplomatic exchanges among Iran, Britain and Russia in a high, sing-song voice.

When he had finished, the bare quorum present, 136 members, stood sober-faced in the old Rococo plaster parliament hall to give their government a vote of confidence.

By this act they agreed to large occupation zones in the southwest and north, transit facilities between the two zones, surrender of Axis nationals, and expulsion of the German, Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian legations here.

The British occupation zone in the southwest is about 400 by 100 miles embracing the ports and oil fields within a line running from Khanaqin on the Iraq frontier east to Kermanshah, southeast to Khramabad, south to Dizful and Haft Kel, and southeast to the Persian Gulf at Bandar Dilam.

The Russian zone is 500 miles long and from 50 to 150 miles wide, covering the northern portion of the contry from a few miles north of Teheran.

Iran retains control of the middle zone but Allied transport privileges insure a supply route from the Persian Gulf to Russia.

Britain agreed to continue paying royalties for oil rights, and Russia to pay for Caspain Sea fishery concessions. Iran also agreed to revival of the Russian-Iranian Oil Co. for further oil explorations around Khoorian, near Samnan. The region was explored without result about 15 years ago.

Iran still seeks to persuade Britain and Russia to reduce the zones of occupation, but the foreign minister told Parliament there was no choice but to accept the terms.

Yesterday the Axis diplomats were notified to start packing, and the Iranian police confiscated firearms owned by Axis nationals. All persons not covered by diplomatic immunity will be turned over to Russia and Britain within a week, it was said.

Meanwhile a British commercial source at Meshed, on an important route to India, said the Russians had seized six Germans and two Iranian police officials and taken them to Russia.

Science Looks On Rats, Sees Hope for Men

By the Associated Press

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 9.—Belief that a new intellectual age may now be dawning was expressed before the American Chemical Society today by Dr. Edward G. Stieglitz, of Washington, D. C., an authority on longevity.

Dr. Stieglitz told the society that if this "period of intellectual conquest" materializes, as he expects, humans will live longer than their present average of 63 years—and keep their mental faculties strong until the end.

At the same time Prof. Henry C. Sherman, of Columbia University, reported that rats in his laboratory lived longer, healthier lives than normal, with old age postponed, when fed a diet rich in fresh fruits, vegetables and milk.

Vitality Heightened

Specifically, he attributed the long youthfulness of these rats to the calcium and vitamins A, C and B2.

He found that giving rats three or four times the amount of calcium usually considered sufficient it accelerates their rate of development, maintained a higher level of adult vitality with an extended prime of life, and increased life expectancy.

Dr. Stieglitz reasoned a new intellectual age might be dawning, because the average age of the population is rising, and as men grow older experience accumulates and they continue to grow intellectually, provided their physical and mental well-being are maintained.

In 1940, he observed, almost the total economic responsibility for the Nation fell upon 50.7 per cent of the population, whereas in 1980 only 47 per cent will have to labor and earn to support the rest.

Use for Older Men

"This," Dr. Stieglitz explained, "is assuming that the average man will be gainfully employed up to age 55, which is certainly not the case today with employers retiring their aging personnel as soon as they can make way for younger workers.

"Especially notable is the fact that the greatest percentage increase is to be in the group of 65 and over. It is predicted that this fraction of our population will more than double in the next 40 years.

"Therefore, there must be some provision made for the better utilization of the productivity of the age group 55 to 65. If these men and women can be included among the earners, then the economic burden will be more equitably distributed, with 60 per cent of the population supporting the whole, rather than 47 per cent."

Utilize Abilities Of Elder People, Scientist Urges

Society must utilize the abilities of those between the ages of 55 and 65, a Washington scientist told the annual convention of the American Chemical Society at Atlantic City yesterday.

"We are almost as ignorant of the potentialities of a more mature mankind as Columbus was of the vast future of this continent," said Dr. Edward J. Stieglitz, consultant at the National Institute of Health.

Stating that the increasing number of elderly persons presents a riddle without precedent, he said:

"Logic leads to the inevitable conclusion that either the increasing millions of elderly persons must have the opportunity to work and support themselves, or the proportionately dwindling group of younger people will have to support them in one way or another."

Parley to Name Reward Winner In Strieff Case

A $500 reward posted by the Police Department for information leading to the arrest of the slayer of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23-year-old War Department employe, was still unpaid last night.

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, chief of police, stated that payment of the reward is being postponed pending trial of Jarvis Catoe, Negro, who confessed strangling Miss Strieff, Mrs. Rose Abramowitz and five other women.

Who will collect the money will be decided at a conference after Catoe's trial, it was said.

Catoe's arrest hinged on information furnished two New York detectives by John Anderson, husband of Evelyn Anderson, 26-year-old waitress, who was ravished and slain by Catoe, according to his own statement. Whether Anderson or the New York police will receive the reward money had not been decided last night.

Local detectives, Capt. Ira E. Keck stated, are not permitted to accept financial favors.

Lucas Gets Medal From Veterans Of Spanish War

Calvin B. Lucas, past department commander of the Col. James S. Pettit Camp of the United Spanish War Veterans, last night was presented a gold medal and the commander's jewel by the unit in ceremonies at the headquarters, 921 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

LUCAS

The medal and jewel, whose presentation was the second in 43 years, was in recognition of Lucas' sponsorship of the Sons of Veterans organization of the United Spanish War Veterans. Lieut. Col. Samuel J. McWilliams pinned the medal on Lucas' lapel.

Lucas, of 1425 Parkwood Place Northwest, served in the Marine Corps in the Philippine Insurrection.

Ernst J. Berg Dies; Helped Develop Radio

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP).—Ernest Julius Berg, 70, for many years coworker of the late Charles P. Steinmetz and himself an eminent mathematician and electro-physicist, died today.

Berg, who retired in June, was a pioneer in radio development. In 1916 he produced the first two-way voice program in the United States.

HAY FEVER and ASTHMA

Science has not yet found a preparation which will give relief to all hay fever and asthma sufferers. This is understandable when one realizes that both of these conditions can be caused by many things, such as pollens from flowers, weeds, perfumes, animal hairs, improper diet, etc. However, science has discovered that many cases of hay fever and asthma get amazing relief from the administration of a certain vital food element. Allo-tan, a rich source of this important element, gives relief to thousands of sufferers year in and year out. Allo-tan is put up in inexpensive, easy-to-take tablets.

Your Mileage Merchant

"That's more'n a slogan... IT'S ME"

MILEAGE?.. HERE'S HOW MY NEW CONOCO Nth OIL BEAT 5 OTHERS BY 5,683 MILES—OR MORE!

"I know it... The only oil mileage talk you want is real figures. So let me give you some that are all impartial and even certified.

"First—before asking you to try this great new Conoco Nth oil they tested it themselves... the hard way... down in Death Valley, which holds the heat record of 134°. Remember in Gold Rush days, how folks got down in this red-hot desert and never got out alive? So it was named Death Valley.

"You should've seen the way 6 oils got the Death-Test down there—in 6 new everyday cars, all exactly the same, except for each of them testing a different oil. One had this same Conoco Nth oil that I'll put in your engine right now, and the others also had mighty well-known brands. Then the Referee of the Death-Test clamped a big lock on every engine, so nobody could add a drop to the strict 5-quart fill in every crankcase. And away they all went—keeping up almost a mile-a-minute, in that killing hot desert. The test was not over till every oil hit bottom and every engine was junk!

"And your certified answer is that this Conoco Nth oil lasted 5,683 miles longer than any other oil in the test. Conoco Nth even outlasted one big brand by better than 3,200 miles. Or if you take the average of them all, Conoco Nth lasted over twice that long!

"Here's why. This patented Conoco Nth oil's got something entirely new—made in the laboratory—named Thialkene inhibitor. Here's the discovery that helps preserve Conoco Nth from dangerously gumming up with muddy sludge and sticky varnish, like you've heard of oils doing these days. Instead, this Conoco Nth oil stays more the way you see me pouring it in. Oil staying clean and tough that way helps keep up your oil level. And one fill of Conoco Nth stayed up so long in Death Valley's heat that you won't even try to come anywhere near its record—because you don't treat your own car like a proving-ground car.

"You'll still sensibly insist on draining and refilling at the right times; not being penny-wise and pound-foolish. For a real saving you want to save quarts in between the times you drain, and from this Death-Test you can see what to expect from Conoco Nth. From the mileage you'll get, see if you don't say yourself that my right name is Your Mileage Merchant."

AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE!

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic... man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. By magnet-like action, OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down—not even overnight—no, while you're using Conoco Nth. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance!... and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.

CERTIFIED

I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

GREETINGS, CARMEN CAVALLARO! Come Friday the Carlton's Cosmos Room will again resound with the meteoric harmonies of Carmen Cavallaro's orchestra, probably the most successful visiting dance music group ever to come to Washington . . . Since leaving Washington last spring Carmen's band has played at Ben Marden's Riviera and the Ritz-Carlton in Atlantic City, besides making a couple of best-selling record albums . . . The distinctive Cavallaro piano technique shows subtle phrasing mingled with bits of flashy rhythm, constant changing of pace. Only 27 now, Carmen has shot up like amusical skyrocket in the last few seasons. He played with Rudy Vallee, Abe Lyman and Enrique Madriguera before forming his own orchestra . . . Wear your soup'n fish and dancing frocks for the Friday opening. It's to be veddy formal.

CARMEN CAVALLARO, who will bring his orchestra back to the Carlton's Cosmos Room on Friday night

Weekend fashion show luncheons will be resumed in the Raleigh's Pall Mall Room next Saturday, when the early fall styles will be paraded.

NITERY OPENINGS. Paul Young has set the opening date of his Romany Room for Thursday, October 2. The floor show and dance music will follow the "New York idea" thatwas so distinctive and successful last year . . . The Metronome Room management is a bit coy about announcing its opening date, but it will probably take place about the last part of next week . . . La Salle Versailles will reopen in a few weeks, plans a late but dramatic entry into the after dark picture.

RADIO INTERVIEWS of Troika customers will be staged in the lobby of this wideawake nitery this evening between 8:15 and 8:30 and broadcast over WWDC. Rosita Rios will also sing between interviews. This radio interlude is to be a regular Troika feature on Wednesdays.

SHOREHAM SLANTS. When Lanny Ross was recently at the Shoreham he asked Eddie Pierce of the Barnee-Lowe band to arrange "Keep 'Em Flying" for him. Now comes the word that Ross is so pleased withEddie's arrangement that it's to be sent to Army camps all over the country . . . Billy Moore, of the Moore and Revel dancing duo, is the brother of Harry Revell, noted composer of pop songs . . . Maitre de'hotel Robert Kehl is on vacation, but Paul, his understudy, has everything beautifully under control.

The Lounge Riviera has been recently forced to turn 'em away to the tune of twice the capacity of the spot. Maestro Pete Macias couldn't even manage room for a party of his old friends on the weekend. Part of the congestion is due to collegiates returning from vacation and not yet off to school.

"HA-CHA" TAKES OFF. Dick "Ha-Cha" Gardner will not be sizzling vocally on the Mayflower Lounge bandstand this fall. He's decided to stay put as the manager-partner of the Peter Pan Inn and Club up near Frederick, which he's been running this summer for his mother. When we saw Dick on Sunday he was dashing around the Peter Pan kitchen wearing a big white apron looking even more "Ha-Cha" than he did at the Mayflower. The Peter Pan Inn is a beautiful and prosperous spot and its adjoining P. P. Club looks like a part of Manhattan's bright belt. When the Peter Pan closes for the winter on December 1, Dick and his mother will start on a three-month trip to Mexico. Pretty tough, huh?

TRUMPET INTO MACHINE-GUN. When Jack Schaffer sings "Caught In the Draft" at the Casino Royal, he handles his trumpet like a machine gun while Drummer "Buff" Amorosi provides a viciously realistic rat-a-tat of bullets.

LITERARY GRAPHOLOGIST. Andre, a handwriting expert at the Madrillon, is writing a book to be published this fall. It involves a lot of research which he's doing at the Library of Congress. This isn't Andre's first literary effort. He's had many articles published in magazines and newspapers on such subjects as palmistry, astrology and magic.

Frank Porter, trumpeter of the Neptune Room Musicomics, claims that's he puffed out enough air in doing "Daddy" requests to fill an Army observation balloon.

SMOOTHIE MUSIC. "Waiting to Hear From You," played exclusively by the Mayfair's Senators. It was written by Pianist Bill Harrington . . . "Chapenacas" becomes a smothie, too, when given double piano treatment by the Heintze Brothers in Restaurant "823." But it sets the patrons into rhythm clapping just the same . . . The pot pourri of Strauss waltzes played by the Plymouth Gypsies. It includes all of the Strauss masterpieces—"Artist's Life," "Acceleration Waltz," "Wine, Women and Song," "The Emperior Waltz" . . . And there's nothing smoother than the way the Anchor Room's Matt Windsor and Eileen George combine vocally in "Yours."

CONGRESSIONAL TRAITS. Guido, mental analyst of the Rainbow Room, says that a reading of Representative Bruce Barton, of New York, showed him to be the dominant type, but always fair and square . . . That mental analysis of Representative Milton J. West, of Texas, indicated that while he is always unassuming, he always gets his own way.

MASCULINE DECORATIONS. A "thumbs up" pin is being worn by Drummer Jimmy Bright of Bill Strickland's band at the Lotus. But Jimmy complains that most people think it's a membership pin in the hitch hikers' association . . . Don Carper and his Four at Cafe Caprice don black sombreros for their Latin numbers . . . Those handsome cravats worn by Oscar of the Hi Hat are selected for him each morning by Mrs. Oscar. Says Oscar, "I always get the oyster shell pattern on Fridays."

George Stein, of River Bend, holds the long distance maestro championship for suburban dancerias. He started at River Bend in 1938, has been there ever since except for one interlude.

TRADES MIKE FOR GUN. The Nightingale resounded last night with a huge farewell party for Singer Tommy Lawrence, who will be inducted into the Army today. Tommy wanted to go into the Canadian Air Force, but Uncle Sam grabbed him first.

THE HUNTER'S LODGE, newest night spot in Virginia, is taking on like a prairie fire. The young dancing crowd are already dyed-in-the-wool fans for Ernie Sparks' lively dance music. The Hunter's Lodge is on Route 211, just 3 miles west of Camp Washington.

CLIENTELES. The Harrington Tavern is much favored by business men, who find it an ideal spot for quietly talking over serious affairs . . . At O'Donnell's Farmhouse you'll always find many family parties who like to stroll around the place and get acquainted with the livestock after they've had a big "plantation dinner" . . . Hogate's national reputation for seafood feasts attracts visitors hailing from all over the country.

CREDIT — POSITIVELY! You'll love the new table cards at the King Cole Room. They say, "The tenderloin steak sandwich is on King Cole's easy pay plan, now more liberal than ever, despite Government credit restrictions. Small down payment of 50 cents . . . Balance absorbed by King Cole over a period of 16 months."

Answers to Quiz

1. After his partner's opening bid, East feels confident of a game and is faintly interested in a slam. A three-heart call is non-forcing after an original pass and with a minimum hand West might say no bid. So East should immediately jump to four hearts. This bid assures at least a game declaration and is stronger than three hearts. The rest is up to West, who may or may not desire to continue bidding.

2. East's fourclub call is a slam try and the best information West can give him is to bid four diamonds, showing the ace. West should not raise in clubs as the five level may be too high; also, East may have no more than two or three clubs.

Giant Food Stores Ads Here Win Socrates Award

J. Marson, copy director of Vincent Edwards & Co., publisher of Food Ad Views, announced yesterday that the advertising copy of Giant Food Stores, Washington, had been selected as the most noteworthy food advertising in the United States for the year ending September 1.

Clarkson Gemmill, advertising manager of Giant Food Stores, has earned the Socrates Award for consistently outstanding layouts and copy arrangements. He stated that the retail food advertising of 127 different grocery concerns from coast to coast were judged each month and an accurate point score kept. At the end of the year the concern whose advertising was judged continuously best, won the award.

Giant Food Store advertising appears regularly in The Washington Post each Friday morning.

Miss Georgia Goes On a Manhunt; He Must Be Rich

New York, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Miss Georgia—blonde Betty Shepard, 19—arrived in the big city from the Atlantic City beauty contest yesterday and went looking for a man, a rich one.

Other runners-up in the contest who arrived with her invaded model agencies and talent scout offices looking for jobs. But not Miss Georgia.

"I'll be honest—I'm here for fun, and not for a job," she said. "But if I don't meet a millionaire play boy within a couple of days, I'm going home. I was up here once before but that was for pleasure. This time, it's business. I'm looking for that millionaire husband."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There is evidence now that the professional league football coaches don't panic easily. There has been no rush to adopt the Chicago Bears' T-formation despite the 73-0 score by which the Bears devastated the Redskins last fall. In fact, only one pro league team, the Philadelphia Eagles, has recognized it as a new order in football to the point of falling in line.

POVICH

Out in San Diego, Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins isn't bothering his red head about installing any form of the T-formation, and it is not wholly because he does not think he has the proper kind of football players. Flaherty, who probably suffered more pain that November afternoon during the Redskins' 73-0 rout than any other man in the park, didn't blame it all on the T-formation.

"The T-formation didn't beat us—we played bad football," Flaherty told this department. "The Bears do a great job with the T, but it doesn't make 'em unbeatable. We outplayed 'em and licked 'em, 7 to 3, three weeks before, didn't we. Where was their T-formation that day? It couldn't get 'em a touchdown. They were the same Bear team that happened to have a great day three weeks later."

The current conception of the Bears is, of course, a big, bruising team that shakes its ball carriers loose almost at will and should cause opposing coaches to run and hide with their ball clubs for safety's sake, but Flaherty does not put in with that idea.

Cites Bears' Three Defeats

"The Bears have been using that T-formation for years, "Flaherty was saying. "But it got them only two championships in seven years. We weren't the only club that licked 'em last season. The Chicago Cardinals and Detroit Lions nailed the Bears, too, last year. You wouldn't say that a team that loses three games in a season is unbeatable would you? I don't see any reason why the other clubs in this league should curl up and play dead before that kind of a team."

The Bears' efficiency with the T-formation did not reach its high point, however, until Sid Luckman took over the quarterback job and made the club move with his magic handling of the ball. George Halas himself confesses that Luckman gave the T-formation more traction than any other quarterback the Bears ever had. However, the secret of the T's success is not entirely Luckman. The Bears' big, fast line permits the back to do their tricks with the ball.

"That's where to beat the T-formation—in the line," Flaherty was saying. Any club that comes up with a line that can stand off those Chicago forwards is going to make it tough on Halas' backs. They need a lot of time to handle that ball in the Bears' backfield, and they get it behind that good Bear line. Give me a line as good as the Bears. When the Bears are beaten, it's usually by big scores, in free-ends have to take from that running attack, and I think I can beat the Bears."

Only as an offensive club do the Bears command deep respect from the other coaches in the league. It has been their experience that a half dozen teams in the league are harder to score against than the Bears. When the eBars are beaten, it's usually by big scores, in free-scoring games. Even the league's weaker teams have rarely been stopped cold by the Bears' defense.

Flaherty Prefers His Flanker P

Flaherty has not been deeply impressed, her, with the efficiency of the Bears' famed man-in-motion play. At least the Redskin coach has made no move to emulate it. He is completely content to rely on his own flanker play which sends a fast back out beyond the end, but not in motion. That was the play on which Dick Todd last season scored the touchdown that beat the Bears and the play which Sammy Baugh and Andy Farkas used with such devastating effect in previous years with Farkas, like Todd, taking Baugh's flanker pass and depending on his drive to take him places in a ready-made open field.

Reports from the Pacific Coast indicate no novel rearrangement of the Redskins' attack. Not since Cliff Battles was taking his long Sunday afternoon hikes on various football fields in 1937 have the Redskins had a devastating running attack. Andy Farkas led the league in ground gaining in 1939, but the Redskins have been essentially a passing team. That is plausible enough in view of the presence of the peerless Baugh to throw the ball and whereas Flaherty is not sneering in the face of anything that will make the Redskins' running attack move, he bears down most heavily on his passing game.

From the college football front, advices from various sectors indicate that many schools have gone whole-hog for the Bears' T-formation. Boston College, under a new coach, is the latest. They don't think it's a passing fad. For that matter, neither do the pro coaches, but evidently they don't scare as easily. And they know that a T-attack without the proper kind of football players can be ridiculous. They don't want to give up yet on the kind of football they have made work pretty good in the past, especially in a swap for something that thus far has been peculiarly successful for only one team.

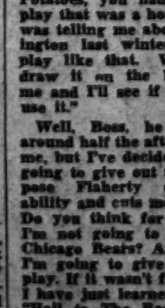
Holding Out—a 'Potato' Play:

Pieces of Haight:

Dear Boss: San Diego, Calif.

You know, Boss, this darn climate is ruining me. I've only been here a little over two weeks and what happens? Well, back home I take the car out of the garage to go to the store for a loaf of bread. Out here, I find myself so full of pep that I put on a uniform and run around carrying a football. Sort of silly, at my age, isn't it?

I came out here to hit typewriter keys and the weather has got me trying to hit the Redskin line. I hate to think what would become of me if I stayed here and kept getting younger every day. First thing you know I'd be hunting around for some nice young married couple who wants to adopt a fat boy. Now wouldn't I look nice sucking on a bottle of scotch and soda?



HAIGHT

Well, Boss, I was a sensation at practice today if I must say it myself, but I'm not making much headway with this Coach Flaherty. He did give me permission to take my setting-up exercises in the hotel room instead of with the other players, but he don't seem to be giving me a real chance. He hasn't allowed me to scrimmage yet.

And that darned Farkas is back in uniform. He is getting too healthy, that's all. But he isn't a smart football player like me. Why, Boss, they open holes in the line for him big enough to drive a Mack truck through and Farkas needs an Indian guide to find them. What these Redskins need are heady players like Sammy Baugh, Dick Todd, Frank Filchock and myself.

If I don't get some action out of this Flaherty soon I may change my plans and try to get his coaching job. All I have to do is to buy a light topcoat, turn up the collar, put on a beaten-up felt hat and be ready to run on the field after every play. Who couldn't do that at Flaherty's salary?

In fact, Assistant Coach Turk Edwards came up to me today and said; "Haight, I understand that you played with the Little Potatoes, you had a touchdown play that was a honey. Somebody was telling me about it in Washington last winter. We need a play like that. Why don't you draw it on the blackboard for me and I'll see if Flaherty won't use it."

Well, Boss, he followed me around half the afternoon begging me, but I've decided that I'm not going to give out that play. Suppose Flaherty overlooks my ability and cuts me off the squad. Do you think for a minute that I'm not going to play with the Chicago Bears? And believe me, I'm going to give the Bears my play. If it wasn't for the fact that I have just learned the words to "Hail to The Redskins," I'd be heading for Chicago right now.

Anyway, Boss, I'm doing pretty well socially around here. Mrs. Corrine Griffith Marshall invited

Young Hurler Grants 9 Hits, Is Stingy With Men on Base; Ortiz Star at Bat

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Kindly treat the Nats with a bit more respect, for the time being. They aren't in the cellar any more and they have a four-game winning streak. They accomplished those twin facts last night to the loud glee of 17,000 Griffith Stadium customers. They beat the White Sox, 7 to 2, under the lights.

They beat the White Sox with a six-run burst in the sixth inning that exploded a 1-1 tie in the face of little Edgar Smith, the chunky left-hander, who four times previously this season had walked off the field a winner over Washington.

They moved out of the cellar into seventh place coincident with the defeat of the Philadelphia Athletics earlier in the day by the Cleveland Indians. The margin of a half game isn't much, but it's a sight better than eighth place.

Entirely pleased with Rookie Roberto Ortiz were the 17,000 nocturnal patrons of Club Griffith. They saw the big Cuban lad tear the glove off Third Baseman Bob Kennedy's hand with a fierce single in the fourth inning, but he was only warming up for a more important effort in the sixth.

Hits With Three On

Ortiz slugged the winning runs across the plate with his second hit of the night. Dropped into a spot that found the bases full and one out, the Cuban lad slugged one of Smith's pitches for a single to left that broke the 1-1 tie and moved the Nats two runs in front.

But before this it should probably have been mentioned that Arnold Anderson was the winning pitcher. He kept the Nats in the ball game until they came up with that six-run haymaker in the sixth and ultimately held the White Sox to nine hits. He was in deep trouble in the fifth inning when the White Sox tied the score at 1-1 and had the bases filled thereafter with only one out, but Anderson extricated himself nicely. The run he yielded to the Chicagos in the eighth was definitely unearned. He walked only two batters and was exhibiting a new slow curve for the folks.

George Case got the first of the Nats' ten hits with a single to left in the opening inning and it evolved as the first run of the ball game after Smith wild-pitched him to second. He moved to third and home respectively when Cramer and Lewis grounded out to second base.

Anderson Bears Down

Smith himself was a factor in the tying run for the Sox, when, after Kennedy opened the fifth with a single to center, the little pitcher moved him to third with a single to center. Kolloway got the run home with a single to left. Thereafter the Sox had the bases filled but Anderson disposed of Kuhel on a pop fly and rid himself of Wright on a soft liner to Bloodworth.

In the sixth the Nats caught up with Little Smitty with great violence. They packed six hits into the inning, with eight men in succession reaching base on walks or hits. With one out, Smith walked Lewis and the panic was on. Travis moved Lewis to third with a single

Jake Early's Eye Ailment Forces Change in Hurlers

A mysterious ailment that has affected the facial muscles of Catcher Jake Early has prompted Manager Bucky Harris to change his pitching plans for today's game with the White Sox here. Reluctant to entrust Dutch Leonard's knuckleball to any other Washington catcher, Harris will send Sid Hudson to the mound.

Early complained of pains in his face and reported to the club physician that the muscles have been bothered to the degree that he is unable to shut his left eye. Several weeks ago, Early was harassed by eye trouble and the examining physician said his eyes were particularly allergic to dust.

Struggling to regain second place from the Red Sox, the White Sox are sending left-handed Thornton Lee to the mound against Hudson. Lee has won 18 games. One of his latest victories was a shutout against the Nats in Chicago.

Joe Louis Is Reclassified By Draft Board—in 1-A

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Draft officials moved World Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis closer to the Army today.

Local Selective Service Board No. 84 announced that the titleholder had been reclassified tentatively in class I-A, available for immediate military service.

A spokesman for the Cook County (Chicago) draft headquarters reported that Louis—now training for a bout with Lou Nova in New York on September 29—would not be inducted before October under any circumstances.

Moreover, he would not have to don a uniform then if he decided to contest the listing and convinced his draft board that he should not have been place in the 1-A bracket.

Louis, who reached the age of 27 last May 13, was not consulted about his reclassification. He has ten days in which to request a hearing on the new order and, if a decision is returned against him, he has an additional ten days to file an appeal.

Last January, the champion was put in Class III-A, the group of men deferred because of dependents. At that time he listed as dependents his wife, his mother, a niece, a sister and his father-in-law.

His wife, Marva, filed suit for divorce last July, but they were reconciled in August and she agreed to withdraw the petition. During a master in chancery's hearing on the case, Louis estimated that his net earnings averaged $56,000 annually in the last seven years. Selective Service officials declined to comment on whether that testimony had any bearing on his reclassification.

Notice of his new class was sent to the champion's Chicago address today. The next step in the procedure is a physical examination. No time was set, but it was explained that he could be examined here or in the East.

Case Pegs to Lewis and Hoag Is Cut Down at Third Base

Dom DiMaggio Has Field Day As Bosox Win

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 9.—Little Dom DiMaggio provided more batting support than Dick Newsome needed today as the Boston Red Sox rookie right-hander shut out the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 0, for his seventeenth victory of the season.

The youngest of the baseball DiMaggios tripled and scored on an infield out in the first inning, then came up in the second with the bases loaded—and drilled the first pitch over the leftfield barrier for his sevent home run.

He added a double to center his next time up, but by that time Johnny Gorsica, the Detroit starting pitcher, had gone to the showers and two Tiger hurlers—Right-handers Luther Thomas and Les Mueller—were in a stingy mood. They held the Red Sox scoreless the last six innings.

Newsome, a 31-year-old major league freshman, restricted Detroit to four hits as he made his fifteenth complete game his second shutout.

The Tigers threatened twice. They pieced together Bruce Campbell's single and Rudy York's double with two out in the fourth, only to have Newsome fool Mike Higgins on strikes. George Tebbetts' pinch single and "Dutch" Beyer's walk gave the former champions another chance with one down in the eighth. Then Newsome turned back Rip Radcliffe on an infield fly and Barney McCosky on a tap to the mound.

Card, Dodger Games Halted by Weather

Flock Leads Cubs, 1-0 as Rains Come; Double-Header Today

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The rains twice came with a vengeance to Wrigley Field today, finally washing out the Chicago-Brooklyn opener in the second inning to postpone Brooklyn's start of a Western swing during which the pace-making Dodgers hope to clinch the National League pennant.

A heavy storm delayed the start of the day's battle almost 50 minutes, but it finally got under way despite a sloshy outfield. Then, with the Dodgers leading 1 to 0 after an inning and a half, another storm broke loose to force a double-header program for tomorrow.

In this important twin bill, Manager Leo Durocher announced he would start Kirby Higbe in the opener, following with either Newell Kimball or Luke Hamlin, who pitched the lone inning against the sixth-place Cubs today. Manager Jim Wilson, of Chicago, said he would come back again with Claude Passeau, his starter today, and follow up with young Paul Erickson.

Since the Dodgers have 19 games remaining on their schedule and the second-place St. Louis Cardinals have 21 (including the Philadelphia game postponed today), the weather may play an important part in the flag fight—with the Cardinals hoping the Dodgers have to play every game on their string.

The weather prediction for Chicago tomorrow was rain.

The Cubs, who just last Thursday swept a double bill from St. Louis to knock the Cardinals into second place, could make it a hot Cardinal-Dodger battle with a twin-killing tomorrow. On the other hand, should Brooklyn take two games they definitely would hold the whip hand when they open their big series Thursday at St. Louis against the Billy Southworth crew.

Dodgers Halt Bears' Score Beats Dodgers

By Jack Guenther
United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Sept. 9.—The mighty Chicago Bears turned certain defeat into a spectacular victory tonight when George McAfee returned a punt 75 yards down the sidelines for the touchdown which gave the national professional champions a 14-9 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers with only 37 seconds left in the ball game.

A crowd of 27,104 hysterical spectators, who already were cheering a Dodger victory under the arc lights of Ebbets Field, were silenced completely as the Bears struck back in the dying minute after being outfought and out-played for all except the 10 seconds it took McAfee to scamper up the field.

Dodgers Halt "T"

Unable to sustain a single long drive or pierce beyond the Dodger 20-yard line all evening, the Chicago eleven eked out the triumph on the former Duke half back's sensational run and another touchdown that was set up following the return of a blocked kick early in the first period.

Playing without the services of their star, Ace Parker, the Dodgers—riddled by the loss of 22 men in the past six months—fought with a stubborn defense which completely muffled the magic of the Bears' T-formation and an offense which couldn't produce a touchdown but could and did string together the

Janet Younker Beats Champ, 1 Up; Bauer, Belanger and Amory Lose by 3-2 Scores

By Tom Noonan

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 9.—Janet Younker, of White Plains, N. Y., a comparative unknown, unleashed a withering blast of subpar golf late today and conquered Defending Champion and co-medalist Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., in the first round of the Forty-fifth Women's National Championship.

Shadows were gathering over the country club as the bespectacled Miss Younker completed her conquest of the slow-moving Texan by halving the eighteenth hole for a 1-up triumph before a small gallery.

It marked the first match-play defeat for 22-year-old Miss Jameson since the third round of the 1936 tournament at Buffalo, N. Y., when she succumbed to Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Greensboro, N. C.

Elimination of Miss Jameson, winner of the last two tournaments, climaxed a day of stunning upsets in which all four players who tied for the qualifying medal with 76's yesterday were knocked out of the running.

All Medalists Out

Three Easterners who had stamped themselves as contenders by deadlocking Miss Jameson for the medal were eliminated by identical scores of 3 and 2. They were Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., Alice Belanger, 21-year-old Beverly, Mass., twin and Grace Amory, socialite golfer from Locust Valley, N. Y.

Two former national titlists—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia and Mrs. Page, remained in the running although the Southerner was extended to 19 holes to defeat Mrs. Raymond S. Patton of Hartford, Conn., 1 up.

Miss Jameson got off to a good start and had a four-up lead at the turn by touring the first nine in 38 strokes to a ragged 42 for her 23-year-old opponent. Coming home the champion lost her putting touch as Miss Younker began to play probably the best golf of her career.

In seven holes Miss Younker raced to a one-hole lead which she maintained to the finish.

Shot Three Pars

The first five holes of the back nine yielded three birdies to Miss Younker, who quietly sat on a portable chair as Miss Jameson fidgeted and fussed before each shot. Miss Younker toured the home nine in 34.

Clem Stralka Hurt As 'Skins Drill For Game Friday

By a Staff Correspondent

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 9.—Coach Ray Flaherty sent the Redskins through a scrimmage today in preparation for Friday night's clash with the Pacific Coast All-Stars who will feature Kenny Washington, giant colored star, who made football history at U. C. L. A. The District squad worked on the Riviera Country Club polo field and the session was one of the hardest of the training season to date.

Clem Stralka, former Georgetown University guard, was added to a growing list of ailing players. "Little Bull," as they call him, was banged on the knee and had to retire. He joined Andy Farkas (bad knee), Ed Justice (bad knee), Roy Zimmerman (injured shoulder), Clyde Shugart (pulled muscle in back) and John Stonebraker (bad knee).

Joey Goes After 21st Local Nod Tomorrow Night at Stadium; Crown Is on Line

By Tony Neri

Those 2-to-1 odds favoring Challenger Chalky Wright in his 15-round fight against Pawtucket's Joey Archibald tomorrow night at the ball park are not worrying Al Weill, manager of the world's featherweight champion. It will be Archibald's twenty-first fight in Washington. He is unbeaten here.

Weill, who has piloted Arturo Godoy, Lou Ambers, and many other top fighters, asserted yesterday, "Odds never make a difference. After all, they don't make a fight. I've been bucking odds all my life and I find out that the guy that has the best punch generally wins.

"The fighters have got to go 15 rounds tomorrow and once they get into the ring, they are on their own. The odds won't help them then. Joey is in great shape. He has been on the short end of odds many times here but has never lost a fight in Washington. So. I ain't worrying."

Title On Line

Wright and Archibald will be battling for the New York-Maryland version of the world featherweight title tomorrow with a possibility of the winner meeting Richard Lemos, N. B. A. titleholder, for the undisputed championship of the universe. Promoter Ray Alvis has asked the help of the District Boxing Commission in getting Lemos to meet tomorrow night's winner. The District, an affiliate of the N. B. A., recognizes Lemos as champion.

Alvis has predicted a gate of $15,000, but will probably be tickled if it does $10,000. If yesterday's brisk sale is any criterion the fight should do 10 grand.

The match will be broadcast over a Nation-wide hookup by Bill Stern and Sam Taub by N. B. C. under Adam Hats sponsorship.

Alvis also stated that he would interrupt the preliminaries to air the President's speech over Griffith Stadium's amplifyers.

After Crown

This will be Wright's first chance at a crack at the crown. He has been fighting since 1928 and four times has quit the game when fighters in his class declined to meet him. In the past four years he has met three lone featherweights, having to fight lightweights, welterweights and middleweights, or else be idle.

The card tomorrow night follows: Archibald-Wright, 15 rounds (for featherweight title). Oscar Wright-Jimmy Hatcher, 8 rounds, lightweights. Billy Banks-Carroll Alexander, 8 rounds, featherweights. Milo Theodorescu-Cowboy Coats, 6 rounds, welterweights. Art Lind-Buddy Thomas, 6 rounds, middleweights.

The only change in the original card is the substitution of Carroll "Kid" Alexander against Billy Banks. Jimmy Collins, of Baltimore, is ailing, and can't meet the local Negro.

Jimmy Hatcher, Archibald's stablemate, and Cowboy Coates, are unknown quantities here, this being their first appearance in the Nation's Capital. Milo Theodorescu and Art Lind are known to boxing followers here. Theodorescu, stablemate of Wright, fought Phil Furr at Turner's Arena two years ago. Lind is a protege of former middleweight champion Ken Overlin.

Tomorrow night's show opens at 8:30 p. m.

NBA Aims Drive At Monopolistic Control of Boxing

By the Associated Press

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 9.—The National Boxing Association resolved today to obtain "the necessary legal and physical evidence" to break the practice of "monopolistic control which ensnares all fighters of prominence and makes them subject to a single promoter."

The association adopted unanimously a committee resolution that called no names but which said that it regarded the practice as an "insidious influence . . . contrary to the laws of the State of New York, in which most of these inimical acts are countenanced, encouraged and nurtured."

The whole theme of the N. B. A. meeting prior to today had been a denunciation of Mike Jacobs and what was described as his monopolistic control of boxing, with the aid of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Table Tennis Stars Perform at Earle

Patrons of the Earle Theater this week will be treated to genuine sports entertainment in the table tennis exhibition of Coleman Clark, former Chicago University tennis capiain. Baseball Star, Boxing Champ and a New Fistic Coach

Men's District Pin League Opens Tonight

MEN'S DISTRICT LEAGUE SCHEDULE
Wednesday Night—7:30 P. M.
Arlington at Rosslyn.
Georgetown at Brookland.
Bethesda at Lafayette.
Del Ray at Convention Hall.
Ice Palace at Biger's Bethesda.
Spillway at Hi-Skor.
Penn at Arcadia.
King Pin at Clarendon.
Lucky Strike at Hyattsville.

With nearly 100 duckpin sharpshooters eagerly waiting the starting whistle, the Men's District League will embark on an auspicious inaugural tonight at 7:30 when 18 strong contenders of 9 different mapleways scattered over Greater Washington square off for the opening matches. Featuring a number of the greatest duckpinners in America, local bowling fans will see such stars as Astor Clarke, Hokie Smith, Lou Jenkins, Tony Santini, Ollie Pacini, Monk Walker, Cletus Pannell, Ed Blakeney, Fred Murphy, Bill Krauss, Ed Nash, El Geib and many others in action.

With the league larger than ever before, Washington's fastest men's loop confidently looks forward to a banner season and hope to break many existing records. Bowling fans will find practically all of the old faces in the various line-ups with here and there a sprinkling of newcomers, most of them serving their first season in the fast loop. The "baby" members of the league have earned by past performance their chance in the "big time," and not only will their respective careers be watched with interest but they will carry with them the well wishes of the present members.

Those bowling enthusiasts not rolling in leagues tonight are expected to jam the alleys at which District League games are scheduled, with choicest seats going to the early comers. Most of the operators arrange to have the District League matches on alleys most advantageous from the spectators' point of view, so that all may see the stars in action. One of the new teams, Del Ray, has erected stands to accommodate a hundred or more spectators and Clarendon has increased its seating capacity twofold. All bowling fans know of the splendid seating facilities at Convention Hall. Anacostia Spillway, as well, has better than average facilities to view the matches in comfort and several operators are planning additions to existing space.

All matches tonight start at 7:30, with the exception of Brookland vs. Georgetown, which gets under way at 7 o'clock at Brookland so that several members of the team may bowl in a 9 o'clock league.

Doby's One-Hitter Beats Spring Ten

Tommy Dobys, Carr Brothers' speedball pitcher, hurled a one-hitter against the favored Silver Spring All-Stars while his mates were pounding out seven hits for a 3-to-1 victory over the suburbanites at Washington Softball Stadium last night.

Gebhart aided materially in the Carr victory with a brace of hits.

Manhattan Auto & Radio defaulted their scheduled game to Kavakos Grill and Frank Carr's playground champions from Park View, playing under the colors of the Washington Monarch Club, filled in. The Carrmen played a sensational game, holding the heavy hitting Kavakoses to a 5-to-3 victory.

Tonight at the stadium Fat Boy Restaurant, with Harold Steffes on the mound, will play Census Bureau, and Westminster Church champions of the Southwest, will play the Washington Boys Club.

—With CONSIDINE

Sportin' Around:

Judge Landis will be burned to learn that the Dodger-Cardinal series opening Thursday in St. Louis will be the biggest betting series in years . . . Jack Doyle makes the Dodgers 5-to-7 favorites and reports more "action" in this three-game payoff series than in any of recent memory . . . Durocher plans to toss himself in there for the crucial series, unless Reese looks very good in the Dodger-Cub series . . . We think that's a mistake . . . Better look out for some heavy buying up of Cardinal farm talent by Tom Yawkey. Yawkey now thinks Branch Rickey is the smartest man in baseball, and Rickey may prove it by unloading a lot of good, bad and indifferent talent at Yawkey's door.

CONSIDINE

When Gas overcame Lou Nova's sparring mates recently one of them was so affected that he went berserk. It took three or four men to quell him, and even then there was no assurance that he wouldn't start slugging them again—while waiting for the ambulance to arrive. In the meanwhile, Mushky Jackson, official word scrambler at Nova's camp, got very upset. He kept moaning:

"For the love of Pete, when are them internals going to come from the hospital?"

Reads Speak Their Minds

Army morale, or the lack of it, is the subject of a number of letters which have come to this desk, in response to our recent interview with an Army athletic officer. Edwin O'Connor, of Brooklyn, suggests that so many sports teams of all types be formed in each camp that every man is a member of at least one . . . Bert Silberman, of the Bronx, thinks the answer lies in paying more attention to track and field, with regularly scheduled intersquad meets. He believes track and field, being diversified, would find a role for nearly every man in camp . . . Howard L. Miller, of Cincinnati, suggests that more emphasis be placed on softball, particularly "slow pitch" softball . . . Raymond C. Smith, of New York City, believes that the reported failure of the Army sports program can be traced to the fact that the majority of officers in charge of sports have never been trained for that kind of work and have no faculty for organizing in sports. "I refer to the appointment of a Philadelphia oarsmen as a key man in the national health program," Mr. Smith writes. "What can such a specialist know of mass planning, mass needs and mass athletic administration?".

Toots Shor, the sports-minded pub keeper, was sitting at a table with some sportswriters the other night and, though very shy, finally got up nerve enough to speak. "That certainly was a good column Corum had today," Shor said.

There was a silence at the table, finally broken by Silent Jerry Lewis. "Who read it to you, y'crumb?" Lewis demand of Shor. Shor was silent for a long time . . . Lost in thought. One of the other men at the table, feeling sorry for him, turned on Lewis and said, "that was a punk thing to say, Lewis. You've hurt Toots' feelings."

Toots looked up from his reverie. "Oh . . . No he didn't," he said. "I was just trying to think who did read it to me."

Feller Beats Athletics, 13-7, For His 23d

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Bob Feller chalked up victory No. 23 with little difficulty today as the Cleveland Indians coupled 13 hits and 4 walks with 5 Philadelphia errors to trounce the Athletics, 13 to 7.

Feller allowed nine hits, but hurled two-hit shutout ball until the seventh. He coasted through the last three frames on a big lead built up at the expense of Lester McCrabb and Tom Ferrick.

Lou Boudreau, Jeff Heath and Rookie Jimmy Hegan contributed home runs to the Indians' cause, Boudreau in the third with none on base, Heath with one on in the eighth and Hegan with none on in the ninth. The Indians sewed up the game in the fourth inning by driving McCrabb to the showers with a six-run rally on four hits, two walks and two Athletic errors.

Bob Johnson accounted for three of the Philadelphia runs with a home run, scoring Benny McCoy and Eddie Collins, jr., ahead of him in the eighth.

LaChappelle Meets Austeri on Mat Tomorrow Night

Long overdue in a headline singles match, Maurice LaChappelle, the French master of a thousand wrestling holds, will engage Jim Austeri, Italian grappler, in a 30-minute bout in tomorrow's night show at Turner's Arena.

LaChappelle will be bidding for a shot at the winner of the feature scrap between Pat Fraley, the Pacific Coast champion, and Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher. Fraley has won seven straight locally, and only a month ago scored a questionable victory over the Kansan.

LaChappelle's latest victim was Angelo Leone, who was knocked off in 18 minutes last Thursday. The Frenchman has been a popular figure with the fans in his two-man team bouts in which Ace Freeman is his partner.

St. John's Gridmen May Surprise Big Name Foes

Augusterfer Has Line Problems This Year With Veteran Backfield; Open With G. W. High

By Bill Burnett

While its various opponents are promoting their own prospects, overlooking the little school on Vermont Avenue, St. John's High is cooking up a big surprise for the so-called "power" elevens among Washington's schoolboys.

Coach Gene Augusterfer says the Johnnies will do "all right" this season, which virtually assures them of a near-perfect record.

Augusterfer has his boys working the kinks out on the Monument lot. He stops to survey the squad from time to time, and he can't help but let a smile of anticipation cross the face that has absorbed cleats with St. John's, Catholic University, the pro Pittsburgh Pirates, the Washington Presidents and the Richmond Arrows.

Enough to cause a smile on the part of any scholastic coach is the fact that five of St. John's regular backs last year have returned. Buddy Spiess, "scat back;" Harold Krug, line plunger and blocker; Steve Burns, quarterback and passer, and Billy Brogan, speedy ball-carrier, are all in uniform and better than last year. Tom Chisari, kicking fullback who also blocks, is sick now but is expected out soon.

The line particularly center, will be Augusterfer's big problem. The whole forward wall donned cap and gown after last season.

Here too, however, Augusterfer has no cause for moaning. He's got a huge gang of husky youngsters on hand and all he needs to do is find where they fit best. His ends are already almost set, with Buddy Hughes, 185-pound basketball star, at one and Ed Lucas, last year's second-string fullback, at the other.

Five guards and four tackles, including the O'Donnell twins, have been detected. All approach the 200-pound mark, though young and inexperienced. That leaves only the center position, the toughest of all to fill.

The Johnnies open their shedule two weeks from Friday, playing George Washington High in Alexandria at night. Thereafter they will meet Washington-Lee, Devitt, Calvert Hall, Charlotte Hall, Roosevelt, Gonzaga and Eastern in succession.

Yankees Win On Henrich's Homer, 1 to 0

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 9.—The New York Yankees jabbed the St. Louis Browns, 1 to 0, today with Tommy Henrich's twenty-eighth home run of the year breaking up a beautiful pitching duel between Spud Chandler and Bob Harris.

For seven innings the two mound rivals pitched shutout ball and then with one out in the Yankee half of the eighth Henrich hammered a sizzling liner into the rightfield stands to decide the game.

Chandler, in earning his eighth victory, held the Browns to four hits, only one in the first six frames. Harris allowed seven.

Joe DiMaggio returned to the Yankees' line-up for the first time since he sprained an ankle at Detroit August 19 and contributed one single in three times at bat.

Late entries include those from Bernard Roan, of Danville, Pa., who will race his Blue Heron in the moth class, and E. G. Hoover, jr., of York, Pa., skipper of the one-design sloop, Kit.

Sailor making the longest trip to compete is Paul Morris, Seattle, Wash., radio announcer who will handle his dinghy Mike Fright.

A special attraction Saturday will be the one-hour fireworks display, starting at 8 o'clock on Hain's Point. Final races will be held Sunday, with presentations of awards that night at the Capital Yacht Club.

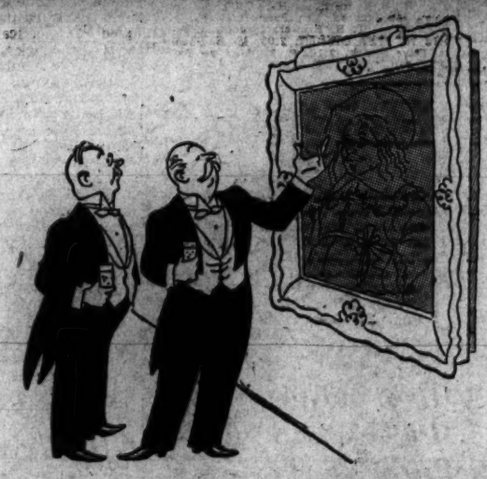
A Dutch painter, born in 1580, KNEW THE SECRET of one of Washington's finest whiskies!



AT AN IMPORTANT function, I found myself alone with my host—and a highball—in his art gallery. "This highball and these reproductions," I said, "are tops." He seemed pleased. "This is Fine Arts whiskey," he said, "and the secret of its goodness, believe it or not, is buried in this very portrait!

"FRANZ HALS first blocked in his subject. Fine Arts starts with careful planning, too.

"JUST AS the painter built up his portrait with tempera, so Fine Arts is built up to perfection.

"THEN, HALS applied 'glazes' for brilliance. In Fine Arts—quality whiskies are added for brilliance.

"FINALLY, he refined his details. In Fine Arts, a final touch of masterly blending brings perfection.

"THE WHISKIES used in Fine Arts are perfect by themselves. Brought together, they create a blend matchless in aroma, body and flavor. You may think it strange that a Dutchman born in 1580 should know the very secret by which Fine Arts is achieved, but there's the proof—on the canvas and in your glass."

Peacock Cards 78 in D. C. Amateur; May Not Qualify

Bill Wenzel And Olmstead Lead Field

Top Two Card 74's at Kenwood; Scores Are Generally High as Heat Takes Toll

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Roger Peacock furnished the biggest surprise of the first day's qualifying for the District Amateur Championship yesterday at Kenwood not by leading the scoring as expected, but by posting a seven-over par 78 which will undoubtedly leave him out of the match play rounds of the first sixteen.

The three-time former champion, who automatically takes over the favorite's role when he enters, suffered from four three-putt greens and an out-of-bounds stroke on the eleventh hole. He drove home from Connecticut all Monday night and tried to have his medal test put back until today but was unable to reach the tournament officials.

Tied for temporary medal honors with 74s were Bill Wenzel, one of the better home club amateurs, and Jack Olmsted, club championship finalist at Indian Spring, who paced the starting field of 41.

Scores Surprisingly High

Scores ranged higher than expected although the course was suited to low scoring. Par was safe by three shots while only four were better than 76. Defending Champion Ralph Bogert will lead the second half of the field today in 18-hole qualifying rounds.

Second with 75s came Richard Krauzburg, Roadside Theater player from the host club, and Earl McAleer, the southpaw shotmaker from Manor who tossed away his medal chances with a 5-5 finish, three over par on the last two holes. McAleer had 11 straight pars and then a birdie on the twelfth but at the thirteenth he went over par for the first time and then on the little seventeenth hole was trapped and finally down in five strokes.

The 76 group was filled with prominent contenders. Eddie Ault, Indian Spring; M. Parker Nolan, low amateur in the Washington Open from Congressional, and Charles Malone, the reformed pro gridder, all had nines of 39 and 37, while George Vass, jr., another Kenwood entry, paired 38s.

Heat Gets Players

On the basis of yesterday's play and considering that today's field may be a little stronger it looks as though scores of 76 will playoff for championship flight berths late this afternoon. Eight were 76 and better yesterday. Anything over that figure appears definitely out, barring unexpected weather conditions. The boys had plenty of trouble with the weather yesterday, however, all of them bogging down on the late holes due to the heat.

Menzel, first of the surprise low scorers to finish, dotted his card with four birdies but after playing the out nine in 35 strokes he ran into rough trouble coming back and had a 39. Olmsted, whose game is usually either 71 or 81, was consistent with an average round of 74.

Pat Martino, with a 78; Ken Lafferty, at 79, and District Junior Champion Tom Brandon, jr., at 81, were among the disappointments yesterday. The latter had nines of 37 and 44.

Hotel Bowlers Score of 587-1608

The Hotels team in the Diamond Cab League at Brookland monopolized things last night with Bill Oliff taking high game with 131 as Carter won set honors after posting 364. Both scores aided their mates in taking team highs with 587-1,608 but they could win but two from Taxi-Go-Round. Pop Hutton's 122-355 helped Shoreham take the odd tilt from Walter Reed and Russ Hopkins' 126-341 aided Auto Sales take two from Uptown. The Service Station boys won two from the Ray Steelers.

Library Pin League Topped by E. Armstrong

The Library of Congress Mixed League got off to an auspicious start at Brookland last night with Elizabeth Armstrong taking the initiative for the women and leading with a 121 single and 297 set that enabled her Dodgers to whitewash the Tigers. Hayes Kirkland, Cardinals, was the leading hero of the men, totaling 140 for high game which he turned into a splendid 405 set. The Cardinals and Dodgers divided team highs with 548 and 1532, respectively.

"I buy all the players for this team and I have not informed anyone of the purchase of any of the three players, nor of my intention to buy any of them."

Mrs. Neff Wins Manor Club Golf

An even 90 with a 14-stroke handicap yesterday earned Mrs. H. A. Neff the low net prize as Manor Country Club staged its weekly women's day golf tourney. One stroke back of her 76 was Mrs. W. A. Hill, 102-25—77, and Mrs. R. M. Trezise and Mrs. J. V. Brownell, tied for third with 78's. Low putts, 27, were registered by Mrs. J. R. Daily, and Mrs. J. Cropley took the members' prize for the tee shot nearest the eighth pin at 12 feet.

Mrs. Hendrick, of Kenwood, captured the guest's net prize with 91-12—79, while low putts were recorded by Mrs. M. Falls, who had 33. On the inside nine Mrs. P. Stratton had only 15 putts, and Mrs. R. Finlay's score of 21 took down honors in the "four blind holes" section.

Hoyas, Colonials Hit Again By Unexpected Grid Losses

G. W. Loses Tackle Clarey, Back Brodbeck, May Miss Another; G. U.'s Kopcik Leaves

By Jack Munhall

Georgetown and George Washington continued yesterday their unscheduled and unwelcomed race to see which could lose the most football dependables before the season opens.

The Colonials had a decided edge in this latest round, reporting a trio of their members hors de combat for one reason or another. John Clarey, veteran tackle, has undergone an appendectomy. Ed Robins, another dependable tackle, may not return to school because of illness and his doctors' orders, and Bill Brodbeck, sophomore fullback whose passing ability was highly valued, is said to be unable to register for this term.

Over the Hilltop there was only one similar development, but it was a most important one, for Mike Kopcik, senior end and a truly fine player, has gone home. G. U. officials are a little vague as to the reason, but it is rumored that Kopcik is entangled scholastically. Yesterday Head Coach Jack Hagerty said he hoped Kopcik would be back.

The certain loss of Clarey for at least two months and the possible absence of Robins means that George Washington is facing for the second straight year a deplorable shortage of capable and experienced tackles. It had been hoped that the team would be much improved over last year at this position, but now Coach Bill Reinhart just doesn't know which end is up.

Without Clarey and Robins, who were considered among the leading tackle candidates, George Washington is left with two seasoned aspirants for the jobs. They are Dan Snyder, junior letterman, and John Konizewski, also a junior holdover but not a letterman. Behind this pair are three sophomores of whom little is known. They are Walter Murphy, Dan Rosa and Bob Leonetti.

Assuming that Georgetown loses Kopcik—which is purely assumption—the Hoyas would be hit doubly hard. First off they would miss one of the better ends of the East, a 190-pounder who knows what he's doing on both offense and defense. Secondly, they would lose the best punter on the squad and one of the best kickers in the entire country. Always a superb punter who thought nothing of booting the ball 50 and 60 yards and out of bounds within the enemy's 10-yard line, Kopcik seemed better than ever this year. Reporting late but in great shape, the Endicott, N. Y., senior delighted Hagerty Saturday in his first punting drill, which also may prove to have been his last with Georgetown.

Blozis Too "Skinny"

Outside of the Kopcik incident, the Hoyas seem to have few pressing troubles at present, although Line Coach "Mush" Dubofsky and all others concerned would like to see about 10 more pounds draping the frame of big Al Blozis. The senior All-American tackle candidate and national shot-put champion, spent the summer working as a student chemist and reported to practice weighing only 227 pounds. Though this weight would seem enough for most anyone, the Georgetown board of athletic strategy believes Blozis should carry around 240 pounds with his 6 feet 6½ height.

The big fellow has been making progress, despite the heat, and Monday at the end of the first week of practice he scaled 235. With the coming of cooler weather, Blozis should reach the desired figure. Right now he is sweating off about every pound he can eat on himself.

According to the weight progress chart in the Georgetown locker room, Blozis weighed in at 235 before morning practice yesterday, and at 227 afterward. Among the other players the biggest weight losers in the morning practice were: Tackles, Stan Jaworowski, who dropped from 212 to 208, and Frank Fenwick, 205 to 199; end, Art Lemke, 203 to 198, and halfback, Benny Reiges, 191½ to 187½.

The intense heat canceled any plans Coach Hagerty may have had for heavy work in the afternoon. So the practice began with a game the Hoyas call "football baseball" and ended with signal drill. Hagerty was disgusted that so many players—who should—still don't know their blocking assignments.

Former G. U. Star Center To Wed Today

JAMES REICHEY

James Reichey of Bradley Beach, N. J., a star football center for Georgetown for three years ending last season, will be married today in his home town to Miss Margaret Rushton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rushton, it was learned yesterday.

Reichey who is 22, stands six feet and weighs about 195 pounds, won recognition at Georgetown for his courage and willingness to play football, even though he was for three years the second strong center. Reichey found consolation for his bench-sitting in the realization that it took Allen Matuza, one of the country's best centers, to keep him out of the line-up.

Brainchild Closes With Drive to Take Inverness Purse

Beats Out Favored Red Wings

Lena Gill Is Third In Feature; Winner Pays $8.40 Ticket; Hernandez Victor

By Clocker Mike

Timonium, Md., Sept. 9.—The Inverness Farm Purse was made the feature event today but the caliber horses entered in the race were not worthy of the title. The field attracted eight sprinters of the $100 class and the winner turned up in the consistent Brainchild, representing Mrs. A. S. Bowman. The daughter of Caid reversed her tactics this afternoon and instead of her much-used early speed, she came from off the pace to wear down Red Wings in the last sixteenth. Lena Girl was a fast-closing third.

For a while the 6000 fans were undecided as to who they would make the favorite. At the finish standing they had made Red Wings 2-1 over Brainchild. Their choice was not on the head end at the break and had to be hustled for about a quarter mile until she assumed a commanding lead. At this stage Palumbo took hold of her until they were midway down the backstretch where she opened up a two-length margin. Hernandez had Brainchild always close to the leader and when they swung for the stretch, Red Wings started to weaken and Brainchild again came up. This time her bid was not to be denied and she went to the front about 70 yards from home and was drawing away from her rival.

This brought Brainchild's score for the meeting to two wins in three starts. In the other start, she was beaten by Dividend. In all three races she has competed, the winners' time over a fast track was 1:22 2-5. Those wagering on her chances to score received a good $8.40 mutuel.

ALSELEDA went to the front going to the first turn, was easily second best, but could not resist the winner. QUEEN BLAZE was well up from the start and held on well. FAIR HAIRED was off poorly. TOWN CAR tired gradually.

SCOOTIE moved to the leaders when asked, went around them while running easily and was not punished through the final sixteenth. SETTLER lacked early speed, swung wide in the stretch and was going well at the end. DABS forced the pace of GENE McCARTHY, but could not match the speed of the winner while both were moving. GENE McCARTHY had speed for a half. SCATALONE was off last, was shut off at the paddock turn and then went very wide.

FITMISS was held in behind the leader for a half, went to the front when asked after a half mile, drew out and won rather easily. BOB'S PASS showed in front for a half, but could not run with the winner when challenged. BALKANESE ran close up throughout and held on well. HERBERT closed well on the extreme outside. MARDI GRAS broke slower than usual and was beaten when unable to get to the front. STAR TURN dwelt at the start.

BRAINCHILD was not hurried when unable to get to the front, responded when placed to pressure in the final quarter and was going away at the end. RED WINGS had to be hard ridden in the early stages to reach the front, was rated to the backstretch, opened a long lead when turned loose, but could not resist the winner. LENA GIRL improved her position gradually. NEW STEP was in close quarters and showed a good effort. HIGHLAND SONG was through early.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:00½. Off at 5:02. Winner, J. H. Kopet's br. m. SPEED SHIP was far back early, moved through on the rail until entering the stretch, was taken outside and won going away. BAROGRAPH saved ground while moving to the leaders, held on well, but was no match for the winner. KAMARI disposed of SCARLET FLAME to take command, held on gamely, but was just nipped for the place. SCARLET FLAME weakened after racing with the pace for three-quarters. IDA TIME showed brief speed.

EIGHTH RACE—One and five-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:32. Winner, Mrs. F. White's b. h. MINTSON was hard held while following the pace, went to the front when asked and won in easy fashion. QUILL, showing marked improvement over his last effort, moved up on the outside and was going strong at the end. WILLIAM V. went to the rail while moving, but was not good enough. GIMPEY disposed of CREDENCE to take command and then faltered. CREDENCE was through after five-sixths.

At The Post

Dear Al:

Our old friend Russel Oakes was down Monday. He informed us that he has just been made associated editor of the Eastern Breeder. Oakes, as you know, is director of public relations at Charles Town and will no doubt prove a valuable man in this role. Russ was for ten years racing editor of the Baltimore Sun and from that job he took over a column with the Daily Racing Form. He also informs us that the horses of Mrs. H. W. Boyle, wife of Charles Town's Al Boyle, will skip the Havre de Grace meeting and will be sent to Laurel to await the coming session. Jockey Wayne Weber, who is riding with a large amount of success at the present meeting, is starting to pick up weight rapidly. Weber can be seen hitting the road every morning. Trainer Whitey Nixon, who has had a very successful season with the G. R. Watkins horses, was an arrival at the 'Graw with a good sized string. Whitney made the best claim of the Delaware Park meeting when he took Stolen Tryst for $2,600. Stolen Tryst came back and has won about four races since changing hands. Jockey Glen Smith, one of the best hooters to be seen around here, has announced that he has hung up his tack for good. That may be true but I wouldn't be surprised to see him back in the saddle at the 'Graw. I was talking to Trainer Eddie Parks yesterday and he tells me that he had received several offers for the contract of Apprentice Larry Gysin. The boy rode well at Hagerstown and Bel Air and then went to New York and was aboard a couple of winners. Parks also reports that Shilka, which was injured when she ran off in the stable area at Bel Air, has been back in training for about two weeks and will be ready to start at Havré de Grace. Jockeys Willie Kelly, Pat Grant and Chester Walters shipped their tack to ply their trade at that point. All stated that they would go from that point to Rhode Island and take in the Pascoag meeting.—Bill.

First race—If AUBALEY is started here I see nothing that can keep her out of the top money. SUSAN'S SALLY showed good speed at 4½ but may not like the added distance. WHITE SEA is a maiden that is always close but can't reach the charmed circle.

Second race—MR. JIM has been second twice in a row and may move up a notch and whip this field. CHANCER has all good races to recommend and is the one to beat. SMALL CHANGE has plenty of speed but stopped last out.

Third race—LE PASSADOU has been improving each start and is up to a winning effort with class. ROUGE CATALAN is as good as ever now and is the threat. ANCHORS DOWN showed marked improvement last out and could get a share.

Fourth race — OSOFREE came from far back to score a win last out and if able to repeat that race, she looks like a winner here. FAIR ROCK is far down on the list but that last winning effort makes this one a real threat. DEODO is good now but needs a change of riders.

Fifth race—UNKNOWN LAND was second to Aster Lady last out but appeared to have been a dead-short horse. Should have little trouble here but may have to catch the speedy DASHING DOE. The latter had no chance last out at Marlboro. BUTCHER BOY is stepping up a little but was a good winner opening day.

Sixth race—ZAC PAM has never been a distance but has given indications of preferring a route. REAL BOY won in impressive fashion last out and should carry his speed this far. MISS MUD is the only one here that has been going a route.

Seventh race—NETTA WOOD'S last race can be thrown out and that makes her the winner here. Before that she was second to Chalotaur. DRESSMAKER closed well going 6½ furlongs and will like the distance. SKY HOSTESS is last on the list but would be a factor if started.

Eighth race—If CURVES can get off the eligible list I believe we will find the winner in this route affair. JUSTA JIMMIE will be in front for a spell and may be hard to catch. WORTHOWNING had all kinds of bad luck last out and may improve enough to take it all.

Best bet—Osofree.

Bill Cunningham's Column

A Plea for Unity in Sports World

The accent at the moment is on unity with the capital U, and those who, in their several ways, are striving to watch the ramparts should shovel sand on the thermits of sectional incendiaries as fast as they fall. That goes for the world of sport as well as worlds of any other description, only more so, possibly, for the average citizen reacts more swiftly to news about rights to the chin, four-basers into the bleachers and forward passes over the goal line than to heavy communiques about protocols, paratroops, panzers and pincers.

Cunningham

The common man recognizes and reacts to the cries, "fair" and "foul," and makes generalizations accordingly.

One of the biggest sports events of the immediate past has been an unpleasant affair from one way of looking. A lot of folks could be pretty bitter. The poison of "sectional favoritism" could easily pour through the fissures and spread. These are no times to see that sort of thing happen.

In that big All-Star football game in Chicago, the All-Star end of it unquestionably went sour. Whether the fault was with the coaching staff, the squad or with the way the affair is set up could possibly be argued at length, but the net result was bruised feelings and intersectional resentment. Carl Snavely, an Eastern coach, whose portfolio is Cornell, headed a tutorial staff comprising Midwestern and Far Western assistants.

They weren't part of the official script, but he likewise brought his own Cornell assistants with him. The players, "elected" by popular vote through a summer-length poll of affiliated newspaper and radio stations, were preponderantly from the Midwest, although there was a scattering of stars from the East, the South, the Southwest and the Coast.

All these lads were highly publicized, even idolized, sectional favorites. Entire cities, States and conferences regarded them with fiercely jealous pride. There were 85 of them and only 11 can be used in a game at any one time. The brutal difficulties of such a situation need no further Gasoline Stock In East Drops 523,000 Bbls.

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 9.—The weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute disclosed today that gasoline stocks in the Eastern Seaboard, where a gasoline shortage is threatened, declined 523,000 barrels last week.

At the end of the week, which included heavy Labor Day travel, stocks in the East Coast and Appalachian districts amounted to 22,808,000 barrels compared with 23,331,000 the previous week and 25,145,000 at the same time a year ago.

For the country as a whloe, gasoline stocks declined only 101,000 barrels, despite a 7 per cent increase in consumption compared with a year ago. Estimated gasoline production hit a new high total of 13,353,000 barrels, compared with 13,292,000 the previous week and 11,460,000 in the corresponding week of 1940. Total gasoline stocks at the end of the week amounted to 81,571,000 barrels against 83,402,000 a year ago.

Curtailment of crude oil output in Texas and Kansas reduced daily average crude oil production for the country as a whole to 3,814,950 barrels compared with the record high of 4,004,700 the week before and 3,623,850 a year earlier.

Operations of reporting refineries slowed somewhat during the week to 92.9 per cent of potential capacity from 94.7 the previous week. Runs of crude oil to stills for the industry as a whole were estimated by the institute at 3,998,000 barrels a day compared with 4,070,000 the previous week and 3,568,000 a year ago.

Imports of crude and refined oils at principal ports totaled 1,542,000 barrels against 1,450,000 the week before.

Briggs and Hudson Display Defense Work to Writers

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 9.—Two more units of the Nation's motorcar industry that is devoting much of its productive capacity to rearmament showed some of the fruits of their efforts today in private demonstrations to newspaper and trade magazine writers.

Briggs Manufacturing Co., one of the largest of the independent automobile body manufacturers, devoted its showing primarily to a demonstration of how it has applied the mass production methods of the car industry to the making of aircraft sub-assemblies, already in volume output of airplane and seaplane sections. Briggs describes itself as probably the first company in the automobile industry to reach full production on airplane assemblies.

In the new $20,000,000 Naval Arsenal built and tooled by the Hudson Motor Co., volume output of 20 milimeter anti-aircraft guns and other items of defense intended mainly for the United States Navy was shown. Hudson coupled the defense activities presentation with a showing of its entire line of new passenger automobiles.

Hudson has been allocated a total passenger car output for the 1942 model year of 68,800 units, a curtailment of approximately 27 per cent from last year's aggregate.

August Shipments Of Rayon Yarn Drop

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—The publication Rayon Organon said today shipments of rayon filament yarn to domestic consumers during August aggregated 37,300,000 pounds, compared with 39,400,000 pounds in July and 34,000,000 pounds in August, 1940.

Domestic shipments for the eight months ended August 31 were 296,000,000 pounds, a 17 per cent increase over the 252,300,000 pounds delivered during the like 1940 period.

August net deliveries of silk to American mills were 2,069 bales, compared with an estimated figure of 28,328 bales in July. The small August total reflected the current raw silk situation, the publication said.

Feverish Scramble Booms Commodities

Soybeans Skyrocket 8 Cents a Bushel; Cotton Up $2; Wool Tops at Record Level

Feverish scrambling for futures swept commodity prices upward again yesterday some quotations to the highest ever recorded.

Speculators, manufacturers' agents and commission houses sought to buy before prices went even higher. The boom was based directly on expectations of huge exports to Britain, Russia and China of foodstuffs and other raw materials.

Reports an American-controlled Danish ship had been sunk off Iceland caused a scare and prices slumped momentarily.

Soybean Margin Lifted

Soybeans, versatile raw material for paints, plastics, shortening, pancake flour, macaroni, printing ink and linoleum—to name a few products—bounded the full 8-cent trading limit on the Chicago Board of Trade, and margin requirements were lifted sharply.

At one time the May delivery touched $1.93¾ a bushel, highest since soybean futures trading began. The growing demand for soybean products emphasized the fact that while United States production is five times that of ten years ago, China and Manchuokuo produced in 1940 roughly 40 times as much as this country, and a ship shortage might cut America off from that source.

Chicago grain quotations were higher at the close. Wheat gained ⅞ to 1½ cents a bushel, corn ⅝ to ¾ cent, and oats 1⅛ to 1¼ cents. Hog prices held steady at a 4-year peak established yesterday. Lambs were steady and cattle weak to lower.

Cotton Futures Soar

New York cotton futures bounced up and down, at one time dropping under the previous close but easily regaining levels $2 a bale higher.

Cottonseed oil futurs rose .14 to .17 of a cent a pound; cottonseed quotations ranged around $59 a ton, and crude cottonseed oil brought 12½ cents a pound in some sections.

Wool tops futures rose as much as 1½ cents a pound to the highest prices since trading began. Quotations ranged to $1.80 a pound.

Santos coffee was only slightly changed from the day before, Rio coffee gained more than 1/10 of a cent a pound and cocoa prices were about firm.

World sugar, faced with a possible increase in U. S. production, lost .03½ to .06 of a cent a pound. Domestic quotations were a shade higher to a shade lower.

The Associated Press index of the prices of 36 cash products rose for the twelfth consecutive day to a new 4-year high at 94.27 per cent of the 1926 average, from 93.96 per cent the day before.

Foodstuffs Also Soar

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—The vast potential foreign and domestic demand for American foodstuffs indicated by the Government's 1942 farm production goals brought a wave of buying orders in the butter, egg and potato futures markets on the mercantile exchange today and carried many deliveries to new four-year peaks and longer.

Buying orders, traders said, gave produce brokers their most active day in the 21-year history of the exchange.

Butter futures led the forward movement with gains of more than a half-cent a pound before realizing sales made any impression and closed with net gains of almost one-half cent. In the cash market, butter prices were up ½ to 1 cent a pound, with extras being quoted at 36¾ cents, or ¼ cent under the 1941 peaks. The turnover in the futures market totaled 6,379,800 pounds.

Potato futures, setting a new single day turnover record with 17,244,000 pounds, advanced as much as 65 cents per 100 pounds and then closed with net gains of 14 to 40 cents. All deliveries were at new seasonal peaks, with January Idahos finishing with the largest gain at $3.50 per 100 pounds, a new high since 1937.

Egg futures at the day's extremes were near ½ cent higher and at figures unequaled since the pre-depression days, but with heavy receipts they closed with gains less than ¼ cent a dozen, October refrigerator standards resting at 30½ cents a dozen. The turnover for the day amounted to 7,416,000 dozen.

Large Shortage Of Railroad Cars Likely in Fall

By the Associated Press

The National Planning Association, a private research organization, yesterday forecast a possible shortage of 40,000 railroad cars in October if defense production moves forward rapidly in the early autumn.

"If the transport services cope with the fall demand," said the association report, "it will not be because this Nation's transportation system was organized to meet the requirements of an all-out defense effort, but rather because lack of planning and shortages elsewhere have held production below expectations. Complacency followed by crises, assurances of plenty followed by shortages, have characterized our defense experience."

The association said the peak demand for cars may be between 1,020,000 and 1,080,000. It estimated the peak capacity available at 980,000 cars.

Carolina Leaf Prices Higher

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 9 (AP).—Prices for the flue-cured or cigarette type tobacco on the Eastern Carolinas auction markets continued to hold at an average in excess of 25 cents a pound today as the nine markets of the North Carolina middle belt opened.

A heavy volume of good grade leaf on the markets opening today boosted prices for the first few hour's sales to beyond the 30-cent level in several places.

This belt sold 99,960,797 pounds last year at an average of 16.58 cents a pound. The new bright belt, comprising the world's largest markets, sold 35,293,340 pounds for an average of 25.42 cents a pound last week.

Clarence E. Kefauver was reelected chairman of the senior advisory council of the Washington Chapter of the American Savings and Loan Institute at a luncheon meeting yesterday in the Raleigh Hotel. Mr. Kefauver, secretary of the Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, is serving his second term.

Reelected as recording secretary of the council was Rudolph Santelmann, secretary of the Metropolis Building Association. Reports of the chapter officers were given and it was announced that William H. Rippard, auditor of Perpetual Building Association, will be instructor of the course in savings and loan principles.

The Senior Advisory Council is composed of executives of each of Washington's building and loan associations as well as principal officers of the institute.

Mr. Kefauver said that the institute's annual dance will be held September 27 at the Mayflower Hotel.

More than 100 guests are expected. Purpose of the meeting is to outline and discuss plans for the ensuing year.

Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of George Washington University, will be the principal speaker and there will be brief talks by T. Stanley Holland, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association; John M. Christie, president of Washington chapter, and Mr. Birgfeld.

D. C. Index 30% Above Normal

Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, Inc., advertising concern, reported yesterday that business conditions in Washington as of September 1 stood at 30 per cent above normal, representing a gain of 6 per cent over the standing for August 1. On September 1, 1940, the city's business index stood at 0 per cent (exactly normal), the report said.

"It is evident that business conditions are continuing the trend to higher levels in almost every trading area in the country," the report states. "The figures show gains in 129 of the 147 trading areas of the United States during August; 32 were 35 per cent above normal."

Absent But Honored

Detained in Washington by the illness of his wife, Walter B. Bauman, district agent, nevertheless was honored at the annual convention of the Leaders Club, top-notch agents of the Illinois Bankers Life Assurance Co., in Chicago. Forty-two champion "name-on-the-dotted-liners" from Washington to Los Angeles were honored for the records they established selling life insurance in the year ended June 30, and Mr. Bauman, through his sales record, became the club's vice president.

Jewel Tea Stock Issues Due Today

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—An underwriting group headed by Lehman Brothers & Goldman, Sachs & Co., plans to offer tomorrow 50,000 shares of Jewel Tea Co., Inc., 4¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock, $100 par, at $105 a share.

The funds are to be used by the company largely in expanding its sales outlets. The long-range program calls for 2000 routes and 200 stores and markets by 1944 if conditions are favorable.

About $1,500,000 will be earmarked for additional production and warehouse facilities, including plants at Los Angeles and Chicago and Barrington, Ill. Another portion will provide working capital for maintenance of increased inventories and the larger number of sales units.

Profit Selling Halts Advance in Aircrafts, Puts Brakes on Recovery Shift in Stocks

New York, Sept. 9.—The principal attention of financial markets today again centered on commodities and low-priced stocks.

Securities, up most of the session, generally gave ground at the last. Staples, while unsettled temporarily by the news of the sinking of an American-owned ship 300 miles off Iceland, soo revived and finished well in front, with the exception of sugar and cocoa.

Profit selling in the bouyant aircrafts of Monday but brakes on the recovery shift in stocks and pulled down most rails, steels, motors and coppers. Number of favorites managed to emerge on the topside, but final declines of fractions to a point or so predominated.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .1 of a point, at 43.3. This composite has not registered an advance since September 2. The turnover of 873,280 shares compared with 617,650 the day before and was the largest since July 29.

International Telephone was the liveliest performer on trades of 65,200 shares. It was up ⅛ of a point at 3⅛, a new 1941 top. Helping this issue were rumors the company was negotiating for the sale of another of its foreign properties.

Best prices for the year also were posted for Hiram Walker, United States Rubber, International Nickel and Pan American Airways.

On the losing end were Boeing Aircraft, Douglas, United Aircraft, Consolidate Aircraft, Grumman Aircraft, Lockeed, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Great Northern, General Motors, Chrysler, Kennecott and Western Union.

Eastman Kodak jumped 3 points and improvement was retained by Goodyear, American Airlines, International Harvester, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical and Phelps Dodge.

Mounting tension between the United States and the Axis Powers, brokers said, tended to handicap the early upward trend in stocks. Although the business picture was fairly bright in the face of taxes and spreading Federal restrictions, war doubts persisted among customers and many adjourned to neutral territory pending the President's forthcoming broadcast Thursday. Some buying support was credited to inflationary twinges occasioned by the swing in commodities.

Gulf Oil and International Petroleum were up in the curb while backsliding issues included Beech Aircraft, Cessna Aircraft, Brewster Aero and Republic Aviation. Transfers here were around 170,000 shares versus 155,000 yesterday.

A fairly large group of foreign dollar bonds developed extraordinary strength today while the main domestic group kept within close proximity to Monday's prices.

Buoyancy of the dollar group was associated by some bond observers with the latest developments in the war, especially the speech of Prime Minister Winston Churchill before the House of Commons in which he gave a further glimpse into what the Allies hope for as well as his own interpretation of what was happening.

Domestic bonds were spotty from the start of trading and ended that way.

United States Governments were quiet on both the stock exchange and over the counter, ending the day very close to prices on Monday.

Total transfers of $7,232,950, par value, compared with $5,368,000 the day before.

Small Concerns Hit for Failure To Expand Plants

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Failure of small and medium-sized companies to expand production facilities was called a serious defect of the Nation's defense program by Leonard C. Yaseen, factory locating engineer, here today.

Small conperns, Yaseen said, were the very backbone of the defense effort. Of the 185,000 manufacturers in the United States, he said, only ¼ of 1 per cent employed more than 1,000 persons.

The small number of giant industrial companies, however, were doing most of the new plant construction.

Yaseen, eastern manager of the Fantus Factory Locating Service, said the "little fellows" reluctance to expand was based, at least in part, on fallacy.

One manufacturer, he said, told him: "I am taking all the defense contracts I can safely fill in my present plant and no more. They'll be giving floor space away when the shooting is over."

That small businessman is going to be disillusioned; the big companies expect to use those plants themselves, he said.

U. S. Sugar Imports Show 33% Gain

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that sugar imports during the first eight months of this year exceeded those of the same period last year by nearly a third.

Imports totaled 4,262,174 short tons, raw value, compared with 3,521,311 last year.

This year's imports were from the following sources:

Cuba, 1,909,244 short tons; the Philippines, 751,001; Puerto Rico, 842,793; Hawaii, $646,849; Virgin Islands 3122, and foreign countries other than Cuba, 109,165.

$28,374,000 Issues Filed by Terminal

By the Associated Press

The St. Paul Union Depot Co. asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to issue and sell $15,737,000 of first and refunding mortgage bonds, series B, and $900,000 of guaranteed notes to provide funds for the retirement of $14,737,000 of first and refunding 5 per cent gold bonds, series A.

The outstanding series B bonds will be redeemed January 1, 1942, at 110 per cent of face value and accrued interest.

The company did not estimate the amount of savings to be affected by the refunding operation, but said it would furnish this information to the commission later. The interest rate of the new issue is to be specified by the bidders.

Food Costs Up Another 1.3% During Month

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 9.—The National Industrial Conference Board reported food costs rose 1.3 per cent during August while the cost of living generally was up .8 of one per cent.

The private research organization said that since August, 1940, the cost of living had risen 4.7 per cent and was 24.7 per cent above the depression low point of April, 1933. The average still is 11.6 per cent below the August, 1929, level, the report said.

Rents, it said, rose .2 of one per cent during August to a level 2 per cent above August of last year. Clothing prices advanced .9 of one per cent in August, gaining 2.1 per cent over August, 1940.

Coal prices increased 1.5 in August and were 7.1 per cent above the same month in 1940.

The conference board said the consumer's dollar bought 11.9 per cent more last month than it did in 1923, compared with 17.1 per cent more in August last year.

Cities Placing Heavy Orders for Road Salt

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—A prospective shortage of snow shovelers next winter is a factor in a largely increased advance demand for rock salt, John L. Ryon, vice president of the International Salt Co., said today.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

. . . take chances with cut-price insurance

Buying insurance of doubtful security in order to save premium cost is like an aviator buying a defective parachute because it's cheap. If he's going to need it at all, only the best is good enough. If he isn't going to need it, why bother to carry it at all? Moral: Insist on insurance that you KNOW will be reliable . . . Let us tell you all about it.

Young Clouts 2 Home Runs, Giants Win, 4-2

By the Associated Press

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.— Babe Young swept the New York Giants to a 4-to-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by hitting two home runs, one of the mwith a mate aboard in the tenth inning.

The game was pretty much a mound duel between Hal Schumacher of the Giants and Rip Sewell of the Pirates. Schumacher himself singled and scored on a single by Mel Ott to take a 1-to-0 lead in the first inning.

The Pirates tallied on three singles in the fifth and on an error, a sacrifice and a single in the sixth, only to have Young hit his twenty-third tripper of the season to tie the score in the eighth.

With one out in the ninth, Elbie Fletcher tripled and the next two Pirates were intentionally passed to load the bases. Schumacher met the situation by striking out two batters and Young came through with his twenty-fourth circuit clout after Rookie John Davis had singled in the tenth.

The situation was this:

The Dodgers, recovering quickly after giving the Bears the touchdown on the blocked kick early in the game, carried the kickoff straight back to the Bear 42, from which point Merlin Condit booted a superb field goal. The period ended with the Bears leading, 7 to 3, and after Chicago twice booted the ball on fumbles, Brooklyn scored again in the second.

This time Rookie Dean McAdams recovered a muff on the Bear 38 and twice passed to put Brooklyn on the Chicago 18. Line plunges lost ground, but then McAdams kicked the second field goal, this one from the Bear 33. Before the half ended, Jack Manders of the Midwestern eleven missed a 21-yard boot himself after the Bear attack clocked, and the Dodgers marched again.

Taking the ball on their 20, the Brooks gained 43 yards on a pass from Bill Leckonby to Perry Schwarts, who lateraled to Condit. Leckonby then tossed three straight passes to men who were clear in the end zones, but each time the receiver let the ball trickle through his hands. On the fourth down Condit kicked a third field goal, from the Bear 21, and the Dodgers took a lead which held to the last minute.

The Bears crumpled entirely in the third and their attack was fruitless. In this period the Dodgers marched down field to the Bear 9-yard line before losing the ball, and again in the fourth quarter moved 61 yards to the six before McAdams fumbled. A quick Bear thrust was snuffed, and the Dodgers had only to kill time for the victory. After wasting three minutes on line-plays, they kicked in the last minute—and McAfee romped.

Chicago scoring: Touchdowns—McAfee (2), Paints after touchdown—Artel, Hensel (for McAfee) (both placements).

Brooklyn scoring: Field goals—Condit (3), McAdams (for C. Manders) (two placements).

Fishing with JACK BELL

Plans to make fishing and hunting in Virginia as easily available as possible to soldiers and sailors are being studied by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. Detailed directions for reaching State-owned ponds and suggestions for service fishermen and hunters are being compiled for Army and Marine Corps post commanders.

JACK BELL

"Wholesome outdoor recreation is a very important factor in building the morale of our armed forces," said Commission Chairman Carl H. Nolting. "This commission is intensely interested in doing all it can to make the fine outdoor sports of hunting and fishing more easily available to soldiers and sailors. Under the Virgina law, officers and enlisted men are entitled to buy the game relatively inexpensive hunting and fishing licenses as are Virginia residents, so that the cost to the soldier or sailor sportsman can be kept at a minimum. Good fishing and hunting areas are available near almost every camp or post, and by sending to commanding officers detailed information we hope that we can help make the training period of the men more enjoyable and perhaps more effective."

Included in the suggestions sent by the commission to Army and Navy posts was one that regular schedules for taking men to and from fishing and hunting areas might be worked out by camp recreation officers.

Saturday and Sunday—September 13 and 14—the National Capital Casting Club's registered tournament will be held—rain or shine—at the Reflecting Pool. This eight-event program will be held under N. A. A. C. C. rules. Entries are being received from as far as Connecticut.

First, second and third-place winners of each event will be awarded distinctive official medals (gold, silver and bronze).

Events each day are scheduled for 9:30 a. m., and continue with dispatch from that time on.

Sunday's program: ¾-ounce accuracy, wet fly accuracy and dry fly accuracy.

Angelo Vammino, W. Winter and Van Vales, Washington anglers, had a fishing fair of their own Saturday. Fishing off Deales Island, with Capt. William Winsor, they caught 350 fish, of which 200 were trout or weakfish, weighing from 1½ to 3 pounds. Peeler crabs and bloodworms did the trick.

Fishing is God's precious boon,
To rich and poor; sage and loon
Worth a thousand times the pawn,
No one sees that—till it's gone!

One of the interesting highlights of the recent Grand Fishing Contest at Chesapeake Bay was the handsome trophy awarded for the largest variety of fish. This prize was won by J. H. Haver, of Washington, who caught 15 varieties, among which was a pompano, a fish which is very rare in local waters. Second prize was won by K. Cashell, Washington, with 13 varieties, and third prize was also taken by a Washingtonian, Ralph S. Garrett, with 11 varieties.

us up to a little suburb called Rancho Santa Fe where she plans to build a home and where some guy named Bing Crosby lives. Mrs. Marshall has purchased the ground and we went up to see it. I didn't say anything but there isn't much view from there. From where she has planned to put the porch, you look to the east and you can only see 49 orange groves and two mountain ranges. Looking toward the west, all you see is a forest of eucalyptus trees and the Pacific Ocean.

I like Oneida Street in Washington where we can look out the front door and see the Good Humor man and out the back door and see the G-man.

I was thinking, Boss, if you don't quit sending me down among those Florida oranges in the winter and out here among the California oranges in the summer, the first thing you know I'm going to be citrus happy.

Always your ace,
PADRE HAIGHT.

P. S.—Drank so many old fashions last night I was looking for a baseball player picture in a pack of cigarettes.

Walters Beats Braves, 9-7, For Cincinnati

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 9.—Cashioned by two runs in the second and six in the third, Cincinnati's Reds withstood a last-minute four-run uprising by the Boston Braves today to win, 9 to 7, in an extra-base fray marked by 29 hits and 7 errors.

Bucky Walters yielded 14 hits in recording victory No. 17 against 13 defeats. For Art Javery, jerked in the third before a man was out, it was his eleventh loss in 17 starts.

The big noise was young Hank Sauer, slugging first baseman just up from Birmingham of the Southern Association. Making his major league debut—and as left field replacement through seven innings for Mike McCormick at that Sauer doubled in the second to score Harry Craft, who had tripled, and in the fifth saw his second two-bagger of the day go to waste.

to right, and Smith lost his control, walking Vernon on four straight balls to fill the bases.

That's when Ortiz untied the score with a hot single through the left side of the infield that fetched two runs home. Bloodworth singled through the same spot for the third run of the inning and out went Smitty. Johnny Humphries got the pitching job then, and Al Evans saluted him with a three-bagger down the right-field line that scored the fourth and fifth runs of the inning. Anderson got the sixth home when Third Baseman Kennedy slipped on the infield dew in fielding his grounder.

That was the ball game. But we haven't told you anything about George Case's catch yet. Case's larcenous piece of outfielding against Luke Appling in the sixth inning was the fielding feat of the night. With the wide carrying Appling's long drive toward the leftfield wall, Case turned his back on everybody but the bleacherites, galloped toward the fence, stuck up his gloved hand and discovered the ball in it. It was a great catch, or a lucky one. The 17,000 loved it. They liked most everything about the Nats last night.

The end was inevitable when Miss Jameson three-putted the fifteenth from 20 feet and enabled Miss Younker to square the match. Miss Younker followed up her advantage and swung into the lead by sinking a short putt on the sixteenth for a par three as Miss Jameson's drive landed in a trap and she missed an 8-foot tap for a half.

Mrs. Page, 1937 titlist, canned a 5-foot putt on the eighteenth to draw even with Mrs. Patton and then rammed home a 25-footer on the extra hole for her victory.

A 1940 semifinalist, Mrs. James Ferrie, of Long Beach, Calif., stayed in the competition by equaling Mrs. Page's feat on the nineteenth hole of her match with Mrs. Lily Harper Martin, of Virginia Beach, Va.

Miss Bauer was vanquished by 18-year-old Louise Suggs, of Atlanta, Ga., daughter of a former pitcher for the New York Giants. Playing her first tournament of the season, Miss Belanger was tripped by Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Leichner, of Flushing, N. Y., and Miss Amory was the day's first upset victim at the hands of Mrs. Reinert M. Torgerson, of Great Neck, N. Y.

The only golf to match that of Miss Younker was that played by Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell, of Long Beach, Calif., California champion, who trounced Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., 9 and 7.

Mrs. Vare, six-titlist, whipped Phyllis Otto, Omaha, Neb., 5 and 4.

Two other favorites—long-hitting Clara Callender of Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, Tex.—kept pace with lopsided wins. Miss Callender plastered Mrs. Frederick Davis of Providence, R. I., 6 and 5, while Mrs. Chandler walloped Mrs. F. J. Halloran of Greenwich, Conn., 7 and 6.

Automatic Preference

20 Essential Civilian Industries Receive Priority for Repairs

A "streamlined" plan to grant priority assistance for repair work in 20 essential civilian industries was announced yesterday by Donald M. Nelson, OPM director of priorities.

Under the new plan, producers in the industries specified automatically obtain the high preference rating of A-10 for deliveries of required repair parts by indorsing a special statement on purchase orders, certifying that the material is for repair work or "emergency inventory."

By this procedure, the industries are not required to seek their preferential ratings from the OPM priorities division.

According to Nelson, the new system is designed primarily to protect industry against sudden breakdowns.

Industries which may take advantage of the facilitated method of obtaining priorities are:

Fire, police and highway services of Federal, State, county and municipal governments; all forms of carriers, railroads, motor or maritime; chemical plants, coke converting plants, educational institutions, explosives, far mmachinery and equipment, food processing or storing, highway maintenance and equipment machinery factories; hospitals, clinic and sanatoria; lumber plants, metallurgical plants; mines and quarries, newspapers; petroleum processors; radio; research laboratories; rubber and rubber products plants; shipyards and ship repair plants, and telephone and telegraph communications.

Man Indicted In D.C. Swindle Being Hunted

Federal authorities last night were seeking Dudley W. Emerick, 39, who was indicted here yesterday on a charge of defrauding a woman Government worker of $2155, with smooth talk about profits from her New Mexico oil land.

The alleged victim, a Veteran Administration employe, told police that Emerick approached her last December with a proposal to buy oil leases she owned in two New Mexico counties. The man is alleged to have said he was from a huge oil concern which wanted to develop new fields.

Eventually a $6000 price was agreed upon. Then the man is alleged to have asked for money for escrow fees and the cost of a survey. This totaled $655. Meanwhile, Emerick is alleged to have induced the woman to turn over $1500 of stock she owned in several financial concerns. Last February Emerick vanished.

The matter was presented to the grand jury after an investigation by the district attorney's detectives and Emerick was indicted yesterday on 16 counts, which included charges of grand larceny, larceny after trust and embezzlement.

The indictment was among 25 received by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in the District Court.

Two French Super Courts To Try Agitators

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 9 (AP).—Two all-powerful courts, one in Lyon and the other in Paris, were established today empowered to indict, try and sentence persons charged with disturbing order in either the German-occupied or the unoccupied zone of France.

"Authors, co-authors and accomplices" in any activity dangerous to the State are brought under the new courts' jurisdiction.

This means that prosecutors upon presentation of evidence can go after the "big shots" of political movements directed against the government of Marshal Petain.

The courts are empowered to decree sentences ranging up to deportation, life imprisonment and death. No appeals will be allowed, and sentences must be executed immediately.

Listen! with Glynn

It's an undoubted fact that, in the heat of inspiration, lyricists and composers have gotten together and written songs on the backs of menus, on scraps of paper handy, on random table cloths or what have you.

But it's a question whether, up to this time, that process has been gone through with the collaborators more than 3,000 miles apart and, what's more, finishing up their product so that it is ready to be broadcast throughout the Nation by a large orchestra within 48 hours.

But that's the story of the song which is to be heard for the first time on "The Treasury Hour" over WJSV and C. B. S. at 8 tonight. The words were written in New York by Howard Dietz, publicity and advertising chief for MGM and director for "The Treasury Hour." Last Thursday they were airmailed to the noted composer Arthur Schwartz in Hollywood. On Friday Schwartz had his melody completed. Back it came to New York by air. That same day Orchestra Leader Al Goodman had it orchestrated for air presentation. It was being rehearsed a few hours later.

Oh yes! It's somewhat logical title is, "Buy A Bond."

It will be sung by "The Hit Parade's" Barry Wood. Also to be heard on "The Treasury Hour" tonight are Actress Loretta Young, Contralto Marian Anderson, Comedian George Jessel, Ralph Edwards and his "Truth or Consequences," the Al Goodman Orchestra mentioned, and Ray Block's Choir.

Draft Board Picks Fisk as Job Aide

Will Head Reemployment Service For D. C. Men Freed by Armed Forces

Howard S. Fisk, one of the founders of the District American Legion Department, and an employe of the employment service of the Federal Security Agency has been appointed reemployment director for the Washington Selective Service System.

FISK

Fisk, of 1034 Quebec Place Northwest, will have charge of finding jobs for men to be discharged from the armed services following expiration of their Selective Service or enlistment terms.

The reemployment office will be located in the National Guard Armory, Pennsylvania Avenue and Sixth Street Northwest, and will be opened Monday.

As reemployment director Fisk will serve in a liaison capacity between local selection headquarters and the employment service of the FSA.

In the case of selectees it will be his duty to expedite their return to the jobs they left on being called to service. The Conscription Act provides employers must take back their old employes providing their circumstances have not so changed as to make the rehiring impossible or impracticable.

Speaker Praises Post-World War Minorities Treaties

While they failed to prevent war, the post-World War minorities treaties designed to protect some 20 to 25 million persons were by and large "a fair instrument for the preservation of peace, both external and internal," the Institute of World Organization was told yesterday at American University.

The trouble, declared Dr. Jacob Robison, former member of the Minorities Congresses in Geneva, was twofold.

First, he said, greater cooperation of the signatory states, to be reached by extension of the protection system and limitation of sovereignty in all states, is needed for smooth operation.

The second requirement is a shift of emphasis from the League of Nations to the court by enabling individuals to appeal in local courts invoking the treaties and by disassociating these individuals from foreign influence, he said.

P.-T. A. to Meet

The Dunn Loring (Va.) Parent-Teachers Association will hold its annual reception at the school tonight at 7:30 for members of the faculty. Following the reception a business session will be held with Mrs. Walter Stanhouse presiding.

Torrey, Rowell Made Marine Major Generals

President Roosevelt yesterday approved the promotion of Brig. Gens. Philip H. Torrey, of Washington, and Ross E. Rowell, of Coronado, Calif., now stationed in Washington, to the rank of major general.

Promotion was recommended by a Marine Corps selection board which met August 18.

Gen. Torrey's usual residence is Washington although he is at present in command of the First Marine Division, Fleet Marine Force, at Quantico, Va.

He was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps July 18, 1905, from civil life, and was promoted to brigadier general August 21, 1939.

He served on foreign duty in Cuba and Haiti and in 1918 went overseas to obtain information on training and equipment of troops in the war zone. On his return, he was assigned as officer in charge of the Overseas Depot at Quantico.

Subsequently he served at sea and at various posts in the United States. His commands included the Marine Barracks at Annapolis; the Sixth Marines, Fleet Marine Force and the Eastern Recruiting Division, Philadelphia. From August, 1939, to last January, he served as commandant of the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico.

Gen. Torrey holds the Cuban Campaign Medal, the Victory Medal, and the Marine Corps Expeditionary Medal.

Gen. Rowell, now on duty in the Office of Naval Intelligence here, is known as the man who led the first dive bombing attack in the history of naval warfare. For leading his "Ace of Spades" squadron of five old De Havilland biplanes in a diving attack that saved a Marine garrison at Ocotal, Nicaragua, from almost certain annihilation in 1927, he won the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal and a special letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

Gen. Rowell was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps August 27, 1906. He has seen foreign duty in Cuba, the Philippines, Nicaragua, Haiti and France and only recently returned from a tour of duty as observer in Asia, Europe and Africa.

He has been in aviation continuously since 1923. From 1935 to 1939 he was director of Marine Corps Aviation, with headquarters here.

Romeo Loves Wife, But Won't Fight Divorce

San Jose, Calif., Sept. 9 (U.P.)—Romeo Gasparini, former Italian army officer who married an heiress and then eloped with her daughter, said tonight that if the latter, Eleanor Alsop Gasparini, wants to divorce him, he would not stand in her way.

Gasparini, with whom Eleanor Alsop eloped while he still was married to her mother, said he hadn't seen his wife in eight months. He is bedfast in a sanitarium near here.

"I still love her, even though I haven't seen her in a long time," he said.

Reports from New York said 23-year-old Eleanor was planning to divorce Gasparini and marry a young Pittsburgher currently stationed with defense forces in California. She is reported to be living in Beverly Hills.

Gasparini met Eleanor's mother, Mrs. Frederic Winthrop Nelson, socialite heiress, at an Italian seaside resort and married her. She brought him to her Palm Beach, Fla., home where Eleanor, then wife of Floyd Jefferson, jr., met him.

Within a short time Gasparini and Eleanor eloped. They went to Honolulu, then to China, and then came to California, where they settled at Tiburon on San Francisco Bay. They were married in China after Mrs. Nelson divorced Gasparini and Eleanor won her freedom from Jefferson.

Fog Stops Planes Hunting Lost Bomber Carrying Six

By the United Press

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 9.—Fog and rain late today turned back planes searching for a trace of a U. S. Army bombing plane carrying six men which is unreported since early this morning on a routine flight over the mountains of northern Washington.

The twin-motored plane, a Douglas B-18-A bomber, left McChord Field here shortly after last midnight on a routine night training flight. At 4:50 a. m. it radioed it was five minutes east of Seattle. That was the last heard from it.

Aboard Were Lieut. Edward Valorz, 28, Chicago, pilot; Lieut. John Winship, 25, Riverside, Calif., co-pilot, a bridegroom of seven days; Staff Lieut. Robert Dexter, 23, Victorville, Calif., radio operator; Staff Sergt. James W. Page, 20, Seagoville, Tex., flight engineer; Private Jack Huppert, 22, Milwaukee, Wis., apprentice radioman, and Private Milford Knight, St. Louis, Mo., a passenger.

Pilot Valorz was National Amateur Athletic Union heavyweight wrestling champion last year. He represented the University of Chicago. Last spring he won the Pacific Northwest title in a meet here.

The bomber carried sufficient gasoline to keep it afloat until 9 a. m. However, because of the absence of radio reports, McChord Field officers feared it met with some mishap shortly after the 4:50 message. There was the possibility Valorz might have succeeded in making a forced landing somewhere in the mountains.

A farmer at Spanaway, 10 miles south of here, said he saw "a plane" circling shortly after 5 a. m. and then heard it head east. That was the only clew to the ship.

The country over which the bomber was flying is marked by high mountains and deep woods. In a 250-mile stretch from the Canadian border to the Oregon-Washington border, four great peaks rise above the clouds, topped by mighty Mount Rainier. The others are Mount Adams, Mount Baker and Mount St. Helens.

The radio message placed the plane apparently in the vicinity of Snoqualmie and possibly on the Seattle-Ellensburg radio beam.

The route charted for the flight called for the plane to fly as far east as Spokane, 300 miles from Tacoma, then south to Walla Walla and then back over that course to Spokane before swinging west to Seattle and Tacoma. The radio report indicated it had completed its assignment and was coming in to its base.

Green Planning World Conference Of Labor Leaders

Atlantic City, Sept. 9 (INS).—William Green, American Federation of Labor president, disclosed today that he is trying to arrange for a world conference of labor leaders from more than 25 countries to assure labor a voice at the postwar peace table.

Labor chiefs from many nations and governments in exile are expected to attend a conference in New York late in September, Green told the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electrical Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, and added:

"I have invited them to come to Seattle for a world labor conference. Out of this conference will come a demand . . . that labor shall sit at the peace conference table."
